TAFT AND HUGHES SPEAK AT DINNER

Rivals for Presidential Honors Meet at Banquet of Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

GOVERNOR WINS CHEERS

Secretary Lauds the Irish and Only Hints at Politics—Hughes Raps Grafters.

Under the benign influence of the memory of Ireland's patron saint Gov. Hughes and Secretary of War Taft, rival aspirants for the Republican nomination for the Presidency, met last night and made speeches across the same table at the 124th annual banquet of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

As if by arrangement, politics, strictly speaking, were not mentioned, but while Secretary Taft devoted the time at his disposal to praise of the Irish and quoted some Irish authors to the intense joy of the assemblage, Gov. Hughes seized the opportunity to bring home to those present some of his ideas of government, took a few sly raps at the Administration at Washington, and rather got the better of it by provoking a spontaneous "three cheers" in the middle of his speech.

The dinner was held at Delmonico's, and it is doubtful whether any other of the year has been so largely attended. There were nearly 700 guests present, the capacity of Delmonico's two largest banquet halls being taxed to the utmost. The decorations of course were Irish and American flags and shields. The orchestra played Irish tunes.

At the guest table were William Jay, Dr. John A. Wyeth, Seth Low, David McClure, J. I. C. Clarke, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, John D. Crimmins, James A. O'Gorman, Morgan J. O'Brien, Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, Archbishop Farley, Mr. Taft, Stephen Farrelly, Gov. Hughes, Bishop Potter, Victor J. Dowling, Augustus Thomas, James Fitzgerald, Michael J. Drummond, William Graves Bates, Clarence Storm, Frank Hasbrouck, and John Lloyd Thomas.

Although there was not lacking that remarkable spirit that is noticeable at the St. Patrick dinners, the fact that both Gov. Hughes and Secretary Taft were to be present lent a decided novelty to the affair and the meeting of the two was eagerly awaited, for it was the first time they have met since the Presidential boom crop got ripe.

When Greek Meets Greek.

The Secretary of War arrived early and was accorded a hearty reception. Gov. Hughes came in late, having spoken at a dinner in Brooklyn. He got an ovation. The handclapping and cheering started near the door, and Secretary Taft, seeing who it was that caused the applause, rose in his place. Immediately every one else rose. The Governor, passing behind the dais, shook hands warmly with the Secretary. Each looked into the other's face and smiled. Then they and every one else in the room burst out laughing. Thus Greek met Greek at an Irish banquet.

Stephen Farrelly, President of the Friendly Sons Society, presided as toastmaster. In opening the speechmaking he proposed a toast to the President of the United States, and the response given was much more enthusiastic than that given at any banquet this year. Even William J. Conners, the Democratic State Chairman, and Charles F. Murphy, who sat with H. H. Vreeland at a table near the dais, joined in the applause.

Mr. Farrelly dwelt largely on Ireland's history, the injustice it had suffered, the eternal hope of its people. He then introduced Mr. Taft, who was supposed to respond to the toast, "The United States."

Mr. Taft read his speech. He said he had not realized to what extent the Irish and their descendants figured in the Colonial history of this country, and from that point went into details of the services that had been rendered by the sons of Erin in the Revolution and afterward. He quoted liberally from Samuel Lover, the Irish poet, and told several short stories that greatly amused his auditors. He quoted John Boyle O'Reilly and Kipling, and read a little of the "Bells of Shandon."

Just a Drop of Politics.

The Secretary mentioned a trip he had made to Ireland twenty-five years ago, and remarked that he had kissed the blarney stone. Then, harking back to his original theme, he spoke of the activities of the Irish in the civil war, and in conclusion spoke of a forthcoming struggle that would prove a test of National character. On this point he said:

"As we look back to the founding of this Government we can find from time to time tests of the National character which have served to bring out and strengthen the virtues of the new race, sometimes by war and sometimes by political issues which had deeply colored moral aspects. It is probable that during the next decade we shall have to pass through such another moral test.

"Are we not justified in believing that the composite American of to-day, in spite of the enervation of wealth and luxury, will, when the trial comes, show the same sturdy virtues that have kept the Nation on the upward path of moral progress since the Puritans of New England, the Dutchmen of New York, the Irish Catholics of Maryland, and the Cavaliers of Virginia and the many other peoples of the thirteen Colonies united in one common cause and amalgamated in one common type of American to make this country a Nation?"

At the conclusion of his speech the Secretary was loudly applauded. Then Mr. Farrelly introduced the Governor.

Taft and the Blarney Stone.

"I might remark in passing," he said, "that I would like to have had a picture of the Secretary kissing the Blarney stone."

That brought down the house, and when Mr. Hughes added, "I presume that that is a veracious chronicle," even Mr. Taft was overcome with laughter.

The Governor passed on to tell of what the Irish had done for the State of New York, paying particular attention to the first Governor of the State, George Clinton, whose ancestors were Irish. Then he mentioned a young man named Connolly, who served under Clinton, and when he

SENATOR WHYTE DEAD.

Was 86 Years of Age and Had Been Senator, Governor, and Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 17.—United States Senator William Pinkney Whyte died at his home in this city to-night.

He was taken ill while in Washington last Thursday. Erysipelas developed and his condition became worse.

At the request of Senator Whyte's family the usual committees of the Senate and House will be dispensed with at the funeral.

William Pinkney Whyte was born in Baltimore on Aug. 29, 1824. His father was Col. Joseph Whyte and his mother was a daughter of William Pinkney.

In 1847 Mr. Whyte was elected to the State Legislature. Later he was Controller of Currency of Maryland, but refused a second term. He was appointed to the United States Senate in 1868 to fill the unexpired term of Reverdy Johnson. Whyte was one of the few Democratic Senators who defended President Johnson in the impeachment proceedings.

At the end of his term in the Senate, Mr. Whyte was elected Governor of Maryland. He served until 1874, when he was elected to the United States Senate.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Whyte, the Senator refused a second nomination in 1880. The next year he was unanimously elected Mayor of Baltimore, which place he filled until 1883. He was appointed by President Harrison a delegate to the Congress of American Nations in 1889.

Mr. Whyte's present term in the Senate began in 1906, when he was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Arthur P. Gorman.

BIG SALES OF COPPER.

100,000,000 Pounds Bought for Future Delivery at Good Prices.

The demand for copper has so increased that copper-producing companies have sold ahead to the extent of 100,000,000 pounds. This marks a vast improvement in the copper trade.

Of these sales for future delivery it is said that the United Metals Selling Company has orders covering 50,000,000 pounds, one of the large independent producers orders for 30,000,000, and other producers for 25,000,000 pounds.

Within the last two days the price, which had receded fractionally under 13 cents, has again become firmly established at that figure, and yesterday sales were made at that price. Orders ranging from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 pounds are said to have been placed in fairly large numbers recently by domestic consumers. One of these orders for the larger amount was held up by the suspension of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, which was the banker for a power plant construction enterprise for which this copper has been ordered. The order will now be filled, as the trust company is to reopen.

PANIC IN ELEVATED TRAIN.

Blowing Out of Fuse Fires a Car and a Mad Rush to Escape Begins.

A three-car elevated train of the Broadway line, Brooklyn, was bowling over the structure toward the Hewes Street Station at 7:45 o'clock last night, packed with passengers on their way to theatres, when a fuse blew out at Keap Street, a block and a half from the Hewes Street Station. There was a loud report, and blue and white flashes of flame leaped up about the sides of the cars.

The train came to a sudden stop, the lights went out, and in the darkness the passengers were thrown in heaps on the floors of the cars. In an instant there was a panic, and the screams of frightened women resounded from every car.

In the front car, Conductor Thomas Carlon slammed the door shut, put his back against it, and shouted for the passengers to be calm, as there was no danger. A dozen men sprang at him and tossed him aside. They wrenched the door open, flung open the gates, and leaped out on to the elevated structure.

Others followed them, and soon men and women were swarming over the tracks, alongside of which ran the live third rail. Several women gathered their skirts in their hands and climbed over the guard rail by the side of the footpath on the structure. Two of them succeeded in climbing down one of the open trestle pillars to the street below.

There a throng gathered and shouted to the rest of the women to remain where they were. In the meantime the bottom of the first car had caught fire and was blazing. Some one sent in a still alarm, and Engine 111, from Clymer Street, and Truck 54, from South Third Street, hurried to the scene. The police reserves came from the Clymer Street Station.

Policemen and firemen clambered up to the elevated structure, and while the policemen guided passengers along the footpath to the Hewes Street Station the firemen went at the blaze with pails of sand. They soon put it out, but the line was tied up for half an hour.

No one was hurt.

ELEVATED SYSTEM TIED UP.

All Lines Out of Commission for 22 Minutes and 3d Av. Line in Darkness.

The entire elevated railway system in Manhattan was tied up for twenty-two minutes last night at about 8:30 o'clock, and passengers on the Third Avenue, Sixth Avenue, and Ninth Avenue trains in many places left the cars and walked to the nearest stations along the boards.

The tie-up was caused by a short circuit on the feeder cable. All lights on the stations of the Third Avenue line were extinguished.

TROWBRIDGE WEDS SECRETLY

His Bride Miss M. L. Hackett, Daughter of the ex-Recorder.

It became known yesterday, when the couple started on a belated honeymoon trip, that Francis Emory Trowbridge and Miss Minnie Laura Hackett, daughter of ex-Recorder Hackett, were secretly married on last Dec. 23. Mr. Trowbridge is 62 years old. His bride is five years younger.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. James B. Wasson, assistant rector of St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church. Friends of Mrs. Trowbridge believe that she desired the marriage kept secret until business affairs could be arranged, and she might leave on a honeymoon trip.

Mr. Trowbridge is a member of the Union League Club, and his bride is an heiress, her fortune being estimated at $1,000,000. James K. Hackett, the actor, is a half brother of Mrs. Trowbridge's father, and is her nearest living relative.

PRESIDENT PLANS TO DROP WOODRUFF

TALK OF PEACE WITH ODELL

Roosevelt Wants More Active Leader to Make Sure of Republican Success Here.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Word reached the Capitol to-night that Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff is slated to go, and that the decree to drop him has been issued by President Roosevelt. The change is scheduled to occur when the Republican State Committee meets after the Spring convention on April 11.

A number of Republican leaders from this State, including William Barnes, Jr., of Albany; National Committeeman William L. Ward of Westchester, and ex-State Superintendent of Insurance Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, have been summoned to Washington for a conference at the White House, when a successor to Mr. Woodruff will be selected. Mr. Woodruff last Sunday confided to a friend at Atlantic City his assurance that he would be re-elected.

The report from Washington reached here just as Congressman William W. Cocks, who represents the President's own district in the House of Representatives, had left Albany after a visit during which he had a talk with Mr. Barnes and many legislators wielding political power in their districts. Mr. Cocks, who frequently has represented President Roosevelt on missions of a confidential nature, according to a friend who talked with him, came to the Capitol "to look the job over and let the President know."

Among the few who learned of the prospective decapitation of Mr. Woodruff there was some divergence of opinion as to what might have prompted the President's move. One version was to the effect that the President, realizing that a stiff fight was required this fall to land this State safely in the Republican column for any other than Gov. Hughes, and at the same time keep the Odell faction down, wanted a more astute and aggressive leader than Mr. Woodruff. According to another version, the President is very much aggrieved that the Hughes sentiment in the President's native State should wear so well even in the face of his own preference for Secretary Taft, and lays the blame for this on Mr. Woodruff.

Others think that the President is preparing to take a leaf out of Odell's little book by selecting a man for Mr. Woodruff's place who would possess the political strength necessary to bring the warring factions together. This is the Odell programme.

A Republican Senator told THE TIMES's correspondent to-night that he believed the move to drop Woodruff was prompted by a desire to conciliate Odell.

The President, however, has every desire to "let Mr. Woodruff down easy." One circumstance lending color to this report is the assurance felt—following the visit of Congressman Cocks—among many of the Republican leaders at the Capitol who so far have not enjoyed the Presidential favor and the patronage that goes with it that from now on they are to be recognized.

It was said here that the programme mapped out in Washington is for a delegation from this State which, while favoring Hughes, will go uninstructed. It is significant in connection with this report that William Barnes, Jr., who has openly declared that the delegation from the Congressional district he controls will not be instructed for Gov. Hughes, is mentioned as a possible successor to State Chairman Woodruff. Mr. Ward is also mentioned, but there is little likelihood that he would accept. Congressman George R. Malby of St. Lawrence is mentioned as the man likely to be selected.

LABOR TOOK ROAD'S EARNINGS

Pennsylvania's Gain Was $30,000,000, but Wages and Supplies Increased.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—Labor got nearly 65 per cent. of the increase in the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's gross earnings last year, and the stockholders got nothing, according to that corporation's books. This is explained by the fact that the remaining 35 per cent. went into higher bills for coal and other supplies.

The gross earnings of the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg, including controlled roads, increased $20,000,000 over 1906, while the year's payrolls increased $13,000,000. The total operating expenses on the same lines was close to $23,000,000. The $10,000,000 additional expenses not represented by labor directly employed was expended in supplies.

About the same proportion of increase in payrolls to the increase in gross receipts prevailed on the lines of the Pennsylvania system west of Pittsburg, where the gain in gross earnings was more than $10,000,000. Roughly speaking, $6,500,000 of this gain was paid out to the company's employes in higher wages per hour, and, to a much less extent, in wages due to additions to the force necessitated by the increased business.

Thus, in round numbers, the Pennsylvania system as a whole received $30,000,000 more from shippers in 1907 than in 1906, and paid its men $19,500,000 more.

BALAKLAVA SURVIVOR DIES.

William Nelms Said to be Last of the "Noble Six Hundred."

LA JARA, Col., March 17.—William Nelms, aged 90 years, who asserted that he was the last survivor of the "Noble Six Hundred" at Balaklava, is dead at home in Manassas, southeast of here.

He was wounded in the head at Balaklava, afterward fought at Sevastopol, and was wounded in the leg at the battle of Inkerman. He was a member of the Queen's Guard for fifteen years, and drew a pension from the English Government. He came to America in 1857, and later came West, settling in the San Luis Valley, nineteen years ago.

NEW AMSTERDAM OPEN SOON.

John H. Edwards, the New Receiver, Is to Take Charge To-day.

John H. Edwards, until recently Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is expected to reach town this morning to assume the duties of receiver for the New Amsterdam National Bank.

Rumors that there will be a merger of the New Amsterdam, the Mechanics & Traders' Times Square Branch, and the Hudson Trust Company were laughed at by officers of those institutions yesterday.

Receiver Hanna has made rapid progress in settling up the affairs of the bank and will turn over the institution to Receiver Edwards in such condition that he will be able to take up the work and carry out such plans as he has made after conferences with Controller of the Currency Ridgely and Secretary Cortelyou.

It was stated by an official of the New Amsterdam Bank yesterday that there will soon be a bank open in the New Amsterdam Bank's present quarters. Whether or not it is to be the New Amsterdam merged with other institutions or the New Amsterdam alone he would not say, but he was emphatic in declaring that the bank would resume business in one way or another at a comparatively early date.

A suggestion that Receiver Edwards would be President of the institution when it opens was not denied.

$5,000 ROBBERY AT THE PLAZA

Employe Arrested on Charge of Stealing Banker Hammill's Diamonds.

Through the arrest of Robert McFarlane, a former houseman employed at the Hotel Plaza, and his wife, Anna, it became known last night that the apartments in the Plaza of Charles W. Hammill, of Shearson, Hammill & Co., bankers and brokers at 71 Broadway, were robbed on Feb. 5 of $5,000 worth of diamond jewelry. The robbery was hushed up at the hotel and the police gave out no information about it.

Detective Williams of the Central Office suspected McFarlane, and last night he went to his home at 342 East Sixty-fifth Street. He found the man on a near-by corner. He had two bankbooks which showed that on March 14 he had deposited $240 in the Bowery Savings Bank and $360 two days later.

Williams arrested him and found Mrs. McFarlane in the house. She had $47 on her. Both were locked up in Headquarters. McFarlane said the money was the savings of years.

It was said at the hotel last night that McFarlane had been a window cleaner on the sixth floor of the hotel, the floor on which Mr. Hammill's apartments are located.

MR. CLEVELAND'S BIRTHDAY.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, March 17.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland, whose visit to Lakewood will make him celebrate his seventy-first birthday to-morrow away from home, is expecting his family over from Princeton to spend the day with him. Mrs. Cleveland left Lakewood for Princeton this morning, and will return with the children to-morrow.

The management of the Lakewood Hotel, where he is staying, will present a birthday cake to Mr. Cleveland, bearing the requisite number of candles, and every effort is being made to make the day as pleasant for him as possible.

Mr. Cleveland ventured out on a long walk to-day to the Cleveland cottage, known as the "Little White House." He appears to be gaining rapidly after his recent illness.

"I took the longest walk to-day that I've had for nine months," he said on returning. "I do not yet know how long I shall remain here. I am feeling very well."

Mr. Cleveland's physician, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, came here to-day to pay Mr. Cleveland a short visit.

PROTESTANTISM IS PASSING.

Episcopal Rector Declares Unity Must Be Based on Apostolic Succession.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 17.—The Rev. Frederick Burgess of Christ Episcopal Church to-day predicted the decay and downfall of Protestantism, eulogized the new Catholicism, and the sentiments were received with enthusiasm by the body of Episcopal clergymen whom he addressed.

"Protestantism is spent and is passing," said he, "and we want some sort of Catholicism. If there is to be any visible church unity at all, it must be on the basis of the apostolic succession. Protestantism lacks the guarantee of continuity based upon that most despised and much maligned succession.

"I have heard it said that New York will be a fine place when it is finished. So it will be with the Catholic Church. The Church is not a mutual admiration society of mature saints. Puritanism is responsible for this theory, and it is responsible for much of the difficulty people have about the church to-day."

KEPT THE GREEN FLAG UP.

Even American Guns Could Not Make Irish Skipper Take It Down.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 17.—When Capt. Moore of the British steamship Howthead, from Belfast, Ireland, here for a cargo, dressed his ship to-day in honor of St. Patrick's Day, he put the green emblem above the Stars and Stripes. This violation of the United States law that requires Old Glory always to be at the top when displayed in a United States port, was promptly called to the commander's attention by a Government Inspector, but he bluffly refused to comply with the law.

Not until he received a formal demand from the United States Collector of Customs, accompanied by an order for the revenue cutter to stand ready and a threat to call a gunboat into service unless the position of the flags was reversed, did the Irish skipper yield, and then only to haul down the American flag and leave the green one up.

$4,000 for a Prize Bull Calf.

Special to The New York Times.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., March 17.—E. H. Dollar of Heuvelton, N. Y., turned over to C. S. Averill of Syracuse a thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian bull calf aged 9 months, for which he received $4,000. The calf's mother is Pontiac Rag Apple, the champion milker of the world, which Mr. Dollar sold to Field Brothers of Vermont for $8,000.

DUKE IN WASHINGTON WITH MISS ELKINS

Accompanies Her and Her Mother from Florida and Goes to Italian Embassy.

AN ENGAGEMENT EXPECTED

D'Abruzzi Said to be Willing to Sacrifice His Succession to the Throne of Italy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Duke of the Abruzzi, cousin of the King of Italy, arrived in Washington to-day from Palm Beach with Mrs. Stephen Elkins and her daughter Katherine, whose friends expect an early announcement of her engagement to the royal Duke. He is at the Italian Embassy, and refuses to see any one.

Once in a while it happens in real life just as the romancers tell about it in their novels.

Here is the royal Duke of the Abruzzi, cousin of the King of Italy, who might by a not at all impossible chain of circumstances be called to the throne himself, in love with Miss Katherine Elkins, a most charming American girl, forsaking his official duties, and preparing to renounce his benefit of royalty for her sake, traveling secretly to America as plain Mr. Sarto to enjoy the happiness of her society, and eagerly declaring that he will not return to his native country until he can take her with him as his bride, at the same time asserting that he will start for home soon after Easter.

And meanwhile, from the official seat of his royal cousin and master come all sorts of indications of dire wrath at his doings, with formal denials, first of his whereabouts and next of his reported engagement, and then the assertion that within a few days formal announcement will be made of his betrothal to a Princess royal of England, the same, in fact, whom report selected a few years ago to be Queen of Spain, but who was not the Queen because of the contrary choice of the young Alfonso himself.

Duke Not Troubled.

The dispatches from Rome make very evident the state of feeling in the royal family over the romance of the Duke of the Abruzzi, but that young man himself has not given any sign as yet of caring over much about anything but his own feelings.

The close friends of Miss Elkins have known ever since early last Summer, now almost a year, that the Duke of the Abruzzi was her devoted admirer. They met at a reception at the Italian Embassy here. The Duke had come to America in command of the Italian warships sent to take part in the festivities at Jamestown, and was in Washington for his share in the social functions following upon the presence of the foreign warships in Hampton Roads.

From the moment he met Miss Elkins it was evident to all who saw them that she had made a deep impression on him. He not only lost no opportunity to be in her company, but he developed a ready wit in making such opportunities.

Then the Italian warships sailed back to Italy, with the Duke in command, and society here, having affairs of its own to occupy it, straightway forgot the romance of the American girl and the royal Duke. But in the Summer Miss Elkins went abroad with her mother, as she had been accustomed to do for several years, and now society is remembering here and there a stray hint it had then, but did not treasure, as to what was going on in the development of this interesting story.

Miss Elkins Neglected Her Horses.

But Miss Elkins returned to America in the Fall with no announcement to make, and the usual round of dinners, dances, and receptions began with nobody remembering anything at all about the Duke of the Abruzzi. It was noticed, however, that Miss Elkins was not pursuing her usual round. She is an expert whip and a devoted hunter.

Every Winter heretofore she has put in a good share of each month at The Plaines, where she is a member of the exclusive Orange County Hunt Club. She has always kept three or four thoroughbreds there, and her principal delight was in keeping them in condition. This Winter she has been at The Plaines but little, nor has she taken the prominent part in the social life of the National Capital that has been her custom in other years.

Miss Elkins went to New York with her mother to attend the Gerry-Harriman wedding, and when, after that it was announced that they were going to Florida for a brief stay, her friends here took it as only what was to be expected. But just about that time the Duke of the Abruzzi concluded to make a brief run to Florida also.

He took passage on a steamer for Havana, sailing as Signor Ludovico Sarto, and accompanied only by his valet. Havana is but a short distance from Miami, Fla., with frequent connection by steamer. Thus it happened that one day, when the Havana steamer came to the pier in Miami, Mr. Sarto was aboard, and Mrs. Elkins, with her daughter, was in Miami, waiting to meet him.

Recognized at St. Augustine.

They went to Palm Beach. For the last few days letters have been coming to Washington society women from their friends at Palm Beach, asking wondering questions about the "new man" with Miss Elkins. Nobody at Palm Beach knew him, and somehow it happened that nobody got a chance to meet him. The letters told how completely his time was devoted to Miss Elkins, but no one suspected his identity.

It was not until the little party went to St. Augustine the other day that the Duke of the Abruzzi was recognized.

Of course this news started at once all sorts of speculation as to what would happen to the Duke in case he persisted in his desire to marry Miss Elkins and she did not refuse. The official announcement from Rome that the Duke was at sea on his way home furnished the first indication of the attitude of the Italian royal family.

The promptness with which this announcement was proved untrue by the arrival here of the Duke with Miss Elkins this morning has at once served to cast the suspicion of romance-loving society on the accuracy of to-day's dispatch from Rome regarding the forthcoming announcement of his betrothal to the Princess Patricia.

The party arrived on the Florida special this morning and drove at once to the

TEN YEARS FOR STOESSEL.

The Czar Rejects His Plea for a Full Pardon.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 17.—The Emperor to-day confirmed the sentence passed upon Lieut. Gen. Stoessel and accepted the court's recommendation for commutation of the death sentence to ten years' imprisonment in a fortress.

The former commander of Port Arthur ineffectually petitioned for a full pardon.

WILL WALK TO QUEENS.

Last Gap in New Blackwell's Island Bridge to be Filled To-day.

The east span of the big Blackwell's Island Bridge will be "hitched up" today, and for the first time it will be possible to walk from Manhattan to Queens. There is a gap of 75 feet between the two ends at present, but to-day there will be swung into place a piece of steel weighing 20 tons, 75 feet long, 22 inches wide, and 4 feet deep, which will span the gap and literally complete the bridge.

The first party to cross the bridge will be the official party, consisting of the Mayor, President of the Board of Aldermen, members of the Bridge Department, and other city officials, who will make the trip some time to-day.

DIAMONDS MAY BE CHEAPER.

Transvaal Government Forced Premier Co. to Withdraw from Syndicate.

LONDON, March 17.—Under pressure exerted by the Transvaal Government, which is entitled to 60 per cent. of the company's output, the Premier Diamond Mining Company has definitely refused to renew its agreement with the diamond syndicate. It announces that it will market its own output after this month.

The fact that the agreement is not to be renewed means that war will be declared by the Premier Company against the De Beers Company, and the general opinion is that diamonds will be cheaper. The syndicate has in the past practically controlled the world's output in diamonds, amounting to about $50,000,000 annually.

ETHEL JACKSON FAINTS AGAIN

Actress Fell After the Second Act, but Went on Later.

Miss Ethel Jackson, the Sonia of "The Merry Widow" Company, fainted last night as she left the stage at the close of the second act. Miss Jackson fell in the wings, so that persons far down in front of the orchestra saw her. There was prolonged applause, and at last Donald Brian stepped to the footlights and explained that Miss Jackson had been suddenly taken ill and could not respond.

In the meantime behind the scenes Miss Jackson's physician, Dr. Hartwell, was busy reviving the actress, and when the curtain rose on the third act Miss Jackson resumed her part. She was loudly applauded for her pluck.

GEORGETOWN STUDENTS RIOT.

Refused Permission to Celebrate, They Turn Hose on a Priest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—More than 150 students in the Georgetown University to-day celebrated St. Patrick's Day by engaging in a riot, nearly drowning one of the Jesuit fathers with a stream from a fire hose, smashing crockery, and marching from the university in a body. To-night twenty were expelled when they returned from a day in the city, and 130 have been suspended.

The trouble had its beginning yesterday, when Father Buell refused to grant the students' request for a holiday to-day in honor of St. Patrick. Early this morning the row started.

ROOSEVELT THE WHOLE THING

New Citizen's Idea of Our Government —Examiner Passes Him.

Although Michael J. Futh's knowledge of the government of this country tended toward glittering generalities, he was admitted to citizenship yesterday in Newark by Judge Jay Ten Eyck after an examination by Assistant United States District Attorney Harrison P. Lindabury.

"What form of government do we have?" asked Mr. Lindabury.

"A Roosevelt government," said Mr. Futh.

"I guess that's right," said the examiner, "but it is rather general. What is the government?"

"All Roosevelt."

Inquiry showed that Futh understood the electoral system and was familiar with the Constitution, and he was admitted to citizenship.

MRS. FIALA SAVES CHILDREN.

Wife of the Explorer Carries Them from Her Burning Home.

While Mrs. Anthony Fiala, wife of the Arctic explorer who led the Ziegler expedition on a search for the pole, was alone with her three small children in her home at 231 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, at 8 o'clock last night, the house began to fill with smoke. The children were asleep on the third floor.

Mrs. Fiala ran upstairs and wrapping them in an Eskimo robe, carried them down to the street. Then she sent in a fire alarm. The firemen put out a small blaze that had started in the basement from an unknown cause. The damage was about $300.

On the top floor were stored the records of the Ziegler expedition as well as many souvenirs of the trip, valued at $6,000 by Mr. Fiala. These were not injured.

CARNEGIE SEES ROOSEVELT.

Won't Tell Object of His Call—Has Golf Date with Rockefeller.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—"I have the highest respect for John D. Rockefeller. I think he is a much abused man. I intend to play a game of golf with him in a short time, and I'll beat him," said Andrew Carnegie as he was leaving the White House to-day. Mr. Carnegie was answering a question about the much heralded story that he and the Standard Oil king were at loggerheads over the score of a game of golf.

"Of course," he added with an amused expression, "I don't know how things will come out if we play the game on Mr. Rockefeller's links. If we do I'll have to keep a sharp eye on him, as he knows the game and plays it with great earnestness."

Mr. Carnegie would not discuss the object of his visit to the White House, and remarked that he understood the President had "other plans" when asked about a possible third term.

100 MEN RULE NATION, SAYS LA FOLLETTE

TO SATISFY THEIR GRUDGES

Submits Names in Attack on Aldrich Bill—Railroad Bond Feature of Measure Eliminated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Congress was electrified to-day by the sudden elimination of the railroad bond feature from the Aldrich Currency bill, and later by a bitter attack on the measure by Senator La Follette, in which he charged that it was the legislation most desired by the comparatively small clique which has succeeded in dominating the finances of the country. The business of the Nation, he declared, has gradually been centralized until it is directed by the men who control the New York banks, and these men number less than one hundred.

Aldrich's renunciation of the clause of his measure admitting railroad bonds as a basis for the issuance of emergency currency occasioned astonishment. This renunciation was made in committee this morning before the Senate met. Other minor concessions were made, but the railroad bond feature overshadowed everything else. At first it was believed that the action was taken to embarrass La Follette, whose address was understood to be leveled principally at this phase of the measure.

It is admitted, however, that a different influence animated the Finance Committee. Allison of Iowa and Long of Kansas are having serious trouble in their race for re-election. In Iowa the veteran Allison is being pressed hard by Gov. Cummins, in Kansas ex-Assistant Postmaster General Bristow is causing uneasiness to the friends of Long.

Both Allison and Long could not vote for the Currency bill were the railroad bond feature allowed to remain in it. It would mean their political deaths. For that reason the two Senators made a personal and earnest appeal to Aldrich to relieve them from a dangerous and ungraceful position. Aldrich surrendered.

La Follette Says Panic Was Plotted.

La Follette was late in rising to address the Senate. When the announcement was made that the railroad bond feature had been stricken from the currency measure friends hurried to him. It was necessary that he revise his speech somewhat, for the greater part of it had been written with especial reference to this feature.

He declared that the trouble originated through the centralization of business in the hands of a few men. These men, he charged later, had plotted to bring about the recent panic to satisfy business, legislative and political grudges, and to advance their own selfish interests.

"I have here a list of about 100 men," he said, waving a paper at the Senate, "who control the industrial, financial, and commercial life of the American people. In the grasp of these 100 men is the destiny of the Republic. The country does not seem to realize how closely allied are the great banking houses of the money centres to this centralization."

The list submitted was not read, for the reason that it contained the name of Senator Depew. It also contained the names of ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton, two former members of the Cabinet in C. S. Fairchild and Paul Morton, and a former Controller of the Currency in Charles G. Dawes. The list follows:

Tangled Reports of the Treasury.

Early in his remarks Mr. La Follette intimated that investigation of the alleged iniquities of the financial system was hampered by reason of the manner in which the United States Treasury made its reports. He traced the trouble he had encountered in getting the desired information.

"The closeness of the connection between centralized banks and the Wall Street interests," he said, "unfortunately cannot be traced clearly through the tangled reports of the Treasury Department. It would seem that the Treasury, wise to the drift of things, would have remedied this. Its attention has been called to it time and again, but without result."

In spite of the difficulty encountered La Follette declared he had compiled some striking figures. In his statistical argument he said that the National banks had increased to a remarkable extent their investment in stocks and bonds, which form the basis of speculation in Wall Street. He said the ratio of such investments made from the deposits in National banks' vaults rose from 72.10 per cent. in 1890 to 162.10 per cent. in 1907.

He attacked in vigorous language the connection of National banks with trust companies, often organized by the banks themselves, through the medium of which the banks were able to flout the National banking laws. These banks, he said, were thus enabled to deal with themselves in a manner that meant great profit for themselves and equally great detriment to the people.

At this juncture, following an attack of the Standard Oil and Morgan groups of banks in New York, La Follette engaged in a sensational clash with Aldrich. The Senator announced flatly that he would prove the connection of the Standard Oil Company with the bill. He went even further and declared he would show conclusively that the railroad bond feature of the measure was dictated by the same power.

"I would call to the attention of the Senator," said Aldrich, rising, "that the National City Bank, through its Vice President, Mr. Vanderlip, has fought the bill, as have practically all the other bankers of New York City."

"I will ask, then, what Mr. Morgan thinks of it?" challenged La Follette, bristling with excitement.

"I do not know what Mr. Morgan thinks of it," was the reply.

"It should be easy to guess," snarled La Follette. "A very good idea was to be gained by observing the beaming countenance of Mr. Morgan as he sat in the gallery of this Chamber and listened with pleased attention to the speech of the Senator from Rhode Island."

The Senator then declared the financial interests of the country were in the control of two great financial organizations. One of these was known, he said, as the Standard Oil group, with the National City Bank as its head; the other was the Morgan group, having for its head the National Bank of Commerce.

"These two organizations," he charged, "control not only the New York banks, but through their connections their power reaches out and controls the whole country.

"The National City Bank has twenty-three Directors, while the National Bank of Commerce has thirty-nine. The names of these fifty-two men will be found on the list I have just submitted. An examination of the Directorates of the two financial institutions shows that their interests are growing so close that ultimately the two banks will be knit together and a great financial monopoly become a reality."

La Follette charged that Directors of the Standard Oil bank are to be found on the Directorate of the Morgan institution and vice versa. The fifty-two men, together, also, are to be found on the Directorates of 1,007 commercial, industrial, and transportation organizations.

Banks' Connection with Speculation.

When he had traced the connection of the great New York banks with the industrial, commercial, and transportation centralization of the country, Mr. La Follette sought to establish the connection of the banks with speculation. The principal feature of his argument was that the banks engaged in the floating of railroad and other bonds.

About this time a little knot of Republican Senators had gathered around Depew across the Chamber from where La Follette was speaking. Depew, apparently, was telling one of his notable stories. There was a low buzz of conversation. La Follette stopped. There was an impressive pause, broken only by the chuckles of the little knot of men around the Senator from New York.

"I will wait," said La Follette, and his tones fell with cutting distinctness, "until the Senators on the other side of the chamber conclude their conversation."

The conversation ceased abruptly. A moment later there was a quick dispersal of the group.

"The control of these great banks," resumed Mr. La Follette, "is in the hands of men who are interested in a speculative way in concerns having bonds for sale. They are in control of the depositors' money, not only the deposits of New York, but the deposits of the country. The great banks of the Nation have ceased to be the safeguards of the country, and have become the promoters of speculation.

"Trained men who in years gone by were at the head of New York banks have either been displaced or are under the control and are compelled to obey the commands of men who are not bankrs. This control of mony makes possible the creation of prosperity or the precipitation of periods of distress.

Provides for Raids on Treasury.

"This is an enormous power to place in the hands of any group of men. Inflation and speculation must have money. The public refused it. What was the result in the recent panic? What was left? The National Treasury—the last resort of the frenzied speculator. This legislation provides the means for periodic raids on the public funds."

Mr. La Follette charged that the panic was brought about as the result of a plot, in which the New York "one hundred" were concerned. The public, he said, refused to buy stocks that were watered until they presented little else. The market was uneasy, and the high financiers got together to teach the country a lesson, wipe out some old scores, and pave the way for currency legislation.

"There was no commercial reason for the panic," said La Follette, "but there were business, legislative, and political reasons that brought it about. There were business scores to settle, the third-term movement had to be headed off, and it was necessary to make preparations for the passage of this legislation. This bill is drawn in the interests of Wall Street and the 'system.' The panic was the result of a plot."

Mr. La Follette then pictured the fight between the Heinze-Morse combination and the Standard Oil and Morgan groups. He said Morgan was especially wroth with Morse, while Standard Oil had long awaited opportunity to wipe off old scores with Heinze. The two great groups got together, with the result that they forced the surrender of the Morse shipping consolidation, broke the Heinze-Morse bank, drove Heinze's brother and other brokers into bankruptcy, and, to use La Follette's words, "picked up Heinze on the way."

With the panic at its height, said the Senator, Morgan and the Standard Oil determined to bring it to an end with spectacular suddenness. The object of the panic, he said, had been accomplished.

"Morgan and the Standard Oilers," said La Follette, "arranged a fitting finale for the panic, a dramatic finish. It would be a grand thing for them to come to the rescue of the country at the proper time in the rôle of saviors of the public credit. It would invest them with a halo almost sublime."

He then traced the liberation by Morgan and Rockefeller of $25,000,000, and declared it was done with due regard to stage effect and only when the spotlight was turned upon the Morgan-Standard Oil combination. He denounced those who termed either Morgan or the Standard Oil group philanthropists or unselfish financiers.

FOOD

APPENDICITIS

Grape-Nuts as a Reconstructing Food.

The number of cases of appendicitis which get well by proper feeding and nursing, is not less remarkable than the number of cases which were formerly operated on only to find that the operation was unnecessary.

While looking for the cause of this disease, it is well to remember that excessive starch fermentation may be considered a frequent cause, and that suggests more care in the use of starchy foods.

Grape-Nuts can be retained on the most sensitive stomach and is extremely nourishing—just the ideal food for appendicitis cases.

"Last Spring I was taken ill with appendicitis," writes an Ind. man. "The doctor told me not to be alarmed, for he would do the best he could to save me from the operating table.

"He advised me to eat nothing for two weeks, during which time I became so weak I could hardly move. The trouble began to leave me and I began to eat fruits and milk, but I did not regain the strength I had before I was sick.

"A friend of mine recommended Grape-Nuts. I tried it and it worked wonders with me. I soon began to gain in strength, and in a month was as strong as ever.

"I don't think I ever used a food that did me so much good. I now weigh 160 lbs., as against 130 before I was sick, all due to Grape-Nuts and regular exercise.

"My muscles are like iron, and I can do the hardest work. Being employed in a printing office, I have to think a lot, and my mind is clear, thanks to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

FORECAST FOR RACING WEATHER TO-DAY — Fair for leading cars, probably rain and colder for others.

Special to The New York Times.

COBRE, Nevada, March 17.—After running through several sandstorms the Thomas car, leader in the Paris Matin-NEW YORK TIMES race from New York to Paris, arrived in this town, 182 miles from Ogden, at 9 o'clock to-night. The sandstorms had made the going bad and had delayed us several times, while the members of the party who had not provided themselves with proper goggles suffered greatly from their eyes.

After we started from Ogden yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, we did not stop until we had reached Promontory at 9 o'clock. Instead of finding good roads, as we had expected, we had the worst kind of going. Aside from that, the trip to this point was uneventful.

After sleeping as best we could at this out-of-the-way place, which has not had even a telegraph station since the route of the Southern Pacific was changed, we arose in the darkness, and at 5:15 were again on the way. Ahead of us went the little Reo pilot and a Stoddard-Dayton pilot.

The roads were even worse for a time than those we had met east of Promontory, and at various times we were compelled to stop to devise means to get over some of the bad places. We had finally to take to the old tracks of the Southern Pacific. Occasionally we got a bump that shook us all up severely. All the time the weather was very windy, although the skies were clear, and the dust was stirred up in a bad way and flew into our faces. Some of the poor unfortunates who had not good goggles had their eyes completely put out of service for a time. They were glad enough to get to a place where they could wash them out.

There were other unpleasant features about the day that will make all of us remember it. We stopped at Lucin, Utah, 140 miles from Ogden, for something to eat, but when it was placed before us we were unable to take it, hungry as we were. We decided it would be best to push on to the next point. When we arrived at Montello every man on the car was ready to eat almost anything. It was well that this was so, for all we could get, when we ran in there at 6:40, was a lovely spread of salt mackerel and tea. There was nothing to be done but to push on to Cobre, and here to-night we are indulging in a good, square American meal that is making us feel civilized again.

To compensate us for our trouble we had several stretches of good roads, and over these we made time that enabled us to put a good day's run behind us.

LITTLE REST FOR THE ZUST.

Italians Hurry On in Wyoming and Hope to Catch the Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

GRANGER, Wyoming, March 17.—After a hard day's run in which only thirty miles were made, the Italian car in the New York to Paris race arrived here at 8 o'clock this evening. The car will stop here to-night and leave for the West at an early hour to-morrow morning.

Special to The New York Times.

GREEN RIVER, Wyoming, March 17.—The Italian Zust car, which made 110 miles yesterday over one of the worst stretches of road in Wyoming, arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning, continuing its race to overtake the American car, which is leading in the race from New York to Paris. It left Rock Springs at 8:30 o'clock this morning and arrived here two hours later. The fifteen miles between the two places presented fairly good traveling over the old Overland stage route, and another good stretch of thirty miles is ahead to Granger. From Granger west, however, the car has troubles to face once more.

It left Green River with only delay long enough to adjust a new set of Pirelei tires and to replenish its supply of gasoline. The Italians were delighted at the distance record they had made yesterday, and declared they would equal it to-day, getting into Ogden to-morrow if possible. The stretch through the Echo and Weber Cañons, which cost the Thomas car twenty-four hours, is regarded with some qualms, however.

The foreigners are extremely anxious to get started from Ogden over the better roads promised by the Southern détour, and believe by day and night running there they can overtake the leader and arrive first at San Francisco. They are enthusiastic in their praise of the uniformly generous treatment they have been accorded throughout the West.

FIREWORKS FOR DE DION.

St. Chaffray Hears a College Yell and Some Tall Western Stories.

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 17.—Six hundred miles of plains, the distance from Paris to Nice, is the run we are making to reach the Rocky Mountains. We have been acclaimed by the Americans as we have speeded to make the distance. At night, from North Bend to Rogers, the people all along the way were setting off fireworks in honor of the passage of the only De Dion car. Boys were shooting guns and lighting red lights. Automobiles, crowded with men and students, resounded with cries of "Ko-le-la! Hip, hip, hurrah! De Dion, De Dion, De Dion!" and everybody in the street shouted just the same.

Sunshine has something to do with the natures of men, and the warmth of the South of France is to be found in the American West. Look at the gay farmers and at their cottages. The farmers are gay even if they are unfortunate. The city named after the celebrated Columbus, which is just forty years old, has all of its homes surrounded by handsome trees and gay grounds, like the wealthiest mansions of the rich Prairie Avenue in Chicago.

It is wonderful. Forty years ago wild Indians and buffalo were the inhabitants, and the fields which we have now visited were absolutely uncultivated. On the prairies now the poorest farmer has 2,000 acres in his farm, each acre worth more than $50. A respected farmer has at least twelve children and an inhabitant of a town fifteen.

The trouble is that the ratio of girls is four to one to the boys. Does that make trouble? I found the fathers proud of their daughters, and these nice persons all dressed as finely and as well as an Eastern typewriter girl who has set out to marry a banker.

Young America is going to be more numerous than the elder.

BOURCIER ST. CHAFFRAY.

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 17.—The French car De Dion in the New York to Paris race left here at 7:30 o'clock this morning for Cheyenne, expecting to make an extraordinary run to the foothills of the Rockies without a stop, if possible, but broke down three miles outside of the town, and had to return this afternoon in tow of horses. The car broke a spring, and will be laid up for at least a day, and perhaps two, until the extra springs sent on to Cheyenne can be returned here for the car. The car has 362 miles to make to Cheyenne, but St. Chaffray was confident that he could make the distance by staying thirty hours at the wheel over the hard roads between the two places. He says he will make the effort on Thursday, when he thinks he will get under way again.

GERMAN CAR IN OMAHA.

Lieut. Koeppen Hopes to Make Fast Time to the Mountains.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., March 17.—Covered with Iowa mud and dust the German Protos car in the New York to Paris race reached Omaha at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and is lying up for the night, while Lieut. Koeppen is being feasted at three different banquets to-night by as many different German societies and organizations. The car is in good condition for a fast run across Nebraska tomorrow.

The Germans left Denison, Iowa, sixty-seven miles east of Omaha, early this morning and, except for stopping at Missouri Valley for luncheon, came through to this city, making the run in eight hours. Between Denison and Omaha is the famous mudhole of Western Iowa, the entire distance being along creek beds. The Italian car took four days to make this run, while the first French car was five days between Denison and Omaha. By the time the Germans reached the stretch the mud had almost disappeared and no trouble was experienced.

Automobiles from Omaha went ten miles out to meet the Germans, and when the racer crossed the Missouri River it was leading a procession of fifty cars. At the west end of the bridge the Landwehr Verein of Omaha in uniform, the officers mounted on horses, met and took charge of the procession, which moved through the principal business streets of the city. Several bands were stationed along the line of parade, and thousands lined the streets.

While Koeppen and his men sleep, machinists will clean the Protos and prepare it for a fast run to the Rocky Mountains. A slight rain fell over Eastern Nebraska to-night, but not enough to interfere with the roads.

Lieut. Koeppen declared the hardships of the race from New York to Paris far greater than any one of the foreign contestants had anticipated.

"I have a good car, in perfect condition, able to make good speed," he said, "yet I find myself more than a month on the road and advanced only about 1,500 miles from New York, with over 18,000 miles to travel, all due to our lack of appreciation of the difficulties of the road. I expected to average from 100 to 150 miles a day, and find 50 miles a liberal allowance. The blizzard encountered in Indiana was amazing to Europeans in its severity. The mud of Iowa is more amazing, if possible. Both are equally effective in delaying progress.

"Our main trouble has been with tires. We should have had relays of tires on the road for us at various places, but we did not know what we faced. The supply which he counted on taking us across the country, with a liberal allowance for accident, took us only to Ames. There it was exhausted, and we could not go on without new ones. The tires we had sent to Seattle we could not get back, and we had to wait three days, unable to get on. It cost $300 to bring back the tires from Seattle to Grand Island, where we shall pick them up, and these large charges, with other expenses due to delays, have made the trip very costly.

"I shall go on to San Francisco by road and take the boat from Seattle to Alaska, and hope to get through there in spite of the late date at which I am bound to arrive at Valdes on account of our many delays."

MOTOBLOC IS LAID UP.

Godard Must Take It by Train to Omaha to Make Repairs.

Special to The New York Times.

CARROLL, Iowa, March 17.—The Motobloc car, in charge of Charles Godard, met with another mishap this morning outside of this place, and was towed in by horses.

M. Godard declared that he would have to ship the car to Omaha in order to repair it, and return to Carroll after repairing before proceeding on the road.

GASOLINE CACHED IN ALASKA.

Word Received at Fairbanks That the Supply Is Ready for Racers.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 15.—Word was received here to-day from the persons under contract to caché the gasoline along the trail from Valdez to Nome for the use of the automobiles in the New York to Paris race that the work has been completed.

All the plans outlined for the cars can now be carried out without delay.

LECTURE ON THE RACE.

Automobile Club Hears Orrel A. Parker and Montague Roberts.

Three hundred members of the Automobile Club of America last night saw the New York to Paris racers fighting their way through the snows of Indiana and gumbo mud of Iowa, and watched the Thomas car go over trackless plains and through defiles. They also realized something of the difficulties that stretch ahead of the New York to Paris racers, while Orrel A. Parker told the story of the race in an illustrated lecture in the clubhouse on Fifty-fourth Street.

After the lecture they shook the hand of Montague Roberts, who is largely responsible for the comfortable lead which the Thomas car has already opened up on its competitors, and listened to his description of some of the humorous incidents of his trip. The lecture was arranged to give the members of the club some idea of the nature of the undertaking. Most of them had witnessed the start of the race from Times Square on Feb. 12, and have followed since in the reports from the racing cars. None expected to meet Roberts. He wished to see the pictures, and he delayed his contemplated departure for Buffalo to attend. He was most surprised when President Colgate Hoyt introduced him to the assemblage.

Dr. Parker explained the nature of the race and the struggles of the cars in the Indiana blizzard and afterward. He then showed something of what they have to face in Alaska and Siberia. His pictures of the frozen north gave a somewhat exaggerated impression of the difficulties, since they were mostly Winter scenes taken during the height of the snowy season before the trails were broken. He explained that the trails were frozen hard in March and would support the weight of the automobiles, provided they arrived in the north before the thaw.

The views he showed of the frozen straits were most uncompromising, however, and convinced every one that the car that passed the packed field ice would accomplish a miraculous feat. He showed, too, the possibilities of crossing the strait when navigation opened in June, after a month's delay at Nome, and described what would await them on the other side when once they started from East Cape to Irkutsk. He also showed pictures of the Peking to Paris race and the great difficulties encountered there further impressed the gathering with the remarkable nature of the contest.

When Roberts was introduced he told many amusing incidents of the trip. His description of the night ride from Corunna to Kendallville in the first great Indiana trip, when the car spent thirteen hours in traversing eight miles, was most interesting.

Elkins home, where the Duke of the Abruzzi breakfasted with Mrs. Elkins and her daughter.

Then he drove to the embassy. Thereafter he disappeared. Callers at the embassy who asked either for the Duke of the Abruzzi or Mr. Sarto were met with a bland and mystified smile and informed that neither had arrived there as yet. There had been some talk to the effect that the Duke of the Abruzzi was coming, that was true, but, in point of fact, he had not come, and it could not be said whether or when he would come. All of which was just exactly as true as the story that he was on the ocean, and no more so.

But with the evident feeling at Rome the question interesting Washington is as to just how welcome the Duke is at the embassy just now.

A dinner in honor of the Duke was given at the Italian Embassy to-night. It was a quiet affair, only the members of the embassy staff being invited to meet Signor Mayor de Planches's royal guest.

Mrs. Elkins was greatly fatigued by the journey north, and was not at home to any but her most intimate friends to-day, nor was Miss Elkins.

It may be said on the best authority that whether the engagement of Miss Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi is formally announced here within the next few days or not, depends upon the decision of the young woman herself. Washington believes that any delay in the expected announcement will be due only to the conditions arising from the difference of faith.

Would Waive His Royalty.

The Duke has made it amply evident that he stands ready and anxious to waive the claims that devolve upon him from his royal connection. He would surrender his possible right of ascension to the Italian throne without the least hesitation, but it is recognized that the formality of that procedure requires some delay. Any difficulties that might arise from the difference of faith, it is expected here, would be readily removed through the close friendship between Cardinal Gibbons and Senator Elkins.

The Cardinal is always entertained at least once a season in the Elkins home here. Senator Elkins's daughter by his first marriage, Miss Elizabeth Elkins, became a Catholic during her father's service as Secretary of War. Her marriage to the late Edward Bruning took place in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, during her father's residence there.

The evident displeasure of the Italian royal family with the situation has naturally given rise here to the question as to the sort of reception Miss Elkins would have in Rome as the bride of the Duke of the Abruzzi, and it has been suggested that that is the principal condition which is deterring her in reaching a final decision.

DUKE CONFERRED WITH KING.

Obtained Leave of Absence—Rumored Engagement to Princess Patricia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 17.—In connection with the reports of the engagement of the Duke of the Abruzzi to Miss Katherine Elkins, it is recalled that the Duke came to Rome about the middle of February and had long interviews with the King and the Duke of Aosta, his eldest brother. The latter came purposely from Naples.

Now that D'Abruzzi is reported to be in America, these interviews are interpreted as a family council to discuss the question of his marriage to Miss Elkins.

Immediately on the conclusion of these interviews D'Abruzzi asked leave from the Minister of Marine and went to Spezia, where his battleship, the Regina Elena, was stationed. He gave his flag officer a letter to take to King Victor, adding that he would inform him of his address later. The Duke then left Spezia, accompanied only by his valet, and everybody thought he had gone to Paris, whereas his destination was St. Augustine, Fla., where Mrs. Elkins and her daughter were staying.

A recent rumor had it that the Duke was to become engaged to be married to Princess Patricia of Connaught, and that the official notice of the betrothal would be made on the arrival of Queen Alexandra and King Edward at Capodimonte, where they will visit the Duchess Elena d'Aosta toward the end of the month.

The Duke is the third son of Amadeo, Duca d'Aosta, who died in 1890, and the Princess Maria del Pozzo della Cisterna, and is, consequently, a cousin of the present King of Italy. He was born in Madrid in 1873, during the short reign of his father as King of Spain. He is known as an explorer. Nine years ago he ascended Mount St. Elias in Alaska, and two years later a member of the party led by him reached latitude 86 degrees 33 minutes north, thus beating Nansen's previous record and holding the world's record until Peary's achievement. In 1906 the Duke climbed the Ruwenzori, Central Africa, and for the first time fixed the exact altitude of these peaks.

With the exception of King Edward's daughter, Princess Victoria, Princess Patricia, the second daughter of the Duke of Connaught, brother of King Edward, is the only English royal Princess who remains unengaged and unmarried. She is 21 years of age to-day. Owing to the date of her birth—St. Patrick's Day—she has always been known as Patricia, although she was christened Victoria-Patricia.

VANDERBILT THIEF SENT UP.

Burglar Glad, Judge Sorry, That Five Years Is the Limit.

James Anderson, the negro burglar who was convicted last week of stealing $230 worth of silver from the house of W. K. Vanderbilt, 660 Fifth Avenue, on the night of Feb. 13, and who had previously served a sentence for robbing the houses of J. Pierpont Morgan and C. T. Yerkes, was sentenced by Judge Foster yesterday to five years in Sing Sing.

"And I only regret that I cannot give you more," said Judge Foster.

"Thank you, Judge, I'm glad you can't," remarked Anderson.

TAFT AND HUGHES SPEAK AT DINNER

claimed the latter as his great-great-grandfather, he got another ovation.

Of St. Patrick and what he did for Ireland the Governor spoke at length. He confessed to some interest in the researches that had led to the belief that St. Patrick was Welsh, for he said laughingly that he had Welsh as well as Irish ancestry. He declared that he did not believe in the man who tried to segregate the so-called "Americans" from the foreigners, and said that the very word "American" did not describe a stock or a race, but aspirations and loyalty to free institutions. He continued in part:

"We have got to do something for the newcomer; we have got to make him realize what our institutions mean; we have got to give him a helping and a brotherly hand. No American can afford to set himself aloof, and let us not forget that the greatest source of pride is in the contribution we have made to the life of this country, and the test of our own right to exult in our ancestry is what we do to maintain what they have so richly provided. What shall we do?

"We will, in the first place, let it be known to all who come here, and let it be asserted in season and continually that this is a country of law and order.

"Let it be known to all men that this is a country where every needed reform can be accomplished through orderly practices. Let it be known that the man who endeavors to excite agitation without providing the means of allaying it is an essential enemy of the institutions which are founded upon reason and can only be supported by care and deliberation in administration.

How to Preserve Government.

"We have a rich heritage. How shall we preserve it? My friends, you can preserve it by never asking of Government that you do not have a right as a citizen to receive. You can preserve it by remembering that the greatest enemy of our institutions is the man who tries to work them for his own benefit.

"I would give more for honest administration of the law and a vindication of our institutions before all who observe them by impartial and fair working according to the intent of the Constitution and the statutes than for volumes of legislation or impotent schemes for reforming human nature.

"The principles of Government are so simple, the things that we need to emphasize are so axiomatic. That for which we stand is that for which we profess, and all we need to do is in practice and actual life to live up to those things which in public we pretend to honor.

"My friends, I have no gloomy outlook. The men who came here from Ireland and from Germany, from France, and from Holland and are now coming from Russia and Austria and Italy seek this as the land of opportunity. It is the land of opportunity, but it must be the land of law; it must be the land of fairness; it must be the land of patience; it must be the land of reason; it must be the land where intelligence is dominant, and where everything is done in a way which the community coming from our schools, reinforced by study, can approve and take to heart, because it commands their judgment.

"The United States are full of men that you cannot buy. The community is replete with men who will die for the flag. And they are willing to serve the flag in peace, which is sometimes harder. Our great city is full of men who ask for naught but an opportunity to give the public something for which they expect no return.

"Let us appreciate the work that is done by our men upon the bench, by our men in legislative halls, by our men in the administration of government, who are really true to our ideals, and let us not fail on these anniversaries to take to ourselves the lesson to be derived from those noble men of the past who risked all that they might be of some benefit to their fellow-men, and, so doing, we shall prosper."

At the conclusion of the speech the applause was terrific. It lasted while the Governor left the dais and hurried away to another dinner. His speech evidently carried a lot of enthusiasm, for even the well-known Democrats applauded liberally.

The last speaker of the evening was Augustus Thomas, the playwright, who incidentally is a Bryan enthusiast. Mr. Thomas proceeded to make fun at the expense of the two previous speakers.

"It only goes to show," said Mr. Thomas, "what the exigencies of the campaign will do when a man is assigned to speak to the toast of 'The United States' and descends to the Blarney stone, and another speaker, given 'The State of New York,' rises to discuss the affairs of the Nation."

Mr. Thomas turned several jokes at the expense of Mr. Taft's girth, declaring that he reminded him of a man who was not measured, but was "surveyed" when he needed a suit of clothes. Of the Secretary's recent travels he expressed the belief that it was a "con-tour," but he declared that, as the Louisiana negroes would express it, "everybody loved him for his personal magnitude."

HUGHES IN BROOKLYN.

Governor Speaks to 400 at a Pouch Mansion Dinner.

Four hundred members of the St. Patrick Society of Brooklyn gathered early last evening in the Pouch Mansion, 345 Clinton Avenue, where they were to have their annual dinner. Word had gone out to the members that the Governor would speak before the dinner, as he had many other engagements.

At 7:30 the Governor arrived in an automobile. He was cheered heartily. He was escorted to a side room, where a reception was held. Borough President Coler introduced the diners to the Governor.

NO MERCY FOR GAMBLERS.

Republican Party Discredited if It Fails to Act, Hughes Says.

The West Side Republican Club, one of the strongest Republican organizations in the city, held a Hughes dinner at the Hotel Astor last night, and although the Governor did not arrive until late, and then spoke only for a few minutes, the diners cheered his name to the echo every time it was mentioned by the half dozen orators.

Mr. Hughes was presented as "Your Governor and your candidate for President." He began, "I seem always to be interrupting Mr. Woodruff." Then he jumped at once into serious things.

"We look forward with just solicitude to the event of the Autumn," said he. "I am desirous only that the people express their free will. I do not at all approve of the idea that because this is a Presidential year it is a time for inaction. Because it is a Presidential year the Republican Party should so act that the people can be sure that they can have confidence in it. Of late I have been working for the passage of anti-gambling legislation. And at last I am assured that those measures will be passed.

"What a thing it would be if the Republican Party should fail at this time. The party could not stand up under it.

"The Republican Party can never be successful when gag law prevails. Give the people free expression of their ideas, and never be afraid of their will. Then will we reduce agitation to the discussion of a particular issue, and not have it running wild."

Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott dilated at length on the achievements of the Republican Party. Gov. Hughes also spoke at the dinner of the Delta Upsilon fraternity at the Waldorf.

COOKE NOT A LOSER IN LIFE'S STRUGGLE

Eloping Rector of Hempstead Says He Is Able to Fight the World and Win.

MISREPRESENTED, HE SAYS

Has Given No Despairing Interview and Has Said No Unkind Word About Mrs. Cooke.

San Francisco, Cal., March 17.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I thank you for the opportunity you extend to me to correct a false and "yellow" article which was published in a San Francisco paper and probably by New York papers, purporting to be a statement from me that I had lost in the fight against the world. I never made such a statement, nor have I ever been interviewed by a reporter of the paper in question.

Some papers seem to take a savage delight in keeping my unfortunate situation before the public. I still believe that the world owes my family and myself a living. I am perfectly qualified to support us. In the same article words were put in my mouth which made a most unkind reference to Mrs. Cooke. I have never given a statement to any person that ever placed her at a disadvantage or was unkind.

If the press will only let me fight my fight, no matter my disadvantage, I will win. I have not lost faith in God or man, my college motto is "Nil desperandum." The fact that I have gained twenty pounds since I began manual labor and was employed as a foreman at $5 a day after being in San Francisco a week proves that I am able to fight the world and win.

WERNER CAR IS DISABLED.

Frenchmen Go to St. Louis to Have Broken Parts Repaired.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 17.—Maurice Dreghe, who is driving the Werner car which is attempting to travel from New York to Paris in place of M. Lelouvier, who started out with the machine, arrived here by train this afternoon with his companion. He left the car at Greenville, Ill., where it broke down early this morning, bringing with him the broken parts for repair. As soon as the work is done he will return and proceed, going west by way of St. Louis, Kansas City, and Cheyenne, and then north from Granger to Portland, preparatory to shipping to Alaska.

In the journey from New York, which he left Feb. 11, he was unable to cross the Allegheny Mountains, and was compelled to ship the car from Cumberland, Md., to Columbus, Ohio, where he took up the road work again. He declared to-day that he expected to reach Paris by July.

SPERRY TO BRING THE FLEET HOME

Chosen to Succeed Admiral Evans, Who Will Haul Down His Flag on May 8.

REPORTS HIS ILLNESS

Evans Says Physicians Order Him to Retire, but He Will Stick to Ship Until San Francisco Is Reached.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, after having completed his remarkable cruise in command of the battleship fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco, will haul down his flag on May 8, by reason of ill-health, to be temporarily succeeded by Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, commanding the second squadron of the fleet.

Admiral Thomas, because of his coming retirement in October, will be relieved of command upon the fleet's departure from San Francisco homeward bound, July 6, by Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, commanding the fourth division.

Capts. Seaton Schroeder, Richard Wainwright, and William P. Potter, who will be promoted shortly after the fleet sails, will be Admiral Sperry's assistants in the matter of flag command to bring the fleet home.

This programme was officially announced by Secretary of the Navy Metcalf this afternoon following a conference on the subject with the President at the close of the Cabinet meeting. The decision to relieve Admiral Evans so far in advance of his retirement was reached by the President and Secretary Metcalf upon receipt of a request by telegraph from the Admiral to-day, stating that the relief was asked for on the urgent recommendation of his physician because of the condition of his health. The physician has advised that the Admiral give up his ship at once or as soon as the fleet reaches the California coast, which will be early in April, but Admiral Evans, having received his orders from the President to take the fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco, is determined to complete the assignment before giving up.

MAGDALENA BAY, Lower California, March 13, (via San Diego, Cal., March 17.)—Rear Admiral Evans sat for several hours enjoying the semi-tropical sun to-day in an armchair placed on the after bridge of his flagship, the Connecticut. He pointed out the merits of the bay as a naval base, and regretted that its counterpart was not located on the southwestern shores of the United States.

"It would be a great thing for us," he exclaimed. "What a fine place for our purposes—deep water, high surrounding hills, and deserted shores, which permit of any range of target practice."

As he was speaking the Georgia, Admiral Emery's flagship, steamed within the anchorage radius of the fleet, returning from the target range. She went rapidly between the ships, making her way to her head of the division on the starboard bow of the Connecticut. As she moved into her position the anchor was let go, the chains rattled through the starboard porthole, and she came to a stop directly in line with the other vessels.

"Well done, Georgia," the Admiral remarked, almost casually. The words were repeated with a shout by an aide to the officer on the bridge, and up the mainmast shot the signal of commendation to the Georgia. The acknowledgment came back instantly.

Admiral Evans said it was very likely he would go out on the target range with the Connecticut when she engaged in her record target practice.

The Mexican gunboat Tampico arrived in the bay shortly before sundown last night and came to anchorage between the flagship and the town. She brought the Mexican Government officials, as had been anticipated.

Admiral Evans, upon leaving the fleet, will take leave of absence to the date of his retirement, Aug. 18.

The announcement that Admiral Sperry will bring the fleet home is in accordance with the plans the President made last Summer, when Admiral Sperry was directed to proceed home post haste from The Hague Peace Conference to take a division of the command. More recently the Administration drew up tentative plans for leaving the fourth division in the Philippines, under command of Admiral Sperry, and for the fleet to be brought home by Capt. Wainwright as commander in chief and Capts. Ingersoll and Schroeder. Within the past ten days, however, this plan was abandoned, and it was decided upon the arrival of the fleet at Magdalena Bay that it should return home intact.

Anticipating the purpose of the Administration to bring the fleet home under the three younger officers, Admirals Thomas and Emery both wrote to the department, after sailing from Hampton Roads, offering to leave the fleet for shore duty or other command till their retirement.

On May 6 the Atlantic fleet will be joined by the Pacific fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Dayton, and for a period of two days Admiral Evans will have the distinction of being the first American officer to command two big fleets, a command never heretofore held in the navies of the world by an officer of lower grade than Vice Admiral. Naval officials are still hopeful that Congress may revive the grade of Vice Admiral in order that Admiral Evans may have the higher salute upon bringing down his flag.

Admiral Sperry has had long and distinguished service in the navy. He is a native of New York, but is accredited to Connecticut in his appointment to the Naval Academy. He became a Rear Admiral in May, 1906. During the war with Spain Admiral Sperry was equipment officer in the New York Navy Yard.

Admiral Sperry is also in poor health, and it was against the advice of his physician that he joined the fleet for the cruise. His friends have been fearful that he would have to abandon the cruise before it was complete. There has also been some anxiety over the health of Capt. Wainwright as to whether he would be able to complete the cruise.

BERLIN, March 17.—Count Ernst Reventlow, the naval specialist, has published in the Tägliche Rundschau an appreciation of the voyage made by the American battleship fleet around South America. The writer doubts very much, however, that the naval strategists at Washington will advise the fleet to return to the Atlantic by the Suez Canal after it has visited Australia and the Philippines.

Count Reventlow, who is rather closely in touch with the German Admiralty, considers that the political effect of the American naval demonstration will be largely lost unless the fleet remains in the Pacific until the Panama Canal is completed. He commends, however, the wisdom of Washington in sending the fleet to Australia, saying the British alliance with Japan is hated in that country, and that Australia is looking toward the United States as her ultimate protector against the designs of the Japanese.

In other naval quarters compliments continue to be voiced on the performance of Rear Admiral Evans, and it is admitted that the arrival of all the warships in good shape at Magdalena Bay is something of a surprise. It had been expected that some of the vessels would come limping into port, or that they might even have to be towed in by the others.

ITALY WANTS FORMER BRIGAND

Pellegrino Mule Arrested at Request of Italian Ambassador.

Pellegrino Mule, Black Hand leader and former bandit, was arrested last night in his bakeshop, at 337 East Thirty-second Street, at the request of the Italian Ambassador, as a fugitive from justice on a charge of murder. Mule was locked up at Headquarters. He would not talk.

In February Mule was arrested, but was discharged for lack of evidence. He had at that time a paper with indentations which revealed the beginning of a Black Hand warning. At the bottom, said the police, could be traced the outline of the usual dagger and Black Hand lines.

Detective Petrosino has been looking up Mule's record abroad. According to Petrosino, Mule became the leader of a band of brigands who terrorized a district in Sicily and frequently kidnapped wealthy townspeople, carrying them into a mountain retreat and holding them there for ransom.

Ten years ago a man named Dagostino, so influential that it had been thought he was immune, was kidnapped and hurried off into the mountains. A ransom of $4,000 was demanded and paid.

But the carabinieri harassed the brigands, driving them from retreat to retreat, but never catching them, and finally it was believed that a man named Pumilia had been an informer against the brigands. Before he could flee he was caught one night, and the next day farmers near the village of Caltabellotto came upon his headless body swinging from a tree. The head was nailed to a post.

Again the carabinieri took the field, but when the band was finally rounded up it was found that Mule was not with them. He was never heard of again in Italy, but two years later an Italian opened the bakeshop in Thirty-second Street.

Detective Petrosino said last night that there could be no doubt that the New York baker and the brigand of Caltabellotto are one and the same man.

DROP WESTMINSTER CHURCH.

Presbytery Acts Against Congregation Long in Dissension.

Despite a long protest from John E. Heartt, an Elder and Treasurer of the Board of Trustees of the congregation the New York Presbytery at a special meeting at the Old First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street, yesterday, by unanimous vote, struck the name of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in West Twenty-first Street from its rolls. The Presbytery thus took the last step in a controversy over the church's affairs which, lasting for nearly four years, so affected the health of the late pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Lloyd Lee, that he died. The congregation dwindled until there was scarcely a corporal's guard left. Three weeks ago the church was closed.

On the records of the Presbytery all that there is left of the Westminster Church is its earlier honorable history. There is, however, in West Twenty-third Street a nameless property, worth $300,000, title to which is vested in the Presbytery's Board of Trustees, to do with as it may see fit. This is the former Westminster Church building and plant.

With the dissolution of the church disappears its Board of Elders, its deaconate, and Board of Trustees, and ousted as well, though the action had his entire approval and support, is the Rev. Dr. Harlan G. Mendenhall, who has been pastor for more than a year.

PLAN TO UNITE CITY COLLEGES

Mayor's Commission Would Abolish Separate Training Schools for Teachers

AND COLLEGE HIGH SCHOOLS

New System Aims to Avoid Present Useless Duplication of Work—Legislature Must Approve Plan.

After fifteen months of hearings and deliberation the commission appointed by Mayor McClellan in January last year "to report on the practicability of bringing into closer and more efficient relationship the institutions for collegiate, special and secondary training maintained by the city," has completed its task, and is about to make its report.

That report will contain recommendations, which, if carried into effect, will vitally affect the College of the City of New York, the Normal College, and the Training Schools for Teachers. It is practically certain that the commission will recommend:

1. Such a radical change in the relationship between the College of the City of New York and the Normal College as can be brought about only by legislative enactment.
2. An ultimate abandonment of the preparatory schools now being conducted in connection with both the City College and the Normal College.
3. An ultimate arrangement for the training of all city teachers in the City College and the Normal College, which will make the maintenance of the Training Schools for Teachers unnecessary.
4. The preparation of all students for the City College and the Normal College in the city high schools.
5. Such a scheme of articulation of all the schools of the city, or such a compactness in the city's educational plant that each part will fit into the other and nowhere will there be a duplication of work or waste of appropriations.

The commission has probably held its last meeting. It is certain that the report will be in the hands of the Mayor within ten days.

The commission as originally appointed by the Mayor, consisted of Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., President of the Board of Education; Chairman William N. Wilmer, Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Board of Aldermen; Controller Herman A. Metz, James Byrne, and Lee Kohns, the last two Trustees of the City College. Henry H. Sherman became a member of the commission on the death of Mr. Wilmer.

A man close to the educational system of the city declared yesterday that he understood the commission would recommend the complete consolidation of the City College, the Normal College, and the Training Schools for Teachers under a single Board of Trustees and a single President, with Deans for each of the institutions who should be next in authority to the President, and should personally represent him in the internal management of his own college.

One member of the commission, Lee Kohns, a Trustee of the City College, has urged upon the commission the complete abandonment of the Normal College plant as such, the complete unification of all three institutions within the plant of the City College. He told the commission that it was duplication and waste of money for the city to maintain departments in the City College and the Normal College for training teachers and also support the three training schools for teachers. Just what the plan of co-ordination for the City College and the Normal College is has not been published.

The report in its relation to the suggested co-ordination of the City College and the Normal College obtains new interest from the fact that if the two schools are to have eventually one head, the problem of selecting a President for the Normal College will be radically different. For more than a year the Normal College has been without a President, and the committee of the Board of Education which controls the Normal College has so far been unable to agree upon a man for the place.

Whatever plan the commission may recommend, it cannot go into effect for some time, even if it meets with the approval of the Mayor. It must be done ultimately by the Legislature.

Among those who advocated before the commission some form of complete consolidation were Edward M. Shepard, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the City College; Edward Lauterbach, an alumnus of the City College; ex-President Burlingham of the Board of Education, Miss Julia Richman, a Normal College graduate, and President John H. Finley of the City College, who urged an affiliation with the semi-educational institutions, such as the Museums of Art and Natural History, the Botanical and Zoological Gardens, the Aquarium, and the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

It is certain that the commission will recommend to the Mayor that the high schools of the City College and the Normal College be dispensed with ultimately, confining the colleges to the higher class of training.

Dr. Maxwell has assured the commission that with the completion of the Stuyvesant High School building there will be ample room in the high schools of Manhattan Borough to accommodate all the pupils in the high school department of the College of the City of New York and of the Normal College.

DYED DOG, NOW DEAD, IN COURT

Exhibit A in a Suit for Recovery of Money Paid for It Alive.

An embalmed Pomeranian dog, or at least a dog which was looked upon as a Pomeranian of high pedigree until some suspicious white spots appeared in his otherwise black coat, is the chief exhibit in a suit brought by Emil Goldnick, an automobile dealer, at 611 Ockton Place, the Bronx, against Jules Ferand, a dog fancier of 236 West Forty-sixth Street.

Another exhibit in the case is an annoying rash upon the skin of Mrs. Goldnick, which she says was contracted from that same Pomeranian dog, once her pet, but now stark and stiff, awaiting the second chapter of the legal proceedings which have been begun by his one-time owner. This rash, Mrs. Goldnick's lawyer says, she believes is nothing more or less than the mange, a disease common to dogs, but rarely if ever before known to attack human beings. Her diagnosis of the trouble is confirmed by her family physician and a veterinary who attended the Pomeranian in his last hours.

Goldnick's suit over the Pomeranian is for $50, the purchase price. He avers that the dog was sold through misrepresentations. The suit was brought before Magistrate Joseph in the Fifty-fourth Street Court, and decision was reserved.

Papers in a second suit against Ferand are now being drawn, in which Mrs. Goldnick asks $1,000 damages for the disease which she says she contracted from the alleged Pomeranian.

The story begins just before last Christmas. Mrs. Goldnick had long wanted a Pomeranian, as her husband knew, and he decided to give her one for a Christmas present. He visited Ferand's showrooms and picked out a handsome Pomeranian. The price was $125.

But when negotiations became warm for the purchase of that particular dog Mr. Goldnick learned that it had been sold. However, another, "just as good," was recommended to him by the dog fancier and the price was only $50. Mr. Goldnick says that the $50 dog "looked all right." He was a deep black, and seemingly intelligent and affectionate. He bought the dog, carried it home to his wife, and Mrs. Goldnick took a great fancy to it.

What happened after that was told before Magistrate Joseph. A little after Christmas several light spots began to appear on the dog's skin, and Mrs. Goldnick says that the disappointing discovery was made that charcoal had been used by some one to dye and disguise the dog. She told how she had supposed that her pet was of high pedigree, her husband having been assured that it was from one of the best kennels in the city.

But the worst was yet to come. The dog developed unmistakable symptoms of mange and refused to eat. A veterinary was called in, after Mrs. Goldnick had spent many days trying to restore her pet to health, and in petting him had permitted her face to come in contact with the spots.

The veterinary informed Mrs. Goldnick that besides the mange her pet was afflicted also with "ring worms." The Pomeranian died nearly two months ago and Mrs. Goldnick immediately had it embalmed..

When the case was called before Magistrate Joseph last Friday the dead dog was produced as "Exhibit A."

The defense of Mr. Ferand was that the dog developed the mange after it had left his showrooms, and that, in his opinion, the disease was the result of overpetting and overfeeding.

Isidor Kallet of Zuckerman & Kallet appeared for the Goldnicks and Noah Loder for Mr. Ferand.

DON'T SWEAR AT MR. METZ.

If You Do He'll Draw His Anti-Profanity Card on You.

Controller Metz has a new fad. Yesterday, whenever a visitor started to speak loudly to him he pulled a little coupon out of his pocket and handed it to the talker. On the coupon, which was very small, was printed:

"Please do not swear or use obscene or profane language."

A lot of the coupons had been sent to the Controller by the Anti-Profanity League, and he was highly pleased with them.

"Where did you get those things, Controller?" a stranger asked.

"Oh, some damn fool sent them to me," replied Mr. Metz.

HAITI WILL PERMIT REFUGEES TO LEAVE

British and German Cruisers at Port au Prince and Foreigners Are Unmolested.

BIG GUNS CAUSE A PANIC

French Minister Reports Fresh Executions, but the Government Denies Any Further Reprisals.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, March 17.—Under a decision taken by the Council of Ministers, the Government to-day authorized the sending on board the warships and out of the country of the authors of the last insurrection, who had taken refuge at the French, German, and Spanish Consulates at Gonaives.

The Government reserves for itself, however, the right to prosecute before properly appointed courts any persons who hereafter are implicated in uprisings, this action being conditional on the representatives of the foreign nations agreeing not to give asylum in case of further revolutionary movements being attempted. This measure of pacification, provided it is carried into effect, would contribute greatly to putting an end to agitations.

Gen. Celestin, the Minister of War, has returned to Port au Prince at the head of his troops, after having put down the revolutionists at Gonaives. He made a statement to-day in which he denied absolutely that the Government entertained hostile sentiments toward foreigners. President Nord Alexis and his Minister also gave assurances of the utmost good feeling toward all foreigners who were pursuing their duties peacefully in Haiti.

While conditions have been disturbed here for a considerable time, reaching their climax in the last week, there appears to be no present danger to foreigners residing here. The great majority of them seem to be attending to their business affairs in perfect security, and the President and the Government have proclaimed that order will be maintained at whatever cost.

Panic When Cruiser Salutes.

The British cruiser Indefatigable and the German cruiser Bremen have arrived here under orders from their Governments to give full protection to any foreign residents in Port au Prince. An American warship is expected at any moment.

At present the city is quiet, but there is an underlying current of anxiety, as evidenced by the fact that a veritable panic was caused by the booming of a heavy gun on the British cruiser when she saluted as she entered port last evening.

Officers and soldiers alike rushed precipitately to their posts, women and children ran about in seeming despair, crying hysterically, and it was some little time before they could be reassured and calm restored.

Gen. Derenoncourt, chief of the harbor force, said that the commander of the Indefatigable, after he had learned of the panic the shots had caused, evinced the greatest surprise and begged the General to express to President Alexis his regrets at having been the involuntary cause of so regrettable an incident.

Positive denial is made by the Haitian officials of the reports that other executions have taken place than those on Sunday morning, when ten or twelve conspirators, found, according to the Government's statement, with arms and munitions for revolutionary purposes in their possession, were shot to death.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Minister Furniss at Port au Prince, Haiti, in a dispatch to the State Department to-day, said:

"A special military court has been convened to try the military officials arrested yesterday."

It is the impression of officials here that the Haitien Government will make short work of this trial and that more executions are likely to follow. While the situation is regarded here as embracing little of international importance, it is recognized that the use of foreign Consulates by political refugees, particularly after the local Government makes the direct charge that such places of refuge are being made headquarters for continuing revolutionary endeavors, brings squarely to the front the question of the wisdom of granting refuge in any event. The position of this Government is decidedly against such practice.

As a further protection to American interests in the island, the cruiser Des Moines was ordered to proceed at once to Port au Prince from Guantanamo. The gunboat Eagle was dispatched there yesterday. It is estimated the Des Moines can make the trip in approximately fifteen hours. The only instructions given are that American interests shall be protected.

Reports Fresh Executions.

PARIS, March 17.—Official dispatches received here from Haiti indicate that the situation there is still critical for foreigners. M. Carteron, the French Minister, reports that fresh executions occurred last night, but he does not give the number. He says that previous to last night twenty-seven men had been executed. He described M. Lecomte, the new Minister of the Interior, as "bloodthirsty."

The correspondent at Port au Prince of the Temps says in a dispatch that the Government has decided to arrest all persons implicated in the conspiracy against it and to summarily execute all those caught with arms in their hands.

LONDON, March 17.—A brief dispatch was received at the Foreign Office to-day from the English Consul General at Port au Prince, saying that the outbreak in Haiti was undoubtedly anti-foreign in character.

BERLIN, March 17.—The German newspapers discuss the situation at Port au Prince sparingly, but here and there the idea crops out that Germany can properly expect the United States to take an energetic and leading part in protecting foreigners at Port au Prince and in imposing its advice upon President Alexis.

KAISER PUNISHES COUSIN.

Prince Joachim Dismissed from Army for Devotion to an Actress.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 17.—Emperor William has forced his second cousin, Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, to resign his commission in the German Army. This action was the direct result of the infatuation of the Prince with a Viennese soubrette, Marie Sulzer. He wished to marry her, but the difference in their station forbade such action. She then married Baron Liebenberg of Austria, in London, and left him after the ceremony. It was said at the time that a large sum of money had been promised to Baron Liebenberg to confer his title on Fraulein Sulzer and then permit a divorce.

For some reason the supposed bargain was not carried out. The Prince renewed his attentions to the actress, and in order to break off the affair the Kaiser about a year ago sent the Prince to the German African colony for service in the field. The young woman accompanied him part of the way.

When the Prince returned a few months ago the friendship was renewed, with the result that the Kaiser took summary action. Prince Joachim will not be permitted to wear the uniform again.

FEAR RIOTING IN BERLIN.

Socialists To-day Will Keep the Anniversary of the 1848 Fighting.

BERLIN, March 17.—Frederick von Moltke, the Prussian Minister of the Interior, was questioned in the Diet to-day by Herr von Arnim, Conservative, regarding the Government's programme in the matter of the Socialist suffragist demonstrations planned for Berlin to-morrow. The Minister replied that the Government was fully aware of the intentions of the Socialists, and that the police would be at their posts. He appealed to the population to remain quiet to-morrow, which is the anniversary of the barricading and street fighting of the revolution of 1848.

The Socialists have billed the city and its suburbs with calls for twenty-five mass meetings, where addresses on the suffrage will be heard

WON'T TOUCH WAR HOARD.

German Legislators to Borrow $65,000,000 Instead of Using Fund.

BERLIN, March 17.—Various members of the Appropriations Committee of the Reichstag have urged the Government to consent to the use of the war hoard of $30,000,000, which is kept in the Julius Tower at Spandau, for the current necessities of the empire, in preference to keeping such a great sum sequestered while the country borrows and pays interest to meet its deficits.

In the last thirty-seven years the Government has kept this store of gold for instant use. It wanted to be able to bring the troops together in an emergency without touching the other funds of the State or suffering even a day's delay in obtaining advances from the banks.

In reply to this proposal Secretary of the Treasury Sydow said the Government would not consent to this war treasure being diverted to general expenses, as it was an essential part of the general preparedness of the empire. When the attitude of the Government had been explained, the committee decided not to press it.

Under Secretary Twele has announced that the Government must borrow $65,000,000. He also asked authorization to increase the Imperial Treasury bills from $87,500,000 to $118,750,000. The Appropriations Committee agreed to this and then approved the entire budget.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

TOLEDO, Spain, March 17.—King Alfonso, who arrived in this city to-day, has added another escape from injury to his already long list of such fortunate occurences. On the outskirts of Toledo one of the automobiles carrying four army officers suddenly became unmanageable and dashed to the side of the road. It narrowly escaped wrecking the car in which the King was riding It then struck a tree and was overturned, and the four occupants were injured. King Alfonso alighted and went to the rescue.

BERLIN, March 17.—An incident in the debate in the Prussian Diet yesterday, when the estimates were being discussed, resulted in a challenge to a duel. Diederich Hahn, Agrarian, resented a remark by Herr Goldschmidt, Radical, and sent seconds to him. Goldschmidt refused to fight on ethical grounds.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 17.—An American firm has been successful in the competition instituted by the War Office to determine the best cartridge and pack-carrying equipment for infantrymen. Forty-six foreign and Russian companies submitted designs. It is probable that only a small trial order will be placed with the American firm, as funds for the complete re-equipment of the infantry branch are lacking.

30,000 IN PARADE FOR ST. PATRICK

69TH REGIMENT IN THE LEAD

Irish Volunteers Out in Full Force and Scores of Societies in the Long Line.

A good many Irishmen were looking around yesterday afternoon for Prof. Patrick Duffy of Letterbuck, County Mayo, Ireland. He is an Irish star-gazer, who some days ago offered this assurance:

"There will be smiling skies on St. Patrick's Day. The starry messengers have told me that the sun will shine on the sons of Erin on the day we celebrate."

The demeanor of the skies was decidedly peevish yesterday at noon. At 1 o'clock there came a cold shower, followed by others.

But the lack of Duffy's weather did not work against the size and enthusiasm of the parade, and there couldn't have been more people on the side lines to see it. Competent critics said there were at least 30,000 in the parade, and the onlookers were legion. The spectators reached from Fortieth to 155th Street, where the parade stopped.

The start was made at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street. The time set for the start was 2 o'clock. Platoon after platoon of police came marching out of the side streets to keep order and preserve a right of way for St. Patrick. The Sixty-ninth Regiment, all in blue, came marching down the avenue and halted near the starting point.

Then came the Catholic Boys' Naval Brigade of Brooklyn, in fine formation. The Catholic Protectory Band came next in line. Grand Marshal Peter J. Molloy and his aides, all mounted, galloped here and there. Each Marshal had across his shoulder and breast a twelve-inch green sash, dotted here and there with eight-inch rosettes of gold.

It was after 3 o'clock before the parade started. The Sixty-ninth Regiment was the guard of honor.

The Sixty-ninth was followed by the First Brigade of Irish Volunteers, commanded by Brig. Gen. Charles J. Crowley; the First Regiment of Irish Volunteers, under Col. E. P. Golgar; the Second Regiment of Irish Volunteers, under Major D. Sullivan; the Fourth Regiment of Irish Volunteers of New Jersey, under Col. J. Flood, and the Eighth Battalion of Irish Volunteers, commanded by Major Boyhan. There were 5,000 men in uniform.

There were forty-eight divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in full regalia, mounted and afoot. Two dozen bands played "The Wearing of the Green."

All the Irish county organizations were represented by their officers, who rode in carriages. Thirty-two Irish clubs and societies also had their officers in line in open carriages, so that the standard bearers might hold up the flag of the golden harp. Charles F. Murphy was in one of the carriages.

The 30,000 paraders swung eastward into Fiftieth Street, passing around the residence of Archbishop Farley at Madison Avenue and Fiftieth Street, back into Fifth Avenue. A small reviewing stand had been erected by the side of the house, facing on Madison Avenue, and in that the Archbishop and others of the clergy reviewed the paraders. In the stand with the Archbishop were Mgr. Lavelle, Archbishop Eversa, Mgr. Hayes, Father J. J. Quinn, the Rev. L. J. Evers, and the clergy of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The paraders had a long, straight stretch up Fifth Avenue to 120th Street. The high rocks in Mount Morris Park, at 120th Street, that look down on Fifth Avenue, were black with people. Policemen had to be sent up there to keep them from crowding one another off the rocks.

As the parade was passing Lenox Avenue and 121st Street late yesterday afternoon the horse ridden by William H. Allen of the Seventh Regiment became frightened at the cheering spectators. It reared up and threw its rider. The runaway horse was quickly caught. Allen was removed to the Harlem Hospital, suffering from a broken leg.

It was after 5 o'clock before the head of the parade reached the park, but the spectators hung on. The parade swung westward through 120th Street into Lenox Avenue, and up that to 135th Street. Here another turn to the westward was made, the parade continuing on up Eighth Avenue twenty more blocks to the Manhattan Casino, at 155th Street. There ranks were broken.

For the evening celebrations nearly every big hall in the city had been rented for dancing and dinners.

More than 6,000 persons attended High Pontifical Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning. The Sixty-ninth Regiment was present in full uniform.

The services were in charge of Archbishop Farley. After the mass Father John P. Chidwick of St. Ambrose's Church preached a sermon about St. Patrick.

McCARREN'S BIRDLESS FETE.

President of Celtic Club Warned Not to Fly the Thrushes of Erin.

The foreword sent out by its press agent came near spoiling the annual St. Patrick's Day dinner and dance of the Celtic Club of Brooklyn, of which State Senator Patrick McCarren is President. The affair was held at Stauch's, Coney Island, last night. More than 500 Irish thrushes had been imported for the occasion, according to the press agent, and the birds were to be liberated in the dining hall.

Thomas F. Freel of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals learned of this and was present last night with several deputies. Mr. McCarren agreed not to liberate the birds when he was informed that to do so would mean that he and the other officers of the club would be arrested.

POLICEMAN HAS BRAINSTORM.

Swings Club Wildly at Paraders and Is Sent to Bellevue a Prisoner.

Policeman James T. Clifford of the John Street Station, who was on duty yesterday afternoon along the route of the St. Patrick's Day parade, was made a prisoner by order of Inspector Walsh on the ground that he was suffering from "mental excitement." He was sent to Bellevue.

He was stationed at Madison Avenue and Fiftieth Street. While the paraders were marching past him he began to run back and forth across the street, swinging his club wildly. According to other policemen near by, Clifford wouldn't obey orders.

MRS. SAGE IN POLITICS.

Mistake as to Sag Harbor Candidates Conceded in Time to Elect Riemann.

SAG HARBOR, L. I., March 17.—William R. Riemann was to-day re-elected Village President by about 100 plurality. There was a three-cornered fight for the place. The nominees were William R. Riemann, Democrat; William F. Kilgore, Independent Citizens' Party, and M. J. Morouney, People's Party.

All calculations as to the outcome of the election were upset yesterday afternoon, when Talbot & Pollock of New York, lawyers for Mrs. Russell Sage, telephoned to Mrs. Sage's Superintendent here that it would be pleasing to Mrs. Sage to have Capt. Kilgore elected Village President.

The action took President Riemann entirely by surprise. He could not understand it, as his dealings with Mrs. Sage has been most pleasant. He called up Mr. Pollock on the telephone, and asked him in what way he had offended Mrs. Sage.

It then developed that Mrs. Sage had not known that President Riemann was running for re-election.

This morning Mrs. Sage's Superintendent received a second message, to the effect that Mrs. Sage had no preference as between Mr. Riemann and Mr. Kilgore.

"RETAINER," SAID VIDAVER.

That Was What Jackson's Deputy Called $500 He Got from Montgomery.

Detective Fitzsimmons of the District Attorney's staff was cross-examined yesterday by Arthur C. Palmer in the continuation of the hearing on charges of extortion brought by William R. Montgomery against Nathan Vidaver before Magistrate Herrman in the Tombs Court.

The detective told how on March 2 he had gone to Montgomery's house with Lieut. Beery and a stenographer. He listened at a telephone upstairs while Montgomery called up Grossman, who asked for the check for $500.

He then told of a conversation between Grossman and Montgomery, which he heard while hidden.

Montgomery asked why the Attorney General had never interfered with the Knickerbocker Trust Company, and Grossman said he acted like "Untermyer's office boy" and referred to a go-between.

As to the luncheon at the Astor House, Fitzsimmons heard Vidaver say: "If you don't pay me what we will call a 'retainer' Jackson will close you up within the week."

When the two left the dining room Fitzsimmons heard Montgomery say "Now, it will be all right—no more newspaper attacks," and saw him pass the marked bills. Vidaver, stepping partly inside a doorway, took them, saying: "Yes, everything will be all right now; hope to see you soon."

Then Fitzsimmons made the arrest.

HAFFEN COACHED WITNESS.

Engineer Testifies That He Was Instructed to Answer Carefully.

At the Haffen inquiry yesterday it developed that the witness of the day, Engineer Charles H. Williams, had been coached by Borough President Haffen as to the attitude he should take on the witness stand. He admitted that he had seen the Borough President. Commissioner of Accounts John P. Mitchel asked him what was said.

"I think he told me to be thoughtful and careful of my answers," replied Mr. Williams. "I believe he said something about my reading the transcript of the evidence given by Mr. Briggs."

CANDY IN LIEU OF BREAKFAST.

School Children Patronize Candy Shops Instead of Buying Substantial Food.

Charles C. Burlingham, ex-President of the Board of Education, urged action to prevent school children going breakfastless to school in a talk on the "Physical Welfare of Children" before the Council of Jewish Women at their regular meeting in the West End Synagogue, in Eighty-second Street, yesterday afternoon.

"I made an investigation at a downtown school and found that within a radius of 200 feet of it there were eleven candy shops which were crowded out of school hours by children. One noon 300 children visited one of those shops. They all had pennies.

"The women from these districts go out as office cleaners and have to do their work between 6 and 9 o'clock in the morning, and their children have to get their own breakfasts. Many of those people would like to load their children upon the schools."

BRITISH PREMIER SINKING.

Queen and Dowager Empress of Russia Call at His Residence.

LONDON, March 17.—The strength of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the British Premier, is ebbing daily, and his friends take the gravest views of the dropsical symptoms which have appeared in his feet and the lower part of his legs.

The general anxiety is evidenced by the constant stream of inquirers at his house in Downing Street. The fact that Queen Alexandra and the Dowager Empress of Russia called personally this afternoon at the Premier's residence to inquire as to his condition shows that the illness of the patient is more critical than the bulletins indicate. Up to the present time the Queen has sent an equerry to inquire concerning Sir Henry's condition.

Late to-night the condition of the Premier was unchanged, but on account of disquieting symptoms, the physician decided to remain in attendance throughout the night.

There was much speculation in the lobbies of Parliament this evening with regard to the coming Cabinet changes. It is understood that with the accession of Herebrt H. Asquith to the Premiership there will be a reconstruction, the Marquis of Ripon and Sir Henry Fowler both retiring on account of advanced age and Winston Spencer Churchill, Under Secretary for the Colonies, and Sir Walter Runciman, Financial Secretary to the Treasury may be promoted to the Cabinet rank.

BLACKMAILED THE DUKE.

Peasants Who Held Up Auto of Francis Joseph of Bavaria Sent to Jail.

MUNICH, March 17.—The suit brought by Duke Francis Joseph of Bavaria against peasants who recently succeeded in extorting money from him was concluded to-day in a verdict for the Duke. The court decided that a blackmailing plot had been proved, and sentenced the peasant Hofmaier to two months' imprisonment, Seidle to four months' imprisonment, and two others to three months and six weeks, respectively.

Hofmaier, it was shown, had inflicted a serious wound upon his horse, and accused the Duke, who was riding in his automobile, of having struck his wagon, causing the injury to the horse. A threatening crowd of peasants collected, and rather than have trouble with them the Duke paid Hofmaier a sum of money.

AUTHORITIES SILENT ON TRACTION FUTURE

No One Can Answer Ivins's Question as to Where $25,000,000 for Repairs Is to Come From.

RAILWAY SYSTEM BANKRUPT

Money Devoted to Dividends and Rentals, Mr. Ivins Says, Should Have Gone to Maintain Plant.

"Those most expert say that to put in complete condition as good as new, the surface system in Manhattan and the Bronx will require $25,000,000. Where this money is coming from who can tell?"

Attempts to inform William M. Ivins, who asked the question as to where the money was coming from in his address on traction matters before the City Club on Monday night, were frankly given up yesterday by representatives of the interests which are trying to straighten out New York's traction tangle. Inquiry of those directly connected with the management of the surface lines prior to the receivership produced no result at all. Counsel for the receivers of the New York City and Metropolitan Street Railways, who have in contemplation a temporary loan of $2,589,000 on receivers' certificates, would not undertake the task, and representative members of the Bondholders' Committee, into whose hands the surface properties will come after foreclosure for reorganization, frankly admitted that they could see no light ahead and did not propose to forecast anything until the months required to get complete reports from their accountants have passed.

Mr. Ivins was discussing the allegation that "the stocks of the New York City Railway and the Metropolitan Street Railway Company are worthless, and the bonds badly shrunken in value." Subsequently he added the same statement in regard to the stock of the Third Avenue line. That included the $52,000,000 capital of the Metropolitan Street Railway stock, $12,500,000 in the stock of the New York City Railway, representing a part of the $23,000,000 which the Metropolitan Street Railway stockholders contributed to rejuvenate the property in 1902, and $16,000,000 in the stock of the Third Avenue system, besides a depreciation in Metropolitan Street Railway bonds equivalent at least to the wiping out of the $11,000,000 of refunding 4s representing the rest of the $23,000,000 derived from the Metropolitan Securities stock subscription.

Deficit Increased Yearly.

In the absence yesterday of statements by the receivers of the surface lines a TIMES reporter obtained access to a petition filed on March 6 with the State Board of Tax Commissioners in seeking to have the special franchise taxes on the City Railway system reduced, in which strong representations are made of their views. This petition has not yet been made public, but was quoted in one or two particulars by Mr. Ivins in his City Club address. It begins by saying:

> This system was built up gradually by processes of lease, consolidation, and stock purchase, so that there are many layers of securities, and the legal situation is difficult and complicated. The New York City Railway became the lessee of this system in 1902, and ever since that time in each year the property as a whole has never been a paying one, and each year the company has faced and paid an increasing deficit.

The petition goes on to present the different defaults in interest or guaranteed rentals under the receivers, which are collected into this table:

Metropolitan stock	$3,639,937
Third Avenue stock	959,748
Third Avenue bonds	1,502,400
Metropolitan refunding bonds	664,160
Metropolitan collateral bonds	625,000
Central Crosstown stock	90,000
Total decrease fixed charges	$7,481,245

Following this tabulation of charges defaulted under the receivership, the petition takes up the decrease in income on the surface lines since 1902 with particular regard to the increase of transfer passengers and actual decrease of paying passengers. This is the result:

Year.	Revenue Passengers.	Transfer Passengers.	Gross Income.
1903	396,243,922	158,626,750	$21,864,835
1904	389,608,537	168,267,818	21,865,899
1905	374,258,395	168,957,760	21,305,421
1906	391,354,877	178,639,866	22,362,688
1907	376,629,571	194,765,342	21,874,630

In the first six months of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, the decrease in paying passengers over the corresponding period of the previous year was 9,856,168 and the decrease in gross income from operation $560,993, as contrasted with the same half of the year ended June 30, 1906.

As further setting out the position of the New York City Railway system, the petition of the receivers sets up an analysis of the income account for the year ended June 30, 1907, constructed on the theory that in 1908 the company should provide for its special franchise taxes, for which only partial provision has been made in the past; should provide an adequate depreciation fund not included heretofore, and offset from the 1907 earnings an amount equivalent to the estimated shrinkage in gross earnings and increase in operating expenses for the fiscal year 1908. These are the figures:

Gross income for year ended June 30, 1907	$21,874,680.72
Operating expenses and maintenance, excluding interest, rentals, taxes, and depreciation	$13,172,071.03
Taxes, including special franchise taxes as claimed by the State equalized at 89 per cent	2,039,355.91
Balance	$6,662,703.78
Deduct estimated decrease gross earnings for 1908	1,100,000.00
Deduct estimated increase operating cost for 1908	1,000,000.00
Depreciation	3,000,000.00
Balance applicable to return on investment	$1,562,703.78

The fixed charges alone on the New York Railway system, and which, as the petition of the receivers points out, were met up to last September, were in excess of $12,000,000. This sum covered the $7,481,245 of guaranteed rentals and interest now in default, and the rest of the interest and rental charges, on which the receivers are still making good.

Says System Is Bankrupt.

Mr. Ivins's speech of Monday night supplemented this showing of the receivers first by calling attention to the fact that $240,000,000 of bonds and stock have been issued against the surface properties now estimated to earn as investment return $1,562,703.78, after making the provision heretofore omitted for special franchise taxes and depreciation. He went on to say:

"Whatever the cause and whose ever the fault, the system, taken as a whole, is to-day financially and physically bankrupt. Both results have a single cause—the division among the holders of this enormous capital, in interest and dividends, of money that was not earned.

"But you may ask me how that money was got. First, by the abuse of the company credit, which brought about the financial bankruptcy, and next by the devotion to dividends and rentals of money that should have gone to the maintenance of the plant, which brought about physical bankruptcy. Let us stop first to consider the physical deterioration of the plant. The New York City Railway Company has explained it in many ways—that it is due to the severe strain to which the plant is put, the heavy loads, the sharp spurts of speed, the sudden stops, the crawling pace in congested streets, the weather, the lack of competent men, the burning of the repair shops, and so on to the end of the world.

"But now come the receivers, and they tell their story officially and under oath, be it remembered, to the United States Circuit Court. Listen!

> "The condition of the entire operating property, except the power houses, when we took charge was deplorable. For a long time the operating company had confined its repairs to such temporary and makeshift work as would merely patch up worn-out parts, without any comprehensive and thorough reconstruction. Incidentally it may be remarked that if for the past few years the New York City Railway Company had made the expenditures necessary to keep the rolling stock (and also the track and sub-surface structure) in first-class condition, it probably would not have been able to pay to the Metropolitan Street Railway Company its stipulated rental, which was distributed among its stockholders.

"You observe that the receivers are cautious and say 'probably.' We need not be so cautious, because the facts leave no room for doubt. It is a certainty, and not a probability, that to meet its rental charges the New York City Railway Company deliberately sacrificed the plant of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and divided the money among the shareholders of the Metropolitan Company by way of rental dividends. What these shareholders were getting was not a dividend on the earning of their capital, but a dividend of that capital itself.

Maintenance Account Robbed.

"And here is the noteworthy and memorable fact, that for the purpose of sharing the proceeds of the fare with its stockholders the system robbed the maintenance account and had no thought whatever of any reserve for depreciation and replacement at the end of the life of the plant. But when it came to sharing its supposed advantages and benefits with the public in the form of taxes, it immediately interposed the plea of its right and duty to make expenditures for maintenance and depreciation, which, however, it did not make and could not make because it had distributed its means among the stockholders in the form of an unearned dividend which it was enabled to pay at all only by letting its plant fall into more or less complete ruin."

After this comment on the attitude of the company as regards its attempt to get the special franchise taxes reduced, Mr. Ivins summarized the figures already given showing the relation of paying passengers to the income of the system by years. Then he made this comment:

"During the whole five years the tendency was to show that the limit of revenue capacity had been reached and that the transfer traffic was steadily increasing, that operating expenses were mounting higher and higher, even though the property was not properly maintained, and yet the management went on paying dividends at the expense of the plant and out of the company's credit. Nothing was possible but ruin, and if the physical ruin were avoided then the greater the certainty and the acuter the financial ruin which was inevitable."

As further illuminating the situation, Mr. Ivins gave this tabulation of the replacement cost of the surface system as estimated on the basis of detailed figures used in one connection or another by the City Railway and its subsidiaries themselves:

Two hundred and fifty miles of conduit trolley road; 103 miles of overhead trolley, granite paved; 103 miles of overhead trolley, macadamized; 86 miles of horse road	$44,066,479
Power house machinery	1,662,500
Generating machinery, 66,500 k. w.	6,350,750
Sub-station buildings	1,330,000
Sub-station machinery, 133,000 k. w.	6,683,000
Rolling stock	15,000,000
Car barns and shops	13,000,000
Land	15,000,000
Horses, tools, and incidentals	3,500,000
Total	$106,592,729

On this basis Mr. Ivins presented an analysis of the 1907 earnings, showing that with the allowance for taxes made by the company and disregarding as the company did the matter of depreciation, a balance of income amounting to $7,208,458 was left for interest, dividends and rentals, equivalent to about 6.5 per cent. of the replacement value of the physical property. That brought Mr. Ivins to the matter of depreciation as the final explanation of the pass to which things have come in the surface lines.

Here he cites a brief of counsel for the Third Avenue Railway in contesting the special franchise tax cases in 1901. This contended, with respect to the theoretical depreciation of its property—for which no allowance was made when it came to the system's finances—that one-tenth of its entire value was consumed each year. Further, Mr. Ivins refers to the present petition of the receivers of the Metropolitan and New York City Railways, who recite in seeking to have the special franchise taxes reduced, that Judge Ernest Hall as referee in the Third Avenue case in 1901 fixed $200,000 as a proper depreciation charge.

"On the basis there adopted," the receivers say, "the total depreciation charge on the system as a whole (for which deduction should be allowed) would, as we are informed by our engineers, be greatly in excess of $3,000,000. No allowance has been made on the books of account of any of the companies in the system or in any of the statements of operating expenses herein set out."

Revised Calculations of Profit.

Mr. Ivins thus commented on this statement of the receivers:

"It will be seen that the $3,000,000 fixed by the receivers is only about 3 per cent. of the replacement cost, which means the average life of the property, except the land, of thirty-three years, which is a very conservative figure. We may therefore recast our calculations of profit, making proper provision for better maintenance, higher wages and depreciation.'

Mr. Ivins closed by saying:

"This is for the system as a whole. Complete disintegration is inevitable before there can be integration. One thing is certain, that financial history presents no sadder ruin and no more hopeless problem. The invitation to private capital is not irresistible. What the committee of bondholders and stockholders may be prepared to do when the receivers come to sell cannot be foreseen, but it would not seem that they will run over each other in a scramble to be permitted to put in twenty or twenty-five millions of new money as they did in 1902. And then the question remains: If private capital will not increase its investment, what s the public going to do about it?"

TUNNEL TIE-UP NOT SO BAD.

Manager Hedley Denies That Subway Train Was Held Under East River.

"There was no train in the East River tunnel of the Interborough Railway Company, and at no time was the tunnel in darkness as a result of the short-circuiting of the electric third rail power at the Fulton Street station shortly after 2 o'clock this morning." This was the statement given out at the office of Frank Hedley, General Manager of the Interborough Company, yesterday afternoon.

At Mr. Hedley's office it was said that the tie-up affected only that part of the system between Fulton Street and the Battery, and that, instead of lasting from one to two hours, the tie-up lasted only about thirty minutes. Only one of the regular trains was caught between Fulton Street and the Battery during the tie-up.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Board Holds That There Is No Relief for Theft or Leakage of Oil.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that the theft or leakage of oil in barrels while in the custody of the Customs authorities does not constitute a "non-importation" within the meaning of the Federal statutes. The controversy was brought before the board in the name of G. B. Mastrangelo, who, it was reported, represented the Standard Oil Company.

It appears that a barrel of oil reached this port, and was found by the United States gauger to contain fifty gallons. The barrel was sent to the Public Stores for examination. While there, the oil leaked out and the barrel was entirely empty when delivered to the importer. Owing to this circumstance the importer claimed that there should be an abatement of duty on the ground that the leakage constituted a non-importation.

Judge Somerville, who writes the decision for the board, in finding against the contention of the importer, says that while cases of this nature may produce in many instances great hardships on the importers, it lies in the power of Congress to correct any injustice that may result, and not with the courts or any tribunal exercising a judicial function in construing the laws. The protest is accordingly overruled.

ORIENTAL BANK PLAN UPHELD BY COURT

Appellate Division Dismisses the Receivers and the Bank Will Now Liquidate.

RAPS ATTORNEY GENERAL

He Is Not the Guardian of Investors Against Their Will, Court Says—Trust Co. Contract Approved.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday affirmed, by a unanimous opinion, the order entered by Justice O'Gorman in the Supreme Court dismissing the receivers of the Oriental Bank and giving the institution permission to liquidate under the plan worked out in conjunction with the Metropolitan Trust Company. In so doing the court rapped Attorney General Jackson for the stand he took in opposing the proposition and criticised his course at every step from the time he applied for the appointment of receivers after being notified that the plan for paying the depositors had been arranged.

The Appellate Division holds that the Oriental Bank is solvent, that the closing of its doors did not operate as a surrender of its corporate franchises, and that it was to be assumed from the record that the agreement with the Metropolitan Trust Company would be carried out in good faith. "The trust company," declares the court, "has made a plain business proposition to advance the necessary money to pay the depositors upon what appears to be ample security."

In its opinion, which is written by Justice Houghton, the Appellate Division says:

"Examiners found and reported that, exclusive of the liability of its capital stock of $750,000, the bank had $1,233,636.34 in surplus. Certified public accountants were also employed and they found the surplus to be, after making such deductions as they considered proper, $1,498,432.17. Since these reports were made it appears the liability of the defendant upon Clearing House certificates has been reduced by nearly $600,000."

After referring to the agreement with the trust company and the approval by the State Banking Department, subject to the acquiescence of the Attorney General, the court continues, referring to the Attorney General:

"Instead of giving his approval, or signifying his disapproval, or doing something except to say that he would take the matter up with the Superintendent of Banks at his earliest opportunity, which he does not appear to have done, he instituted this action to dissolve the defendant on the ground that it was insolvent, and that it was unsafe and inexpedient for it to continue doing business, and that it was unable to do so.

"The Attorney General should have given the defendant notice of his application for the appointment of receivers. Unless there be some emergency requiring immediate action the law contemplates the giving of notice of an application for the appointment of receivers. The court having been led into improperly dispensing with notice of appointment of the temporary receivers, it was very proper for the Judge who granted the original order to grant an order to show cause, and thus give the defendant an opportunity to be heard to set aside the order which he had improvidently granted without notice.

"The Attorney General is not the guardian of investors against their will. Paternal government in this State has not yet gone to the extent of regulating in what its citizens shall invest their money. It is primarily the creditors of an insolvent corporation with which the State is concerned."

SAYS JACKSON ABUSED POWER

Attorney General Criticised for Incurring Expense in McClellan Ouster.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Attorney General Jackson was severely criticised in the Assembly to-day when a bill appropriating $20,000 for Mr. Jackson in prosecuting the ouster proceedings against Mayor McClellan begun by him on behalf of William R. Hearst.

Mr. Merritt, majority leader of the Assembly, said the State could not well repudiate any such debt.

"The Attorney General could have made Mr. Hearst a defendant and compelled him to file a bond in these proceedings. He did not do so, and while he was acting within his power in making the State shoulder the expense, I think we must all agree that he abused his powers."

The bill was passed.

C. W. MORSE'S DEMURRER.

Says Bankruptcy Petition Is Defective and Cannot Stand.

Eugene P. Carver, attorney for Charles W. Morse, will file in the United States District Court to-day his demurrer to the bankruptcy petition filed there against his client last week by Receiver Hanna of the National Bank of North America and two former clerks of that institution.

In this demurrer it is asserted that the three petitioners have no standing to maintain the bankruptcy action, and that one of the acts of bankruptcy alleged in the petition, namely, allowing a judgment for $155,753 to be entered in favor of R. A. C. Smith, is not properly set up, inasmuch as the judgment itself, according to Mr. Carver, is fatally defective.

LOOKING THE FACTS IN THE FACE.

Neither the city nor any private corporation, under the conditions and the restrictions now imposed by law, could operate the Metropolitan Street Railway system of New York without a large annual loss. That is the conclusion, the only conclusion, to be drawn from Mr. WILLIAM M. IVINS's lucid, informing, and, we may add, brave exposition of the street railway situation at the City Club Monday evening. Mr. IVINS said that his address might appropriately be entitled "A Fool's Paradise," and no one who reads and digests his remarks will question the felicity of the title. The fools have been, upon the one hand, the people and those stirring and public-spirited gentlemen who have procured so much legislation, supposedly in the interest of the people, and, upon the other, the corporations themselves. The paradise has become a very real inferno, out of which none of Mr. IVINS's audience was able to point a way of escape, though the way lies plain in the sight of those who will see it.

Mr. IVINS was not strictly accurate when he said that for the last thirty years all railway legislation has been secured at the solicitation of and for the purposes of the railway companies themselves. That was true, with some exceptions, up to about the year 1900, when the special franchise tax was imposed. Since that time, and notably in the case of the Public Service Commission act, the intent of the lawmakers has been to get more out of the service corporations for the people. We have come now to the point where the corporations can no longer give to the people the service they demand under the conditions they impose. Briefly put, there is not money enough in the surface railway business in New York to give universal transfers and pay special taxes upon the franchises demonstrably without value.

Take the transfers, the giving of which is required by law. Mr. IVINS shows, taking his facts from the petitions of the receivers to the Federal courts and to the State Board of Tax Commissioners, that in 1894 the whole number of revenue passengers carried in Manhattan was 236,012,000, of which 5,306,000 were transfer passengers. In 1902 the total number of passengers had risen to 382,268,000, and the transfer passengers to 134,963,000. In that year gross receipts from operation were $19,739,000. Five years later, for the year ending June 30, 1907, the number of revenue passengers had fallen to 376,629,000, and the number of transfer passengers had risen to 194,765,000. The gross receipts at the end of this five-year period had decreased $377,737, and operating cost had risen $1,234,000.

Anybody can see that this is the road to ruin. Yet the responsible men of the Metropolitan system were led to believe, and the people were led to believe, that the universal transfer was a public benefit justifying consolidation of the lines and a liberal policy toward them. The result shows that a corporation can be asked to give too much.

The relation of the special franchise tax to the difficult, and, as it has seemed, insoluble problem of the street railway situation, is made no less clear by Mr. IVINS's calculation of the operating account of the system based upon the receivers' figures. From gross income from all sources of $21,919,692, there are to be deducted operating expenses of $13,172,571, leaving a surplus for maintenance, wage increase, renewal, depreciation, taxes, interest, and dividends of $8,747,121. After the deductions for maintenance, depreciation, wage increase, and taxes, exclusive of a special franchise tax, are made, there remains available for interest and dividends the sum of $3,605,748. On the carefully estimated cost of reproducing the system, which Mr. IVINS puts at $106,500,000, this gives only 3.4 per cent. return. There could, of course, be no possibility of any dividends on stock, and the city would lose the $900,000 of special franchise taxes for which no provision could be made.

Mr. IVINS drily remarks that in these figures "the invitation to private capital is not irresistible." A private corporation would not, the city should not, undertake to carry on a street railway business in New York under conditions and requirements that make this showing inevitable. The private corporation that has hitherto operated the lines has paid rentals and dividends only by starving the maintenance account until the roads are physically as well as financially bankrupt. The franchise tax they have not paid at all. The city has no right to undertake a losing business. The carrying of street railway passengers is not a philanthropy.

The teaching of Mr. IVINS's analysis is precisely the teaching of our present deadlock in subway construction. The lesson the people must learn, though they will be most unwilling to learn it, is the lesson that they and their lawmakers, in seeking to make better terms for the public, have made unbearable and bankrupting terms for the corporations. The stock watering and misdeeds of Metropolitan management are not involved in the problem. Mr. IVINS takes no account of the $240,000,000 of outstanding capital—his estimate is based on reproduction cost. Against the abolition of the general transfer there would be a loud public protest. Against the repeal of the special franchise tax the voices of its original sponsors and of thousands of agitators who have since that time become vocal would be raised. But if transfers are to be given under present conditions, and if the other requirements of the law as it now stands are to be enforced, either surface railway passengers must be carried by the city on a charity basis or they will not be carried at all.

Mr. IVINS deserves the thanks of the community for the opportunity he has given it to look the facts in the face. We regard his utterance as deeply significant, a notable indication of the turning of the tide.

THE LONDON TIMES.

The outcome of the litigation over the control of The London Times is agreeably surprising to persons remote from the scene of action who had been led to believe that Mr. C. ARTHUR PEARSON's claim on the ownership of the great newspaper was more firmly established. It seems now that he had no claim at all to speak of. Mr. C. F. MOBERLY BELL, who has been manager of The Times for many years, has secured control of the paper, and with the strengthening of his power and the retention of Mr. GEORGE E. BUCKLE in the chief editorship he has held for nearly a quarter of a century, and Mr. VALENTINE CHIROL as foreign editor, the continuance of The Thunderer, without abatement of its thundering capacity, seems assured. There was a strong fear that under the direction of Mr. PEARSON The Times would lose some of its character, and its thundering would nevermore sour British milk or strike terror into the hearts of Britain's foemen.

Mr. MOBERLY BELL is a man of large capacity and untiring energy. He has now safely conducted The Times through two rather dark epochs in its history, and he has infused into the old establishment a great deal more of the modern spirit of enterprise than is generally understood. He is clearly the man of all others to be manager of The Times if it is to retain much of its old prestige. Any newcomer, with new ideals and new methods, would make the paper something different. The acceptance by Mr. ARTHUR WALTER, surviving head of the historic family of owners of The Times, of the Chairmanship of the Board of Directors, is an earnest that the character of The Times will not be essentially changed.

Lately its news dispatches have been of a more diversified character than formerly. If it has occasionally made a mountain out of a molehill, and subjected itself to criticism, that does not matter. Its old undisputed influence went long ago. There are no country squires left to proclaim an opinion of The Times only less authoritative than the Scriptures. But accuracy and thoroughness are still the dominating qualities of the foremost English newspaper.

On the whole it is good for English journalism, and, relatively, for the whole civilized world, that Mr. MOBERLY BELL retains the management of a newspaper which is still, if in a more restricted sense than formerly, an international power. Because of Mr. BELL's long association in Egypt with EVELYN BARING in the early days of his Consulship, we may safely assume that one of the Peers who have lent financial aid is Lord CROMER. The other is concerned solely with "high finance." So many noblemen are conspicuous in that field of endeavor nowadays that it would be futile to try to identify him.

WORRYING NEW YORK BANKS.

Only a politician would imagine that benefit could result from speeches like Senator TILLMAN's, reported in yesterday's TIMES, and only bankers can appreciate the superfluity of investigating institutions which have passed through such a strain as the recent panic without developing weak points. Compared with such a trial as that any questions that a committee of Congress can put pale into insignificance. And for another reason the same may be said regarding the institutions which failed under the strain. The truth about them is in course of development and publicity to suit the amplest curiosity or any demand for any public purpose. Were it otherwise this is not the best of times to put on foot anything causing fresh alarm. Or if it be affirmed that alarm is desirable for any reason, it surely cannot be contended decently that alarm is desirable only in New York. Why would it not be a good idea—if disquiet is desired—to supply a little about the banks of South Carolina, which are holding cotton, or those of Texas, which begged funds from the Treasury when they held more than was good for them, and compelled those who had less than they needed to carry the country's burden?

This is no apology for bad banking, nor for any concealment of anything whose revelation would serve any good end. But there are times and seasons. So far as the Senator's allegations and specifications concern settled customs they can be inquired into at any time. An excellent opportunity will come again with the next boom. Bad banking thrives in good times, and good banking is the fruit of bad times. When we were having sales in multiples of millions of shares, and "everything went," it would have been calming to have had some inquiry suggested. There is nothing of that sort now, and it seems all too far away. As regards the acts done during the panic another position may be taken. Senator ALDRICH's admission that things were done which were "unfortunate" covers the ground. The streets are full of men who can suggest many better plans now, but then they were conspicuous by their silence, and by their welcome of anything which anybody else proposed. Any port in a storm, was the motto then, and now any stick will do to beat a dog.

A CITY NEWSPAPER FOR YALE.

No exponent of the craft of journalism since the foundation of the Bromley Lectureships at Yale has come quite so near hitting the truth as Col. GEORGE HARVEY, when he told the assembled university Monday night that to teach journalism properly it "must have a real paper" equipped with a staff of trained newspaper editors. "That sort of training," he said, "supplemented as it would be all along by the broad, liberal education of the college course, would, to my mind, be better far than that hard school of journalism of the newspaper office as conducted by GREELEY and by DANA."

We have thought all along that the only way a college man could become a journalist was to work on a city newspaper. Col. HARVEY suggests Col. NORRIS G. OSBORNE, a Yale graduate and patron, publisher and editor of The New Haven Journal and Courier, as a fit chief of staff in the new journalistic enterprise. The old Journal and Courier is conveniently at hand for the university's needs. Let it be bought and run. If President HADLEY and the enterprising Secretary of the Yale Corporation, Mr. ANSON PHELPS STOKES, Jr., will bestir themselves in the matter of securing an endowment "for the training of students toward the profession that is more influential in American life than any other," a way may be opened for running the first real newspaper in the educational interest of a university.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Diamond Prices Maintained. That the diamond trade is at present in a state of unstable equilibrium is emphatically denied by all the great houses engaged in the production, distribution, and cutting of what are possibly the most beautiful, but certainly are the least sympathetic and interesting, of precious stones. There is a queer shrillness about these denials, however, that hints to some more desire than confidence that they will be effective, and if it be true that the De Beers and Premier Companies can cease to act in harmony without a drop in the prices, which seem hitherto to have been kept up only by their agreement to restrict the supply, then the commercial world will be confronted by the apparent overthrow of its best established law.

Perhaps it all depends on what truth there is, whether much, little, or none at all, in the stories which have been so long in circulation, of bushels—if it wasn't barrels—of uncut diamonds stored away in secret African places, awaiting the slow absorption of a market deliberately undersupplied. If the barrels, or even the bushels, exist, the natural effect of a quarrel between the producers whose capital is thus locked up and earning nothing would be sales at competitive, that is, decreased, prices. But diamonds are a queer merchandise, and the artificiality of their value at all times lends a sort of reason to the claims that the business in them is not subject to all the rules of ordinary trade.

In support of the emphatic claims that, whatever happens to the old agreement, prices will be maintained, it is asserted that if prices were now lowered by 10, or even 20, per cent., sales would not be appreciably increased, since what can properly be called the diamond business is at a nearly complete standstill. People have not ceased to buy the gems because they cost too much, but because people do not want to buy them at all—because they are a luxury which can be cut off by those who feel least the need of economy as it is commonly undestood. One merit, and not least, of the diamond has always been the stability of its value, and all interested in the diamond trade know this so well that before they weakened trust in that stability they would have to be confronted by an emergency much more serious than any now existing or to be expected. These arguments have a certain validity, or the semblance of it. As for the chance that diamonds may soon be manufactured more cheaply than they can be mined, the dealers, if they feel any anxiety on that score, are able to conceal it successfully. Yet it is, perhaps, the gravest of their dangers.

Pure Food and Politics. A painfully plausible explanation is given by The Boston Transcript's Washington correspondent of the apparent yielding by the Administration to the demand that the activity of Dr. WILEY in enforcing the pure food law be mitigated in the interest of manufacturers who want to use preservatives deemed harmful by the Bureau of Chemistry and to use labels which it considers untruthful.

The weight of the influence exerted in this direction is well known to have been enormous, and the explanation of the President's course in appointing a board of experts to pass upon Dr. WILEY's rulings, and that of Secretaries WILSON, CORTELYOU, and STRAUS in suspending those rulings for the present, is this: The Electoral vote of California is hanging in the balance, and California's fruitgrowers claim that preserves will not "keep" unless benzoate of soda is added to them and that fruits cannot be properly dried without the use of sulphur. Powerful New England interests are backing up the Californians, while the distillers do not agree with Dr. WILEY as to what is and is not "blended" whisky.

So something had to be done, at least in seeming, and, according to this authority, the President, who is still the firm friend of both Dr. WILEY and of the pure food law, created a board of experts, and the banishment of preservatives was deferred. It will take the board some time, however, to make its experiments and announce its decisions, and meanwhile the election will take place with the protesting interests placated and hoping for the best. Afterward—but that is left vague, with an implication that in the end Dr. WILEY will remain where he is, and the enforcement of the law will be resumed.

The plausibility of this theory of the case is, as we have said, painful. While the pure food law is by no means perfect, its chief errors, as we see them, are not those of severity, but those of leniency. The public has a right to explicit information as to what it eats and drinks, and the demand that labels shall be exact is neither unreasonable nor unjust. Preservatives have their uses, and only too many of them, for, besides preventing decomposition, they can also be employed to give inferior goods the appearance of those of the best quality. The injury to health may be problematical, but the pocket sufferings thus produced are beyond question. None of the questions involved is of a kind to be settled in accord with the exigencies of politics, and Dr. WILEY as well deserves support now as he will deserve it after the election.

Revolution is Not the Word. Haiti is again doing its best to prove itself an unendurable neighbor, instead of one only difficult to tolerate, but the current description of what is happening there as one of the island's usual revolutions is inaccurate. As a matter of fact revolutions, in the proper sense of a change in the form of government, have not been at all frequent in Haiti. Of revolts against administrations there have indeed been many, some successful, some failures, and all sanguinary, but the pretense of a republic has been kept up almost without interruption since the assisted disappearance of the first few rulers who took the title of Emperor.

The so-called revolutions have been, in effect, Haiti's substitute for elections, the latter, as we understand them, having from the beginning of the island's independence proved impracticable among a population where public sentiment took only the shape of fear and hatred of all white men. The idea of abiding by the result of a ballot has never found resting place in any Haitian mind, nor should it, since only the friends of the man in power have ever been allowed to vote. Each President has remained in office until a stronger man arose to put him out of it by force.

That is what the "revolutionists" are trying to do now, but it is not their intention or desire to effect more than a transposition of the ins and the outs. It is all very absurd and farcical, from the standpoint of civilized government, but the killing done in these farces is as effective as any other, and they are tragical enough for those engaged in them. They are also utterly destructive to the prosperity of the island, and fully account for the miserable condition of its once handsome cities.

REGRETS FROM THE THOMAS CO.

Sure, However, That Mathewson Meant No Offense to Italian Rivals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We noticed in the Sunday issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES several letters written by highly esteemed Italian-Americans protesting against certain names used by Mr. Mathewson, who drove the Thomas car from Cheyenne to Ogden, and who referred to the Italian car and its drivers in nicknames. Regarding this we wish to express our sincere regret that any occasion has been given for ill-feeling of any sort.

We fully appreciate the feelings of these gentlemen, but we know that Mr. Mathewson meant no offense in the language used. We feel sure that it was more in the order of what is considered in the West "a joke," as it is very common for these people to use nicknames of all kinds in all sorts of sporting events.

Again expressing our sincere regret and hoping that the future relationship between the drivers of all cars in this wonderful race may be of the most harmonious nature, we remain,

Miss Gill and Miss Elder.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For some time I have been following with interest in your paper the case of Miss Gill of Barnard College against Miss Elder.

After reading Monday's article I am irresistibly moved to ask you if you do not think it is a rather petty piece of business for the head of a society of ethical culture and a Dean of a woman's college—a college laying claim to being "very advanced"—to spend two years persecuting a young girl for having possibly deducted a year or two from her registered age, a persecution which must have wholly imbittered what ought to have been the happiest time of Miss Elder's girlhood?

Of what possible moment can her exact age be to these august personages? Are their positions such sinecures that they have time for such exhaustive flea-hunting?

Wagner at Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many will agree with "Bonus" in his communication of March 12 to your valuable paper on the subject of secular music in the churches. The great music-dramas of the immortal Wagner must appeal to all lovers of good music. Still one must confess that the exquisite motive of the Prize Song from the "Meistersinger" is hardly conducive to a spiritual uplift of the mind preparatory to a religious service, and to be ushered out of church to the equally beautiful strains of the Fire Scene from the "Walkuere" will not have a tendency toward deepening the impression the preacher has desired to make upon his congregation. Will Help Them to Harlem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to the "Who Will Help?" letter of March 14, I will say such help is unnecessary. Two dollars per room for Jersey and Long Island added to the tunnel fares of, say three workers, (a moderate estimate, away below the average,) would increase the rent to over $4 per room for a three-room apartment. Without building any more, I can place 1,000 to 3,000 families in three or four room apartments at $3 to $3.25 per room in Harlem, between 100th and 125th Street, on the east side, to say nothing of getting the owners to pay the prospective tenants' moving expenses or give them a half month's rent free.

Uptown Expresses on Both Tracks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to your article in to-day's TIMES under the title "He Would Increase Subway Service," it seems to me the most effectual way to do it is in the evening rush hours to suspend the downtown express trains, and run on both tracks only uptown express trains.

FEWER CAR FATALITIES.

Large Decrease in Deaths from Transit Accidents in the City.

At the regular meeting of the Public Service Commission yesterday the matter of the five-cent fare to Coney Island was referred to Commissioner McCarroll. The report of accidents occurring during the month of February also was submitted by the Secretary. A noticeable feature was the falling off in the number of killed.

Comparative figures for the first quarter of this year are:

	December.	January.	February.

NO SPECIAL MESSAGE.

Denial That President Will Address Congress on Civic Federation Bills.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The report that the President is about to send a special message to Congress urging upon its attention certain matters of necessary legislation recommended by the Civic Federation meets with a positive denial at the White House.

The fact is the President has been for the last fortnight in consultation with members of the federation concerning the prospect of obtaining legislation in the direction of their desires before the adjournment of the present session of Congress. The outcome is expected to be the presentation within a few days by Representative Hepburn of Iowa of one or more bills covering the subject. The President has no present intention of transmitting a message to Congress simultaneously with the introduction of these bills in the House.

ENGLAND OUR ONLY FRIEND.

The Other Nations Do Not Love America or Americans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have lately returned from a year's trip around the world, the last six months of which I spent in visiting various European countries. I can emphatically, though regretfully, indorse President A. B. Hepburn's statement that we have no friend among the nations of Europe with the exception of Great Britain. I found this to be the case not alone in Europe, but in the various other places I visited on my journey west from San Francisco. As a highly patriotic American, I expected to find on this, my first journey abroad, that the fact of being an American citizen would carry with it a certain amount of prestige, and I had ready to display, whenever the opportunity presented itself, a little "Old Glory" folded away in my pocket. I started all beak and talons; I return, it must be confessed, in a somewhat moulting condition.

I made casual acquaintances. In Constantinople, a Turk whom I met on the bridge exclaimed, to my indignation: "Ah! if you had had a military power like us to contend with, instead of Spain—!" On the Ringstrasse, Vienna, an Austrian officer remarked: "You are like the boy of 20; you think you are so much, that you know so much, but—!" In Berlin I made what I trust will be more than a temporary friendship with a German whose name is honorably known throughout the world. I asked him to tell me frankly why Americans were not, as it appeared to me, popular in Europe and elsewhere. After some polite hesitation, he said: "Well, as you ask me, I shall tell you. You go about waving the flag of your country"—here I blushed—"in other lands, forgetting that the natives are just as much proud of their own flag. Your doing so does not inspire respect for your country or its flag—it has a contrary effect. You boast so much; you speak of the naval battle of Santiago, where you did not lose a man, as if it were a second Trafalgar. You teach your children that you won the war of 1812, in which you were so badly beaten. In the hotels your people talk so loudly and dress so quaintly. You are so anxious for other people to know that you are Americans, as if it would exalt you in their eyes, whereas it does not." And so on.

In England, the most finished, and quite the most delightful country I visited, I found a warm friendship for us. They thought we "bluffed a bit," but that was all in the game. When I think that the flag of this little island was the flag in my journey around the world; when I remember that it was the home of my forefathers; when I know that it is to-day guaranteeing the safety of our eastern coast against all European invasion; when we are all aware that it is carrying the coal for our great fleet on its record-making voyage; when those who understand must know that it is England which has hushed the hostile Japanese war cry; when every post at which our fleet will touch between Manila and New York will fly the union jack or be under British rule—then, I say, let us cease this constant twisting of the lion's tail of which we are so fond. Let us look to ourselves and to our best friend, and act accordingly. I trust I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space.

Thinks We'd Be Rude to the Prince.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is far better for the Prince not to come here. He would undoubtedly be subjected to insult in your newspapers as Prince Louis of Battenberg was, and the feeling between England and America, none too good now, would not be improved. L.

ARCHITECTURAL.

I'm only a Gargoyle attached to a church,
As ugly a Gargoyle as ever was known.
I lean from my Gothic, aerial perch
To gaze on that glorious vision in stone.

The fair Caryatid just over the street,
Enthroned on a pillar of porphyry red,
So mild of demeanor, so patient and sweet,
Though seventeen stories are heaped on her head.

I envy the wind that may speak to my love,
The raindrop that plashes her cheek like a tear,
The cobweb that covers her hand like a glove,
The sparrow that builds in the curve of her ear.

I would I might woo her with passionate rhymes;
But here is my duty, and here must I stay
To guard the high steeple's reverberant chimes
And frighten all frolicsome goblins away.

MORE DELAY IN RACE BILLS.

Final Senate Action in Two Weeks—No Adjournment in April.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Gov. Hughes's anti-race track gambling legislation suffered another setback to-day which will result in more delay. Senator Agnew called up his bill with a view of having it made a special order for to-morrow. Senator Grady, minority leader, interposed an objection, which under the rules was sufficient to block the move of Senator Agnew.

The bill is now before the Committee of the Whole for advancement to the order of third reading. Senator Agnew is planning a fight to kill the proposed amendment that the bill shall not take effect until Sept. 1. Restored to its original form, the proposed law against race track gambling would become operative the moment the bill was passed.

A fortnight must now pass before the bill can come before the Senate for passage.

In the Assembly Speaker Wadsworth said to-day that the two bills will not come up for final reading until a week from to-morrow. In the Senate the bill repealing the Percy-Gray law has not yet been reported by the Judiciary Committee, which has scheduled a public hearing on that measure for to-morrow.

All hope of the Legislature adjourning April 9, as planned by the leaders, has vanished. It is now more likely that the Legislature will remain in session at least one month longer.

This impression was strengthened to-day when it was learned that Gov. Hughes would make a vigorous fight for the passage of bills providing for direct nominations at primaries. The Governor will send a special message to the Legislature, which will compel it to take up the question anew. He is also planning a special message urging the enactment of laws to carry out his recommendations to have the telegraph and telephone companies placed under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

FOR CITY OWNED SUBWAYS.

Senator Elsberg Attacks the New Rapid Transit Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Senator Elsberg made a plea for the municipal ownership of subways to-day before the Senate Cities Committee. He attacked the bill introduced last night which provides for an alternative plan of private construction, with the opportunity to sell to the city at the end of a short term of years.

Senator Elsberg took the position that only publicly constructed subways should be considered after the proposition of construction had been passed upon by the people.

SPEAR CONTRADICTS HOBSON.

Submarine Head Denies He Said He Had Influence with Cannon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Testifying before the committee now investigating the alleged submarine scandal, Lawrence Spear, technical head of the Electric Boat Company, flatly contradicted the testimony given a few days ago by Representative Richmond P. Hobson. Mr. Hobson had said that Mr. Spear had offered to use his influence over Speaker Cannon to get Mr. Hobson a place on the Naval Committee.

"I told Mr. Hobson," he said, "on one occasion, that I had heard a man, whose name I think is Lynch, tell Elihu B. Frost, Vice President of the Boat Company, that he had influence over Mr. Hobson which he was willing to exert in behalf of submarine legislation. Mr. Frost rejected the offer with scorn.

"Later I called Mr. Hobson up on the 'phone and asked how he was getting on in his race for the Naval Committee, and offered to help him if I could. He refused, saying it would not be proper for him to accept any favors in such a matter. As to my alleged remarks about having influence over the Speaker, Mr. Hobson must have confused my talk with him over the 'phone with some conversation I had during his illness with his secretary. I told his secretary that I supposed John Sharp Williams would recommend him and that the Speaker would appoint him."

The other witnesses to-day were Frank B. Lord and A. A. Erly, the two newspaper men Mr. Lilley charged with being in the pay of the Boat Company. They both testified that they had written some articles about submarines for C. S. McNeir, attorney for the company before the Navy Department, but they had never used their positions as correspondents as a means to publish the articles. They made violent attacks on the recklessness of Mr. Lilley's charges, and characterized them as the "wild, willfully untruthful statements of an ignorant man."

The next hearing will be on Thursday morning.

TO PROSECUTE C. & O.

Inter-State Commission Alleges Discrimination Favoring Certain Shippers

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Criminal prosecution, it is indicated officially, will be instituted against certain officials of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company and certain favored shippers by that line, on account of what is asserted to have been illegal practices relative to inter-State shipments.

It appears from the findings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission that the Chesapeake & Ohio favored certain shippers "at the expense of the Seaboard Air Line and Atlantic Coast Line" in the shipment of grain and packing-house products, and that the shippers thus favored gave to the Chesapeake & Ohio "all of the inbound business of the shippers so favored by it."

A hearing on the matter was held in Richmond, Va., in February by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, the evidence being taken by Commissioner Lane. The Commissioner has submitted his report to the full commission. It has been approved, and Attorney General Bonaparte has been requested by the commission to institute, through the United States District Attorney at Richmond, proceedings against all parties involved by the evidence adduced.

SPECIAL TEST OF THE LAKE.

Series of Experiments to Demonstrate Ability to Maintain an Even Keel.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 17.—A special test of the submarine boat Lake was held three miles off the mouth of Black Rock Harbor to-day, under the direction of a special naval board, consisting of Capt. Adolph Marix, Commander C. C. Marsh, and Naval Constructor D. W. Taylor, the object being to demonstrate the ability of the craft to maintain an even keel.

The party on board numbered thirteen. The boat was submerged and driven ahead in thirty feet of water for thirty minutes. Two men were kept constantly walking up and down the boat during this time. There were submergence tests at thirty, twenty and ten feet, and at the first named depth the submergence and rise were made in two minutes, twenty-eight seconds.

To Keep Liquor Out of "Dry" States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Senator Clay to-day introduced an amendment to the Ocean Mail bill to prohibit shipment of liquors into "dry" States. The inspiration for the amendment is found in the action of Congress in letting past a Senate rider on the Immigration bill an amendment which drove liquor from the Capitol.

To Hear Jerome Charges in Town.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 17.—Judge Andrews, as Commissioner to take testimony on the charges filed against District Attorney Jerome, will hold sessions in New York.

BLAME FOR ROOSEVELT

Senator McCarren Holds Administration Responsible for Financial Depression and Bank Suspensions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Declaring that President Roosevelt was at war on wealth and prosperity, Senator McCarren in debate to-day charged the Federal Administration with responsibility for the financial disturbance of the last few months.

"Not a single financial institution would have failed if it had not been for the attitude of the authorities at Washington," Senator McCarren said. "The Knickerbocker Trust Company, the Hamilton Bank, the Brooklyn banks, the Jenkins Trust Company, and the other banks for which receivers were appointed would be sound to-day if they could have realized on their assets. The value of these assets was reduced to a minimum through the acts of the Federal Administration.

"The banks of New York are bursting with money, and they will not invest in anything except National, State, or city bonds. The theory is that the Government will not attack its own securities. The savings banks do not want legislation. They are safe, and the people have not lost confidence in them."

This speech was made in the discussion upon a bill which would permit savings banks, with the approval of the State Superintendent of Banks, to pledge their securities to raise funds to meet the demands of depositors in times of depression.

"This is paternalism run mad," Senator Grady declared. "I repeat what I said a few days ago, that Mr. Williams will resign as Superintendent of Banks as soon as the bills he has recommended are passed. This legislation is unnecessary."

Senator Raines defended the bill. Referring to the suspension of many banks during the last few months Senator Raines denied that any National or State official was responsible.

"If there had been straightforward, honest, and legitimate transactions on the part of those institutions there would have been no suspensions."

The bill was amended to limit the hypothecation of securities and it was laid aside for reprinting.

In the Assembly the bill was passed by 98 to 31 without amendment. Four banking bills, emanating from Supt. Williams, were passed. All the bills were assailed by the Democratic members of the House, and the vote was practically a party vote. The bills which were passed provide:

That a Trustee or Director of a bank upon re-election must file an oath with the Superintendent of Banks, including a declaration that the stock necessary to qualify him for Directorship has not been hypothecated during his previous term.

That the securities held as reserve by savings banks must be listed in the annual reports of such institutions at their investment value instead of at their market value.

The third bill passed permits a savings bank to raise money in an emergency by hypothecating securities held by it. A majority vote of its board and the approval of the State Superintendent of Banks are required.

The fourth bill provides that the entire reserve of 15 per cent. prescribed for trust companies in the Borough of Manhattan must be held in cash, and that of the 10 per cent. reserve which must be held by trust companies elsewhere in the State, 7 per cent. must be in cash.

Representatives of banks and trust companies protested to-day against the bill compelling such institutions to provide capital of $100,000 for each branch maintained by them.

A legislative investigation of the New York Stock Exchange was recommended at the joint hearing before the Senate and Assembly Banks Committees on the bill of Assemblyman Cuvillier, which requires the incorporation of exchanges under the banking laws and the Wagner bill providing for the licensing of stock brokers. The recommendation was made by Albert Owen Crozier, a writer of fiction from Wilmington, Del., who declared he had it on "high inside authority" that 90 per cent. of all transactions in stock were either fictitious or gambling pure and simple.

John G. Milburn, representing the New York Stock Exchange, opposed the bill, while the Rev. Madison C. Peters and the Rev. Dr. Schoenfeld, both of New York, advocated the measure. When the hearing was almost over Senator Hooker of Genesee said:

"I don't want it to go out that we are turning down an anti-Wall Street bill, but this thing does not accomplish anything."

It is improbable that the committee will report the bill.

MRS. GILLETTE SEES HUGHES.

Said to Have Presented New Facts to Save Her Son from Execution.

ALBANY, March 17.—The mother of Chester Gillette, under sentence of death for the murder of Grace Brown, saw Gov. Hughes for almost an hour this morning and went away apparently heartbroken, with the conviction that her pilgrimage had been in vain.

Asked if she cared to make any statement, she replied:

"Not at this critical time; it will do no good. I am sorry, but I do not wish to say anything for publication."

Mrs. Gillette, looking very warm and tired, and dressed in faded black, sat beside the Governor at the great Executive desk, and made her plea for the life of her son. The Governor, to whom the ordeal was most trying, looked white and stern after the interview, and there were tears in his eyes as he bade her good-bye.

Gov. Hughes retired to his private office after the interview, and could not be seen. Robert H. Fuller, his secretary, said that Mrs. Gillette had presented to the Governor some apparently new facts, which the Governor told Mrs. Gillette he would take under consideration, but would not give out at this time.

INQUIRING INTO CITY DEBT.

Resolution in Senate to Investigate Controller's Office.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Senator Cassidy offered a resolution to-day for a joint committee of three Senators and five Assemblymen to inquire into the system of accounting in the office of the Controller of New York City and other city departments, and to look into the conditions which have led the city to issue bonds aggregating more than $1,000,000,000.

The purpose of the investigation is to prepare a measure relating to the city's indebtedness at the session of 1909.

Oppose Central's Project.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Civic organizations in Manhattan and the Bronx appeared before the Assembly Cities Committee this afternoon in opposition to the Owens-Cuvillier bill authorizing the Board of Estimate of New York City to grant a franchise in perpetuity to the New York Central Railroad for the construction and operation of underground, surface, and elevated railroad lines in the Bronx.

FRENCH COMEDY NETS $2,500 FOR CHARITY

Le Cercle Dramatique Francais Gives "Jalouse" for Benefit of Home for Babies.

WELL-KNOWN PATRONESSES

Many Women Well Known in Society Occupy Boxes at Performance in the Criterion.

"Jalouse," a comedy in three acts by Bisson & Leclercq, was given yesterday afternoon at the Criterion Theatre in aid of the Convalescent Home for Babies at Sea Cliff, L. I., under the direction of Alexander T. Mason, President of Le Cercle Dramatique Français. In the cast were Ernest Perrin, Rene Wildenstein, Georges Monod, and Mmes. Duys, Caze, Legereau, and Chaskin. A large and fashionable audience was present, and more than $2,500 was realized for the charity.

Mrs. Henry Parish, Jr., President of the Country Home for Babies, arranged the entertainment, assisted by the managers of the home. Among the manaegs are Mrs. Sidney Dillon Ripley, Mrs. Edward H. Harriman, Mrs. Henry P. Loomis, Mrs. William K. Otis, Mrs. W. Allston Flagg, Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, Mrs. Louis Lee Stanton, Mrs. Richard Mortimer, Mrs. James Russell Soley, Mrs. Henry P. Le Cercle Dramatique Français is devoted to the production of French plays. On March 27 and 28 the society will give "Le Massiere," a comedy in four acts, by Lemaitre, at the Carnegie Lyceum.

NEW COMEDY FOR CHARITY.

Play by Brander Matthews to be Given at the Waldorf on March 31.

"Frank Wilde," a comedy by Prof. Brander Matthews, will be given for the first time on Tuesday evening, March 31, at the Waldorf-Astoria for the benefit of the fresh air fund and outings for tenement house children during the Summer.

Walker Marcus Dennet, who is directing the production of "The Simple Life" this week at the Carnegie Lyceum, will have charge of the production. The cast includes Mrs. William N. Amory, Miss Katharine Waring, Evert Jansen Wendell, and Harold Gould.

The entertainment will also include "Miss Flipper's Holiday," by Harris and Florence Bell, in which Mrs. C. H. Smith, Miss Burton Hart, and Miss Adelaide Chamberlain will appear. In addition, there are to be music and a sale of candy and fancy articles.

The affair is under the direction of Miss Neilson, Miss J. A. Sage, Miss Isabel Easton, Mrs. Harry Holbrook, Miss Mary H. Field, and others. Tickets may be had at the Waldorf-Astoria.

GOTHAM CLUB WAR DANCE.

"Green Evening" at the Waldorf with a Varied Programme.

The Gotham Club, which met last night in the Waldorf-Astoria, was entertained with an extensive programme of songs, recitations, violin solos, selections on the phonograph, speeches, and Indian war dances. It was a "green evening," and Mrs. Alfred A. Brooks, the President, wore a boa of smilax.

Chief Charging Hawk, Princess Redwing, and Young Deer, highly painted Indians, danced to the rhythm of the tomtom. Afterward Redwing sang "My Navajo" and "Arrowana."

Gen. George B. Loud of the Grand Army of the Republic told of the depression which followed the assassination of President Lincoln among military men, and Miss Alice Ives discussed dramatic art, albeit she said that there was no such thing to-day. Miss Ives is a playwright.

MONTEFIORE HOME CONCERT.

Invalids Delighted by Entertainment Given by Charitable Clubs.

The inmates of the Montefiore home for Chronic Invalids of Broadway and 138th Street had an ice cream fest and were entertained yesterday afternoon at a concert by the Amateur Concert Club, which includes Miss Mary Field, Mrs. John H. Hammond, Mrs. William B. Osgood Field, Miss Delia Gurnee, Miss Parsons, and Miss Cornelia Barnes.

The Choral Club was another feature. Several solos were sung by Mrs. John Innes Kane.

The invalids honored their entertainers by brightening their uniforms with green ribbons. After each number they applauded vigorously.

Henry Solomon, Vice President of the institution, received. A large number of philanthropic men and women were present to enjoy the delight of the invalids.

Mark A. Leuscher, formerly connected with Klaw & Erlanger theatres and once general manager of F. F. Proctor's vaudeville circuit, has become associated with Martin Beck and J. J. Murdock of the Orpheum and Western vaudeville circuits.

TO HAVE A SCHOOL FOR TRIED ACTORS

Charles Frohman Adopts Novel Plan for Training Those Who Are on the Stage.

OTIS SKINNER IN CHARGE

"The Repertory Company" Will Have Frequent Interchanges of Players to Give Them Training.

Charles Frohman has accepted a set of plans submitted to him by Otis Skinner, from which a novel training school for actors will be established in New York next season and an attempt made to replenish the constantly decreasing supply of good juvenile leading men.

Instead of traveling on tour next year, Mr. Skinner will play the entire season in New York in "The Honor of the Family" and four other plays. Mr. Frohman will establish Mr. Skinner at the head of a company that will play an extensive repertory, but with a constantly changing company.

Mr. Skinner will have entire charge of the organization, the selection of the plays, the actors, the casting of the characters, and the course of training. The organization will not be a stock company, but the contracts with its members will be so drawn that their professional plans for the season will be under the direction of Mr. Skinner.

The chief principle in operating the company will be one of interchange of actors. The Charles Frohman attractions running in New York will be put at Mr. Skinner's disposal, for him to interchange actors and actresses of less than stellar rank as he sees fit.

An actor playing in "The Honor of the Family" one night may act the following night as a member of the Maude Adams or John Drew company, returning again to his original part, bettered in versatility and self-possession by the experience.

In addition to "The Honor of the Family," Mr. Skinner will add to the repertory of his own company many of his already established successes. The organization will be known as the Repertory Company. Its permanent home will be in one of the Frohman theatres.

Mr. Skinner especially wished it made clear last night that the Repertory Company can in no way assist beginners on the stage. "Its idea," he said, "is not at all that of a dramatic school, but a school for actors and actresses of recognized worth, who are still teachable.

"It is not to be a school of acting, but a school for well-tried actors. It will be as far above the ordinary school of acting as the average post-graduate or university course is above the average high school.

"Its aim will be to foster in young actors and actresses that greater flexibility, versatility, and range of power which, experience has taught me, only comes with the acting of many parts. Nor will its purpose be altogether altruistic. In fact, its chief value to a man of Charles Frohman's multiplicity of interests will be to give him exact working information as to the range of parts of which each of his juvenile actors and actresses is capable.

"We hope also, by thus giving a greater number of opportunities, to develop a greater number of young actors who can do something more than look their parts.

"The name Repertory Company developed of itself during the correspondence between Mr. Frohman and myself. I have had the project in mind for years, but I could never have operated it except in co-operation with such resources as Mr. Frohman has at his disposal."

TOO MUCH STAGE REALISM.

So Says Dr. Hermann Anders Krueger, German Dramatist and Litterateur.

Dr. Hermann Anders Krueger, an authority on German drama and literature, who is lecturing here by invitation of the Germanistic Society, talked yesterday about theatrical conditions in Germany. Dr. Krueger is Professor of German Literature in the Royal Technological School at Hanover.

He has made an exhaustive study of the history and present conditions of the modern novel and drama, and his novel, "Gottfried Kaempfer," has just passed its eighteenth edition. Three of his plays, "Ritter Hans," played in Leipsic in 1897; "Der Kronprinz," a historical drama, presented last year, and "Der Graf von Gleichen," a tragedy, recently published, have become familiar to the German public.

"The German stage," he said yesterday, "is passing through a crisis. My opinion is that it is slowly getting away from the ultra-naturalistic school, or what you call the problem play.

"It is the same with the German novel. The public is tiring of plays and stories which represent only the shadowy side of life, and is beginning to long for a return to a healthy, wholesome atmosphere as expressed in the higher drama. This involves us naturally in the difficulty of going from one extreme to another. The danger lies in the fact that the school represented by Hofmannstahl, whose 'Electra' was recently presented in this city, places too much importance upon rhetorical beauties and verbal refinement, while neglecting the true vitality of dramatic action.

"Our actors have been so persistently playing in the colloquial style and method, in which personality counts for more than art, that it is difficult to find a player capable of interpreting the idealistic character of a better literature. I am led to believe that the same condition exists with you, only in a more pronounced form.

"With us even Shakespeare is presented nowadays with such perfect realism of scenic effects that the subject matter of the drama is unduly minimized. Too little is left to the imagination and too much is demanded in emphasizing the ugly realism of art.

"Touching the American stage, so far as I know it, I can only repeat the prevailing opinion in my own country, which is that you producers pay too much attention to the details of pictorial representation which appeal principally to the eye."

Music Recital at Columbia.

There was a chamber music recital yesterday in the Horace Mann Auditorium of the Columbia University music department. It was the third in a series. There was more than 1,000 persons present yesterday. The artists were Prof. Cornelius Rübner, head of the music department, pianoforte; Modest Altschuler, conductor of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, 'cello, and Maurice Kaufmann, concertmeister of the same orchestra, violin. They were assisted by Mme. Alma Webster-Powell, soprano.

MACDOWELL FUND CLOSED.

$39,712 Raised to Found a Home for Musicians.

The committe in charge of the Edward MacDowell fund announces that it has completed its work. The society was formed to raise money to take care of the composer in his life, after his health failed, and also to found a home for musicians at Peterborough, N. H. The total contributions to the fund with interest have been $39,712. The expense of administration together with the money paid in behalf of Mr. MacDowell amounts to $10,780, leaving a balance of $28,932. This money, less some minor expenditures which have yet to be made, will be turned over to the Edward MacDowell Memorial Association, which has been formed to carry out the idea of the Musician's Home at Peterborough.

Allen Robinson, Secretary of the Edward MacDowell Fund Association, said last evening:

"When the Mendelssohn Glee Club first undertook this work in May, 1906, it was intended to carry it on until it had raised a fund of from $50,000 to $100,000. The financial depression which has prevailed for a year has interfered with the plans of the committee, and inasmuch as Mr. MacDowell has passed away, it would seem that the particular purpose for which the money was originally intended has ceased to exist. The committee is informed that another plan on a broader scope for erecting a memorial to Mr. MacDowell is contemplated, and in order not to confuse these two movements it is thought best to terminate its work at this time."

BACH TRIO REVIVED.

Composition Seldom Heard Put on Flonzaley Quartet Programme.

Musical organizations nowadays are resorting largely to the composers of a hundred years ago for their novelties instead of exploiting music by present-day writers. Mr. Damrosch accomplished the feat of playing a Beethoven novelty last Sunday afternoon at the concert of the New York Symphony Society. Sam Franko also resurrected a hitherto unheard composition by Beethoven. Last evening in Mendelssohn Hall the feature of the programme given by the Flonzaley Quartet was a rarely played sonata by Bach, written for harpsichord and two violins. It was played by Messrs. Betti and Pochon, with Arthur Whiting at the harpsichord.

The work is in four movements—a rather long Largo, followed by a very brief Vivace, and an Adagio, followed by a Presto. It is not one of the most important works of this composer, but it has many of the qualities with which he invested his better work, and it is a thoroughly pleasing composition. It was played well, and a word of praise should especially be given to Mr. Whiting, who seems to understand thoroughly the principles of ensemble playing.

The programme commenced with Tschaikowsky's Quartet in E flat major, a miniature bit of woe which is quite as poignant in its way as the "Symphonie Pathetique." Last night it hardly received its due.

The programme closed with Haydn's Quartet in D minor, Opus 76, No. 5. The audience was a large one.

MME. CAMPANINI TO SING.

Sister of Mme. Tetrazzini to Reappear on Stage at the Manhattan.

Mme. Cleofonte Campanini, known on the stage as Eva Tetrazzini, and sister of Luisa Tetrazzini, will make her reappearance on the operatic stage at the Manhattan Opera House Friday evening of next week in Giordano's "Andrea Chenier." The occasion is Mr. Campanini's annual gala night.

Mme. Campanini has not been heard in New York since 1888, when she sang in "Otello" with Italo Campanini as tenor at the Academy of Music. "Andrea Chenier" has not been heard here for several years. It will have but a single hearing, as will Mme. Campanini. The cast will include Mmes. Gerville-Réache, de Cisneros, and Zeppilli, and Messrs. Bassi, Sammarco, Crabbé, Arimondi, and Gianoli-Galletti.

On Saturday night of next week, the last night of the season, a special gala performance will be given with acts of different operas in which all the prominent stars of the Manhattan will take part. The feature of the evening will be the appearance of Mary Garden in the garden scene of "Faust," an opera in which she has not been heard here. Mme. Tetrazzini will sing the mad scene from "Lucia" and the first act of "Traviata," and the programme further includes the first act of "Pagliacci" and the second act of "Aïda." The prices will, of course, be advanced for the occasion.

Monday night "La Traviata" will be sung; Wednesday "Lucia" will be the bill, and Saturday afternoon's opera is "Louise."

At the concert Sunday evening the programme includes the finale of the third act of "Ernani," the finale of the second act of "Aïda," and two Verdi overtures. Those who will appear are Mmes. Agostinelli, Zeppilli, Gerville-Réache, Russ, and de Cisneros, and Messrs. Zenatello, Bassi, Crabbé, Ancona, Sammarco, Arimondi, and Gianoli-Galletti.

It was further announced yesterday at the Manhattan that Mr. Zenatello has signed a contract to appear there next season.

TO HEAR "FIDELIO" AGAIN.

Opera Will Be Revived at the Metropolitan Friday Night.

Beethoven's "Fidelio," which has not been heard in New York since Dec. 24, 1904, will be revived at the Metropolitan Opera House Friday evening, with Gustav Mahler as conductor. Mme. Morena will sing the title rôle on this occasion, and thereafter Mme. Leffler-Burckard will alternate with her in the part.

The scenery was painted in Vienna after designs by Prof. Roller of the Imperial Academy, and the entire production will be staged exactly as at the Vienna Opera House. Mr. Mahler, who was responsible for the present Vienna production, has had entire charge of the revival in New York, and all the changes that he has made in the music and stage settings, will be observed here.

"Fidelio" will be the last important work to be staged by Mr. Conried in his management of the Metropolitan. In addition to Mme. Morena the artists who will appear are Mme. Alten and Messrs. Burrian, Van Rooy, Blass, Goritz, and Reiss.

Next Week at the Metropolitan.

Next week's bills at the Metropolitan Opera House include two performances of "Mignon," one on Monday night, the other Saturday afternoon. Tuesday evening is Mr. Conried's benefit performance at special prices, in which most of the stars will appear in acts from various operas. On Wednesday evening, "Faust" will be sung, Thursday "Fidelio," Friday "Il Trovatore," and on Saturday night "Tannhäuser."

Two letters of President Roosevelt, written during the Spanish war, were among the interesting autographs sold by the Anderson Company in West Twenty-ninth Street yesterday. Both are addressed to John Brisben Walker, then editor of The Cosmopolitan Magazine. They are typewritten, but signed by Mr. Roosevelt. One, dated "First Reg., U. S. Vol. Cav., in camp at Montauk Point, Aug. 8, 1898, is as follows:

> My Dear Mr. Walker: I should like very much to accept, but upon my word I do not know how I can, for I have had infinite requests to write, and it is going to be difficult to meet a tenth of them, and they offer me prices which I really should not have dreamed of asking myself. Very sincerely yours,
>
> T. ROOSEVELT.

This fetched $2.25.

The other letter is dated Camp Wikoff, Montauk, L. I., Sept. 7, 1898, and is as follows:

> Mr. Dear Mr. Walker: In a little while I think I shall be at leisure to have the writer of whom you spoke call on me. I only wish I were able to write for you myself, but I am engaged to the hilt. Sincerely yours,
>
> T. ROOSEVELT.

This letter sold for $2.50.

There were also three interesting and characteristic letters written by Mark Twain to Mr. Walker, the earliest of these is a four page 12mo, dated "Kaltenbentgeben bei Wien, Sept. 19, 1898," and reading in part as follows:

> Dear Mr. Walker: Sure it's the illigant [sic] conscience you've got and few there be that can afford such an expensive one. Yes, the second check astonished—and gratified me. I didn't know what it was for. I merely uttered my little prayer of humble thanks and went and cashed it. Many would have thought God sent it, but I knew, by the signature, it was you. Indeed and indeed I am hoping I shall yet appear again in The Cosmopolitan. * * *

This letter brought $13.25.

Another of the letters is two pages and is dated London, March 2, 1900. The letter paper bears mourning border. It refers to a request for permission to republish one of his articles. This letter sold for $6.50.

The third letter is dated Wallis Hill, London, Sept. 27, 1900, and is of similar import to the previous letter to Mr. Walker. It sold for $4.80.

William Jennings Bryan was also represented in the sale by a two-page letter to Mr. Walker. It was written in Lincoln, Neb., but bears no date. It is entirely in Bryan's handwriting. Such letters, it is said, are rare. It is as follows:

> My Dear Mr. Walker: I do not know to what extent it is considered proper for a publisher to tell others of his rates, but to the extent that it is proper I would like to know about what rates are charged per 1,000 circulation. I have not taken advertisements, but shall soon. I prefer the class of advertisements found in the magazine. You will be interested to know that The Commoner has about 41,000 now, and has been increasing at over 1,000 per day for two weeks. Regards to the family. Yours truly,
>
> W. J. BRYAN.

This fetched $3.25.

Other interesting items sold as follows: Gen. U. S. Grant's order to Gen. Thomas, Dec. 8, 1864, to advance on the Confederate Gen. Hood at Nashville, $75; a letter of John Hay, Washington, D. C., Nov. 19, 1890, "I have never written a word of gossip about the White House and never shall," $6.50; a letter of Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jan. 7, 1891, about his introduction to the History of Woodstock, $12.50; a letter of Rudyard Kipling, March 15, 1895, in regard to writing articles from India, $11; the signatures of President Lincoln and his Cabinet on one sheet of paper, $19; a letter of President McKinley, New York, Nov. 30, 1904, $19:25, and a typewritten letter of Andrew Carnegie to John Brisben Walker, declining to write his autobiography, 40 cents.

BETA THETA PI DINNER.

College Fraternity to Hold a Feast at the Astor.

Members of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, of whom there are more than 1,000 in and around New York City, will hold one of the biggest celebrations in the history of the organization, which was formed at Miami University in 1839 by "Pater" Knox, at the Hotel Astor on Saturday evening. The dinner will mark the completion of a successful first year of householding, the club having a home at 46 East Twenty-fifth Street for its 300 members. The guests will include William E. Borah, Senator from Idaho, who conducted the Moyer-Haywood prosecution; Norris Brown, Senator from Nebraska; Congressmen Henry S. Boutell and Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Congressman Charles F. Scott of Kansas, and Congressman Charles B. Landis of Indiana. Townsend Scudder, Justice of the Supreme Court, will be toastmaster. Near-by college and university chapters will send undergraduate delegations.

HOLIDAY SAVES PUPILS.

Quick-Witted Principal Announces It to Empty School at a Fire.

The coolness of the Principal and teachers of the East Side Kindergarten and Industrial School, in Gouverneur Street, between Henry Street and East Broadway, yesterday morning prevented the 500 children of the school from being panicstricken by a fire which for a time threatened to destroy the building. An overheated stove set fire to the conservatory annex of the regular school building. Firemen of Engine Company 15, which is next door, put out the blaze.

Mrs. Hill, the Principal, sent word to the classes to go home as it was Purim. The children marched out quietly.

Mgr. Rouxel Dead.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—The Right Rev. Gustave A. Rouxel, Auxiliary Bishop of the Archdiocese of New Orleans, died here to-day after an illness of several days. Bishop Rouxel was born in France on Feb. 2, 1840. When twenty-three years old he came to the United States, and was ordained to the priesthood in the same year. He preached throughout Louisiana for forty years, and was appointed Bishop of Curium and Auxiliary Bishop of New Orleans in 1899.

FOR THE TABLE.

While lobsters are still high, 38 and 40 cents a pound, and at the season when they are much in demand, it is well to remember that the smaller ones are the more economical to buy. Those at three-quarters or a pound contain the largest proportion of solid white meat. In the others there is more of the water and the coral which is good for decoration, but not as much real substance in proportion.

Nothing is better in the way of fresh vegetables at this season than beets, nothing more healthful than buttered beets, and they cost only 10 cents a bunch. Beets are also one of the best of canned vegetables, and where time and trouble are worth considering, delicious ones can be found for 16 and 18 cents a quart can. This is the season of the year to think of matzoths, unleavened bread, delicate thin cakes which come in packages for 10 cents.

The woman who gives teas should not forget the delicate sea wafers, which are 20 cents a package.

There are also the casava cakes, very delicate and delicious toasted, 30 cents a box.

Irish imported bacon is 38 cents a pound. It costs less than the imported English bacon, which is 40 cents a pound.

A substitute for green apples, and one which can be used satisfactorily even in apple dumplings, is the evaporated, which is prepared whole, peeled, and cored.

Pitted and dried cherries can be used to advantage in many ways.

California dried pears are also an unfamiliar dried fruit which will increase the housekeeper's list of economies.

Any one can have chicken soup with chicken at 16 cents a pound.

Philadelphia fowls are the same price.

Philadelphia broilers and roasting chickens are 22 cents.

Philadelphia capons are 28 cents.

Maryland turkeys are 25 cents.

Guinea broilers are $2 a pair.

Pigeons are $1 a dozen.

Last Night—at Delmonico's The Friendly Sons of St. Patrick entertained among their guests of honor Secretary Taft and Governors Johnson and Hughes, and of course served White Rock as the exclusive water.

SOLDIER ATHLETES IN ARMORY MEET

Keen Competition Marks Annual Games of Twenty-second Regiment.

MOHAWK TAKES LONG RUN

Big Crowd Witnesses Novel Events and Cheers Military Competitors—Sheppard in Sprint Race.

One of the best sets of indoor games this Winter was held last night by the Twenty-second Regiment Engineers Athletic Association at the Armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway. The programme was an attractive one, with several novel and interesting events which furnished keen excitement and enjoyment to a big crowd of spectators. Athletes famed throughout the country for their track and field performances competed in the seventeen events that made up the programme. The galleries surrounding the armory were filled with a select crowd, the majority of which comprised women, while the main floor, surrounding the ten-lap track, was uncomfortably crowded with the members of the regiment and their friends. The rivalry between the companies was keen, and onlookers were frequently aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Although every event, with a single exception, was closed to the members competition was keen and interest well sustained throughout the games.

The feature event was the three-mile cross-country run, open to all Amateur Athletic Union clubs in the metropolitan district. Five clubs and W. G. Frank, Irish-American Athletic Club, competed, the latter as an individual. Each team was permitted to run five men, with four to count. It was the first indoor cross-country run ever held in this city, and, judged by its success, it will be added to the regular programmes in future. Eddie Carr and Dan Frank led at the end of the first mile, but the latter dropped out and was replaced by W. J. Gould. Carr won the event in fast time, with Gould second. The team prize went to the Mohawk Athletic Club, with 20 points, with Xavier Athletic Association second.

Melvin W. Sheppard, who was placed on scratch, declined the issue in the half-mile handicap, which left his company mate, J. P. Sullivan, on the ten-yard mark, virtually scratch man. The liberal handicaps were too much for Sullivan, who ran unplaced. The event went to J. T. Harris, Company F, with 65 yards. R. H. Lummis, 10 yards back of the winner, finished second, with H. P. Odell, (35 yards,) third.

The 70-yard handicap required seven trial and three semi-final heats to reduce the field for the final heat. Melvin Sheppard, with seven yards, started in the second heat, but failed to qualify. C. B. Clarke, Company A, with seven feet, finished first in the final heat a few inches in front of E. E. Woolfolk, Company I, with 18 feet start. The 70-yard novice event was a gift for S. Johnson, who scored an easy victory over W. T. Walters and H. J. Noble, who finished second and third, respectively.

One of the most interesting numbers on the programme was an exhibition half-mile walk between Samuel Liebgold, Pastime A. C.; W. F. McLaughlin, Twenty-second Regiment, and Louis Liebgold, Irish-American A. C. Less than five yard separated the three men from start to finish, the contestants alternating in the lead. Louis Liebgold won amid great enthusiasm by a yard from McLaughlin, who was the same distance in front of Samuel Liebgold.

R. G. Koch, Dan Frank, and J. J. McEntee, all of Company A, finished first, second, and third, respectively, in the quarter-mile handicap. All three of the placed men were heavily handicapped, but they worked their way through the bunch and finished five yards apart.

Only three men finished out of a field of ten starters in the two-mile roller-skating race. The floor was in poor condition for roller skating and falls were numerous. H. J. Winter, Company I, beat his company mate, N. J. Donnelly.

The point trophy, which has always been the object of the keenest competition, was won by Company A with 48 points. Company F was second, with 35½ points, and Company I third, with 24 points. The summaries:

70-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by C. B. Clarke; E. E. Woolfolk, second; W. P. Dunn, third. Time—0:07 2-5.

WANDERERS WIN GAME.

Canadian Champions Beat Shamrocks at St. Nicholas Rink 12 to 7.

One of the best exhibitions of hockey that has ever been played in New York was given last night at St. Nicholas Rink by the Wanderers and Shamrocks, both of Montreal, two of the strongest teams of Canada. The Wanderers, by reason of winning the Stanley Cup, are not only the champions of Canada, but are practically conceded to be the champions of the world. Throughout the hockey season in the Dominion the Wanderers have been defeated but twice in their competition for the championship, while they have won a total of ten contests.

Last night St. Nicholas Rink was crowded with an enthusiastic number of spectators to witness the meeting of these teams. The Wanderers won the game by a score of 12 goals to 7. For speed and skill it was conceded to be the best exhibition ever seen in New York.

When the puck was first put into play the Shamrocks carried it down close to their opponents' goal and kept it there until Morrison made the first count. The play then became fast and exciting, and it was ten minutes later before Snail of the Wanderers took the puck down almost the entire length of the rink for a score. Russell and Stewart soon followed their associate by scoring goals, and then Campbell, by a pretty shot, tallied the fifth goal. The Wanderers added two more goals in hot scrimmages, followed by another count for the Shamrocks by Morrison.

Four more goals were scored by the Wanderers before the whistle blew to one for the Shamrocks, leaving the total for the first half 9 for the Wanderers and 4 for the Shamrocks.

In the second half both teams went at the puck furiously. The Shamrocks were surprisingly fast, and kept the rubber dangerously near their opponents' basket. In a vigorous scrimmage Goal Keeper Hern of the Wanderers was partially knocked out and had to be carried to the side lines to recuperate. Upon resumption of play Mallen got the puck in the middle of the rink, dribbled it beautifully and placed it in the basket. It was here that the first penalty was inflicted upon a player for tripping, Stewart being sent off the ice. In a scrimmage Mallen shot the second goal for the Shamrocks and Morrison followed with one shortly after. The score at this time was 9 to 7 in favor of the Wanderers. Russell then added one more goal for the Wanderers, and in the remaining time two more goals were made by Russell and Snail, respectively, for the victorious team. The goal keeping of Nicholson was the star feature of the game. The teams and summaries:

CRACK GALLERY SHOTS.

Riflemen Competing for Championship at Zettler Ranges.

The twelfth annual gallery championship match and prize shoot, held under the auspices of the Zettler Rifle Club, at the latter's ranges, 159 West Twenty-third Street, has thus far attracted some of the best indoor riflemen in the country. The competition began on March 14, and will be wound up on next Saturday night. Eight men have finished their scores in the 100-shot championship match, on twenty targets of five shots each, on the regular twenty-five quarter-inch ring target. The shooter making the highest score during the competition will receive the gold championship medal and the choice of prizes. Up to Monday night inclusive, the scores were: W. A. Tewes, 2,457; H. M. Thomas, 2,455; J. Kaufman, 2,432; G. Hoffman, 2,417; C. Zettler, 2,405; G. T. Ross, 2,397; P. J. Donavan, 2,392; G. T. Conti, 2,359.

In a continuous match, open to all, three shots on a target with an eighth of an inch rings; the centre, 25, being a quarter of an inch in diameter, the scores up to date out of a possible seventy-five, are: L. P. Ittel, five 75's; H. M. Thomas, three 75's; R. Gute, one 75; J. Smith, one 75. In the Gus Zimmermann Trophy Match, three shots, re-entries unlimited, best two tickets to count, the competition is very keen. R. Gute is the top man, with a possible 39. The best centre shots by measurement were made by Capt. Landensack, 6 degrees; H. J. Behrmann, 7; L. P. Ittel, 7½; Capt. Gus Zimmermann, 8½; F. C. Ross, 10; G. T. Ross, 10; G. Hoffman, 10½; R. Gute, 10½; T. H. Keller, 11; G. T. Conti, 13½; H. M. Thomas, 13½; Col. Tewes, 21; P. J. Donavan, 23; J. Kaufman, 23½; C. Meyer, 28½; G. Reynolds, 30; W. Rosenbaum, 30½; J. Lewis, 34½.

The most bull's-eyes have been made by Gus Zimmermann, with 36. T. H. Keller has made 21; H. J. Behrmann, 20; G. Hoffman, 11.

Columbia Wins at Soccer.

Columbia defeated the Springfield Training School yesterday in the first home game of the local college's Spring soccer season by a score of 3 to 1. It came very near being a shut-out for the visitors, as they scored their goal in the last half-minute of play. The Columbia team played in better style than its opponents, the footwork being far superior. During the first half the ball was almost continually in Springfield's half of the field, but its defense was strong, and hard playing prevented Columbia from scoring more than once. The goal was made by Diaz out of a scrimmage immediately in front of the goal. Soon after the start of the second half he made another goal. Columbia's last goal was made by Billingsley after getting the ball cleverly centred by Capt. Dwyer. Springfield's goal was made by Field, who bounced the ball over Tallant's head. The summary:

Columbia, (3.)	Position.	S. T. S., (1.)
Tallant	Goal	Johnson
Voskamp	Right back	Hall
Carpenter	Right half back	Flemming
Ferguson	Centre half back	North
Kistler	Left half back	Honhart
Billingsley	Right wing	Bailey
Smith	Right inside	White
Diaz	Centre forward	McGuire

Goals—Diaz, (2,) Billingsley. Field referee—R. Annan, Columbia. Linesmen—For Springfield, A. L. Moses; for Columbia, W. D. Murphy. Time of halves—Thirty minutes.

Championship Soccer Games.

Delegates from the eleven clubs in the New York State "Soccer" Football League met last night at the Boys' Club, Avenue A and Tenth Street. The date for the final game to determine the championship of the Sunday League was set for March 29 at Bronx Oval, the competing teams being the Clarendons and Port Chesters. The winning team will then play the Camerons, the holder of the Saturday League championship, for the championship of the State League, the date for this game to be determined later. The protest against the game played a few weeks ago in West Hoboken between the Clarendons and the Clan MacLeods was sustained, the Clan MacLeods, who won the match, being charged with having ineligible players. The game was ordered to be replayed. Vice President B. Kessler of the Boys' Club presided at the meeting in the absence of President F. H. Taber.

AUTO STATEMENT BY A. C. A.'S OFFICERS

No Issue with American Automobile Association Exists, Say Governors.

WITHDREW TO BENEFIT CLUB

Massachusetts Club Also Insists That Its Resignation from A. A. A. Be Accepted—Question of Dues.

The Board of Governors of the Automobile Club of America gave out the first official statement yesterday of the reasons for its withdrawal from the American Automobile Association. President Colgate Hoyt presided at the meeting, which was held in the clubrooms, West Fifty-fourth Street, near Broadway. The Governors refuse to admit in the official statement that any vital differences between the club and the American Automobile Association exist. They state that they were surprised that a man of President Hotchkiss's judicial attainments should have said that he "welcomes the withdrawal of the Automobile Club of America" from the organization of which he is President, and "hails the issue." This, say the Governors, is the more surprising because the Automobile Club of America is not aware that any "issue exists."

The Governors express their reasons for the step as follows, closing with well wishes to the American Automobile Association for future success.

The club withdraws from its affiliation with the American Automobile Association for the purpose of more effectively carrying on its numerous activities, not only for the benefit of its own members in all parts of the country, but also for motorists generally.

The question of raising the dues was not known to the board when it decided to withdraw and so had no bearing on the decision.

The Automobile Club of America, the first club formed in America and immediately constituted the sole recognized American representative of all the foreign automobile clubs, which it still is, fought and won the early battles for motorists in this country and needs no apology for its name. To these early struggles the American motorist to-day is largely indebted for the rights which he now enjoys on the public highway, in the parks, and on the ferries.

The Automobile Club of America has always believed in fostering inter-club relationship by interchange of club privileges. It wishes the American Automobile Association every success in all its endeavors that make for the good of the sport of motoring and will at all times be glad to render such assistance to this end as may be within its power.

In connection with this statement, it was also announced, through the representative of the Massachusetts Automobile Club, Otto B. Cole, that the Governing Committee of the club at a meeting last Friday declined to reconsider its recent resignation from the American Automobile Association and insisted that it be accepted.

President Oliver A. Quayle of the New York State Automobile Association, in a recent explanation of the difficulty in which he explained that, as a matter of fairness to all the affiliated clubs, the Buffalo Club offered the amendment that all clubs should pay equally—that is, $1 per member—said:

"My personal acquaintance with many of the members of the A. C. A. is such that I know that an item of $300 or $400 could not occasion a difference of opinion. On the other hand, I am inclined to think that the real differences are over a matter of legislation."

The A. C. A. and the Buffalo Club both enjoyed the benefits of the special act of last year that clubs exceeding a membership of 500 should only be required to pay to the A. A. A. and the State Association $500. Both clubs have over 1,200 active members.

SAVANNAH RACES TO-DAY.

Runabouts and Heavyweight Autos to Compete in Stock Car Events.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 17.—The drivers of the cars entered in the stock-car automobile races, which start to-morrow over the 10-mile course, received their final instructions to-night, and everything is now ready for the starting of the first event, which will be the contest for the Runabout Cup, open to cars of a maximum piston displacement of 375 cubic inches. Six cars will start, being, with drivers:

Pennsylvania, L. Zengle; Cleveland, E. H. Pope; Thomas-Detroit, W. May; Apperson, H. Lytle; Premier, Hammond, and Thomas-Detroit, Lorimer.

The military which is to patrol the course will leave the city early to-morrow morning. The men will take one day's rations and remain on the course all day. The second event, for heavy-weight cars, will come in the afternoon. Every business house and public building in Savannah will be closed on the two race days.

The Thomas-Detroit cars with Lorimer and May driving were the first to drive over the entire racing course. They did the 360 miles to-day, constituting the distance for the Savannah challenge trophy on Thursday. No effort at speed was made, but the cars made the 10-mile circuits at from 20 to 25 minutes each. The races to-morrow will be 180 miles each. Louis Strang drove his Isatta car to-day over the course in 21 minutes.

The first accident occurred on the course this morning. The road had been freshly oiled, and Tom Barber, a chauffeur, was thrown from his machine, which skidded, and sustained a broken leg.

Three-Hour Race in Brooklyn.

Four teams have already entered the three-hour professional team running race to be held at Clermont Rink, Brooklyn, on Monday evening, March 23. The teams are: Mike Spring and Percy Smallwood, "Pop" Feeny and G. Renniger, Will Feeney and Pete Hegeman, and Jim Fraser and C. Renniger. Entries close Saturday night. The management is trying to secure the Carlisle Indian team, Black Heath and Tall Feather. Several amateurs who have become tired chasing after medals and glory are trying to get partners to compete. F. W. G. Nowka, the half-mile walking champion, will try to clip the quarter, half, and mile records.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

The first returns of the season from the New Orleans meeting were received at the Gravesend and Sheepshead Bay tracks yesterday, when horses representing half a dozen Eastern stables that raced at the Southern Winter meeting arrived and claimed stable room. George Newton, among the trainers of the returning stables, stated that the establishment of Burlew & O'Neill, in which are trained the Derby horses Chapultepec and Angelus, would follow in a few days.

A fire alarm at the Sheepshead Bay course yesterday was the cause of a lot of commotion among trainers and owners. The fire that was the first cause of the trouble was one which destroyed the steaming plant in the stable of John J. Hyland, former trainer for August Belmont and Gideon & Daly. The fire was extinguished before it spread beyond the place where it started.

James Healy, trainer of the big racing establishment of Michael Murphy, yesterday completed his plans for the shipment of the Murphy horses to New York from the training quarters at Oceanport, N. J. The Murphy horses, which number twenty-four, are to be quartered in Stable 10 at the Sheepshead Bay track.

Horses representing nearly a dozen prominent stables of the Eastern turf have arrived at the Gravesend track from the Stamford, Conn., farm owned by John Hynes, where the horses were wintered. John Hynes still is in charge, but the horses will be turned back to their respective owners as fast as they can be claimed. Rye, owned by State Senator Chrystie Sullivan, is in the number, and has come back from his Winter in the snow looking like a new horse.

The weights for the two most important Spring handicaps—the Carter at the Aqueduct meeting, and the Excelsior, at the Jamaica meeting—are to be announced to-morrow. Both races are for three-year-olds and upward, the Carter at seven furlongs and the Excelsior at a mile and a sixteenth. The Carter will be the first important race of the season on the opening day of New York racing, and the Excelsior will have the place of first attraction on the opening day of the Metropolitan Jockey Club's races.

The biggest purchasers of thoroughbred yearling fillies at the annual sales of 1907 were the Miller Brothers, owning the 101 Ranch of Oklahoma, but the supposition that the firm would enter racing has been corrected by an announcement from the Millers. Their purchases were in the main fillies, and it is stated by the owners that they intend to save about all of these fillies for breeding purposes, with the view to breeding show ponies to be sired by pony stallions of suitable quality.

BONAPARTE FARMS ON SALE.

Attorney General Is Disposing of Some of His Maryland Property.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 17.—Recently Attorney General Bonaparte said he had met with financial losses through loans to a friend and a banking firm's trouble. To-day three of his farms in Prince George's County were offered for sale at auction at Upper Marlborough.

The Weston farm was sold at private sale to Henry Bowie Claggett of Washington. The Flint farm, 180 acres, went to T. R. Bond of Baltimore, the sale afterward being withdrawn. The Waring farm of 315 acres, near Nottingham, was sold for $1,800 to Charles Binger. The Bowling Green farm, about seventy-five acres, in the trucking section of Oxen Hill, near Washington, was knocked down to P. M. Burnett of Baltimore, and the sale withdrawn. The farms will now be disposed of at a private sale.

ST. LOUIS BREWERY STRIKE.

3,500 Men Quit Work Through Factional Fight in Union.

ST. LOUIS, March 17.—The 3,500 union employes in the St. Louis breweries were notified this afternoon to strike as a result of a factional quarrel in Beer Drivers' Local No. 43. The call for the strike was issued by officials of the International United Brewery Workers of America after a fruitless conference with the representatives of the breweries. The men walked out.

The brewers now say they will institute an open shop.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 17.—There was filed in the Nassau County Clerk's Office to-day a mortgage deed of trust from the American Ice Company to the United States Trust Company of Manhattan, to secure an issue of $500,000 of consolidated mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds. The mortgage covers the company's property in ten counties in New York State. The paper is dated March 2, 1908, and 500 bonds, of $1,000 each, make up the issue.

ROCHE OUT IN ONE BLOW.

Tommy Burns Floors Irish Champion in Less Than Two Minutes.

DUBLIN, Ireland, March 17.—Tommy Burns, the American heavyweight champion, made short work of Jem Roche, the Irish champion, in their contest this evening at the Theatre Royal for the world's heavyweight championship. Practically only one blow was struck, Burns knocking Roche out, when hardly more than a minute and a half of the first round had been completed, by a short hook to the jaw. So quickly did the end come that the great crowd which filled the theatre, in the expectation of seeing the Irishman put up a good fight for the title, hardly realized what had happened.

When the men entered the ring it was evident that the sluggish Roche was no match for the more experienced Burns. They sparred for less than a minute, the Irishman acting altogether on the defensive and the American endeavoring to find an opening. Then Burns feinted and quickly put a short, sharp right to the jaw, and Roche went down. He was badly dazed, and although he struggled to regain his feet, was unable to do so before the final ten was counted.

Immediately after the count Roche got to his feet, but staggered about the stage. When he had recovered himself he went over smilingly to congratulate the winner; he had met a better man.

The fight was for a purse of $7,500, which was put up by a syndicate, of which Richard Croker, the former Tammany leader, was a member, and a side bet of $2,500. In addition Burns had bet $7,000 on himself at odds of 1 to 3. The ringside betting was 2 to 7 on the American. The crowd hissed Roche as it left the theatre.

Richard Croker occupied a box near the ring, and was compelled to acknowledge the tremendous cheering that greeted him.

Amateur Boxer Killed in Ring.

PHILADELPHIA, March 17. — In an amateur boxing tournament, following the regular performance at the Bijou Theatre, here to-night, Will Robinson, aged 19 years, was killed while boxing with Charles Wolf of the same age. The referee, Wolf, his second, and the second for Robinson were arrested.

Gans to Fight Unholz.

Joe Gans, champion, and Rudolph Unholz, the fighting Boer, yesterday agreed to fight for the lightweight championship of the world before the club offering the richest inducements. No time has been set for the match, but it will take place within a few weeks, probably in California, under the management of Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter.

Justice Moody in Baseball for Life.

BOSTON, March 17. — Justice William H. Moody of the United States Supreme Court has accepted election as honorary member of the New England Baseball League for life. In a letter to Secretary Jacob C. Morse Judge Moody says: "I was present at the birth of the league and was, as you know, its first President. I never lost interest in its welfare or in the great game whose interests it promotes."

Billiard and Pool Results.

"Broadway Alex" Smith defeated W. Bradley last night in the pool tournament at Doyle's Academy by the score of 50 to 22.

Willie Hoppe won two games of 18.2 balk-line billiards from Jake Schaefer yesterday at Gruhn's Academy, the first game by 300 to 240 and the second contest 400 to 159.

George Sutton and F. Cassignol divided honors in their billiard matches yesterday at Slosson's Academy, the French champion winning the afternoon game, 300 to 284, and Sutton capturing the evening contest, 500 to 329.

CHICAGO, March 17.—E. W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., to-day defeated Clarence Jackson of Chicago in the fourth game of the National amateur championship billiard tournament by the score of 400 to 260.

Conklin defeated Poggenburg to-night by the score of 400 to 229.

Brill Spring Coats
Are Necessities

In this New York, subwayed and high builded, men seldom need heavy overcoats.

Bitter cold days here are few and far between—most men's time here is spent largely under cover.

The light overcoat is the really necessary outside coat.

You need a light overcoat eight months out of twelve in New York—and you need it on vacations.

Brill light overcoats rank supreme—supreme in style, in fabric-range, in modern tailoring and in value.

Brill Spring Coats are six months to one year in advance in style of cut and style of fabric. You can be sure that the Brill Spring coat you buy for wear now will be correct for wear again next fall.

Brill Spring Coats are $15 to $45.

GOLF RULE DECISIONS.

Queries Submitted to St. Andrews Committee Issued by U. S. G. A.

An interesting golf pamphlet containing all the queries submitted to the Rules of Golf Committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, for use in the recent revision of the rules of golf, was issued yesterday by the United States Golf Association. The pamphlet contains 236 queries dating from April, 1903, to September, 1907, and they cover a wide field of disputed points. In each case the decision of the Rules Committee is given, and in the revision recently sent to the St. Andrews Club by the United States Golf Association the changes in clearer wording were based to a large extent upon the answers to these queries. W. Fellowes Morgan, Secretary of the U. S. G. A., recently received a letter from H. H. Burn, Chairman of the St. Andrews Rules Committee, complimenting the association for its excellent work.

"The work done by your association," he says, "is in nearly all cases in complete accord with our views and your rule for advice is almost word for word the same as the one we propose."

This rule in the revised code is:

"A player shall neither ask for nor willingly receive advice as to his play from any one except his own caddie, his partner, or his partner's caddie. The penalty for a breach of this rule shall be the loss of the hole."

Columbia Crews on the River.

Coach Rice got the Columbia crews out on the river yesterday in spite of the cold weather. Two 'Varsity crews were boated and two freshman, besides a mixed eight of both classes. The 'Varsity rowed surprisingly well, and Coach Rice said that he was entirely satisfied with the showing made. The freshmen were sent out in barges to paddle around, as in most cases it was their first experience with a racing boat on the water and with sweeps. Following is the boating of the 'Varsity crews:

First boat—Cerussi, stroke; Von Saltza, 7; Dellenbaugh, 6; Starbuck, 5; J. Mackenzie, 4; Spalding, 3; Jordan, 2; Snevily, bow; Winslow, coxswain.

Second boat—Ryan, stroke; Keator, 7; Saunders, 6; Renshaw, 5; Hammond, 4; Hodgkinson, 3; Murphy, 2; Helmrich, bow.

Anglers Discuss Plans.

Between fifty and sixty anglers attended the regular monthly meeting of the Anglers' Club of New York and a dinner at Burns's Restaurant, Sixth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, last night, the attendance being one of the largest in the history of the club. Plans for the coming season were considered, but the most encouraging sign that skilled fishing is progressing was the fact that eight new names were added to the membership roll. The members were entertained with speeches on the sport by Louis Rhead, a veteran angler; William Arthur Babson, and Charles H. Townsend, Director of the New York Aquarium.

Centre No. 188 Wins Two Games.

Basket ball teams representing Evening Recreation Centre No. 20, won two games and lost one last night in matches with Centre No. 188 at Savage's Gymnasium. No. 20 won the lightweight game by the score of 13 to 10, and took the heavyweight class contest by 11 to 10. The middleweight team of No. 188, however, captured its game from No. 20 by the score of 25 to 6.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHERN District of New York.—In the matter of MAX KAPELL, HARRY B. KAPELL, and MORRIS D. COHEN, individually and as members of the firm of EMPIRE BINDING COMPANY.—Alleged Bankrupts.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the affidavit of Albert Falck, verified the 14th day of March, 1908, that a petition was filed herein on the 25th day of February, 1908, that Max Kapell, Harry B. Kapell, and Morris D. Cohen, individually and as members of the firm of Empire Binding Company, be adjudicated bankrupts and that a subpoena be issued directed to the said Max Kapell, Harry B. Kapell, and Morris D. Cohen, which said subpoena was duly issued out of this court to a Marshal in and for the Southern District of New York, and said Marshal having made his return that the said Max Kapell and Harry B. Kapell have been duly served and that he was unable to serve said subpoena on Morris D. Cohen, one of the bankrupts, and that he will be unable to serve the said Morris D. Cohen; and

It appearing to my satisfaction that diligent efforts have been made since to ascertain the whereabouts of the said Morris D. Cohen, and that the said Morris D Cohen cannot be found;

Now, on motion of Millard H. Ellison, attorney for Albert Falck, the receiver herein, it is Ordered that the said Morris D. Cohen appear, plead, answer, or demur on or before the 4th day of April, 1908, and in case of his failure to appear, plead, answer, or demur, adjudication shall be made according to the prayer in said petition; and it is Further ordered that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two consecutive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 18th day of March, 1908, and that a copy of this order and said petition be mailed to the said Morris D. Cohen at his last known place of abode on or before the date of the first publication.

Dated New York, March 16th, 1908.

GEORGE C. HOLT, D. J.

MILLARD H. ELLISON, Attorney for Receiver, 115 Broadway, Manhattan, New York City.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Precipitation, both snow and rain, during the last twenty-four hours, has been very irregularly distributed.

Temperatures continue abnormally cold in the extreme North, with Summer temperatures in the South, with the cold slowly working southward.

No general fall in temperature seems probable as yet.

Winds along the New England Coast will be fresh and variable; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to fresh east; South Atlantic Coast, fresh southwest.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have light variable winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy, probably rain; light variable winds, mostly east.

New England—Fair wednesday and Thursday, except rain Thursday in southwest portion; fresh, variable winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1907.	1908.		1907.	1908.
3 A. M.	38	29	4 P. M.	59	40
6 A. M.	36	28	6 P. M.	56	40
9 A. M.	42	33	9 P. M.	52	38
12 M.	54	37	12 P. M.	46	38

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 34; for the corresponding date last year it was 48; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 38.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 31; at 8 P. M. it was 39. Maximum temperature, 40 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 28 degrees at 5:40 A. M. Humidity, 58 per cent. at 8 A. M., 75 per cent. at 8 P. M.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks in Strong Close — Call Money Rates, 2@1¾ Per Cent.

SELLING PRESSURE REMOVED

Trading Professional and Lighter—Banks Gaining from Sub-Treasury—Aldrich Bill Changes.

The decline in progress when the stock market closed on Monday night ran still further in the forenoon session yesterday, and it was not until late in the afternoon that it received a check in the form of another move against the short interest. The shares which this class of trader sold short on Monday when the market began to waver were taken in hand near the end of the trading and pushed up vigorously so that their final quotations represented advances of a point or more over Tuesday's level. The influence of their rise was distributed rather generally through the list with the result that the entire market bore an appearance of considerable strength. The volume of business itself was much under that of the previous day, and the trading was even more largely professional. There was missing the pure liquidation which helped to depress prices in the preceding session. In the day's news there was very little to explain the resumption of the forward movement. From the Pittsburg district advices were still mixed; the Corn Products Company Directors met during the day and reduced the dividend on the preferred shares to the point where the year's disbursement makes up 5 per cent. against 7 per cent. last year, the loss being due in part to falling business and in part to expenditures entailed by the Pure Food law; the Central Vermont Railroad was fined by the Federal Court in this city for rebating; criminal suits were put under way against the Chesapeake & Ohio for alleged corrupt practices in the matter of granting of rates to favored shippers, and the bituminous coal miners continued to agitate for a strike, and in Mississippi a small bank was forced to close its doors. If these various matters had any weight whatever with the traders in the early part of the day they were dismissed later when stress was put upon the more favorable developments. Much was made of the undenied report that President Roosevelt is about to recommend to Congress changes in the Sherman law, which will permit agreements among railroads subject to scrutiny by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and there was a tendency also to look upon the dropping of railroad bonds from the securities enumerated in the Aldrich bill as a basis for banknotes as a favorable factor.

From the Sub-Treasury local banks succeeded in making another small gain, and their net intake since Friday last amounts now to $1,250,000 against the $8,000,000 drain at this time a week ago which followed the recall of United States deposits. Money rates were practically unchanged, while foreign exchange rates fell sharply again near the end of the day. The showing of the February foreign trade report had undoubtedly something to do with this decline. Banks are much interested in the elimination from the Aldrich bill of the railroad bond feature. The belief seems to be that the chances of the bill's passing have been enhanced by this step and that its effects will be felt upon State and municipal securities, which as the measure now stands will form the only basis for additional note circulation.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Good Weather Brings Low Records—Closes 9 to 14 Points Down.

Cotton was weak and unsettled yesterday, with all months except March making new low records for the movement, under rumors of easier spot markets. The close was 3 or 4 points up from the lowest and steady, but at a net decline of 9@14 points. Sales were estimated at 225,000 bales.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1@4 points in response to rather easier cables and continued good weather in the South. Spot news from the Mississippi Valley suggested that low grades there were selling at a price permitting of tenders on local contracts. The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Mon. Close.
March	10.34	10.24	10.25@10.27	10.35
April	....	....	10.25@10.27	10.35

June	10.22	10.12	10.12@10.14	10.21
July	10.17	9.99	10.04@10.05	10.17
August	9.97	9.79	9.84@ 9.85	9.98
October	9.72	9.60	9.64@ 9.65	9.73
December	9.76	9.72	9.67@ 9.68	9.77

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, with prices 15 points lower, at 11.05 for middling upland and 11.30 for middling Gulf. Sales nil.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: New Orleans quiet, 1-16c higher at 11c, sales 1,750 bales; Memphis quiet, ⅛c lower at 11¼c, sales 1,350 bales; Houston quiet, ⅛c lower at 11c, sales 255 bales; Mobile quiet, unchanged at 10⅝c, sales 100 bales; Savannah dull and easy, unchanged at 10¾c, sales 135 bales; Norfolk dull, ⅛c lower at 11⅜c, sales 49 bales; Augusta steady, 1-16c lower at 11⅛c, sales 242 bales.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 17.—Trading in the local copper shares was somewhat reduced in volume to-day, and early prices were at a somewhat lower level. Amalgamated was the leader to a strengthening tone, and the market closed steady at about top prices for the day.

AMERICAN TOBACCO UP

Advances to 300—Few Mining Stocks Active—Bond Sales Include Clover Leaf 4s at 72.

A noteworthy feature of the trading in the outside market yesterday was an advance of 25 points in American Tobacco on sales amounting to a total of 318 shares. The stock closed at the highest of the day. Standard Oil was dull at prices ranging from 505 to 508. Most of the trading in the bond list consisted of dealings in Consolidated Steamship bonds, which sold unchanged at 10. Toledo, St. Louis & Western collateral trust 4s, "when issued," sold at 72.

The most active of the mining stocks was Consolidated Arizona Smelting, which was traded in to the extent of 25,000 shares around ½. Cumberland-Ely was traded in from 8¼ to 8½, the sales amounting to 11,500 shares. An upward movement in mining shares early in the day was followed by reactions, leaving prices irregularly changed for the day.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Unexpected strength at Liverpool, colder weather in Southern Russia, and reduced stocks at Chicago caused an early advance yesterday, all of which was lost later on generally favorable domestic crop news and lack of confirmation of recent green bug stories. Late positions were relatively weak throughout. Export business of 11 loads was reported. Northwest arrivals were 401 cars, mostly Winter wheat. Liverpool showed ⅜d advance; Budapest 1¼c decline, other foreign markets being practically unchanged. Cash wheat in New York was quoted as follows: No. 2 red, $1.01¼, elevator, and $1.02⅛, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.14⅜, and No. 2 hard, Winter, $1.12⅜, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—The feature of the day was a ⅝c jump at Chicago at the close. At no time, however, was the market very weak. Cables were unchanged, clearances very light, and weather conditions propitious for a better movement. Exporters took five loads. Cash corn in New York closed as follows: No. 2, 74¾c, elevator, and 69c, free on board, afloat; other grades nominal.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—The local stock market rallied from the closing depression of the preceding day and ruled firmer for the more active securities. Speculation was somewhat narrower, with Reading, United States Steel, and Philadelphia Rapid Transit furnishing about three-fourths the total transactions, which aggregated 39,451 shares. United Gas Improvement was advanced a full point, to 79, on orders exceeding 2,300 shares, but in no other stock did the sales reach 1,000 shares.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Variety of Influences.

There was a little comfort for everybody in yesterday's market. The earlier trading showed a continuance of the tendency toward a recession in prices and the late afternoon indicated a resumption of aggressiveness by those committed to the long side of the account. The real influencing factors in the market were not easy to discern or determine, but apparently the short interest and the bear crowd had something to do with it, either as the recipients of the attention of those who wanted to mark prices up or as the aggressors in a compaign to eliminate the profits of those who have been instrumental in starting what appeared to be a bull market. The general explanation offered by the average broker to his customers while the market was under pressure was that the chief technical factor had been eliminated when the shorts covered the greater part of their commitments. In other words, it was assumed that the recent advance had been at the expense of the bears, but that the ammunition which they themselves had furnished had become exhausted. Naturally enough, this explanation was forgotten when the market rallied later in the day, and the betterment was ascribed to the rediscovery of a short interest and the specific courage of the other side developed by its realization of profits.

That Short Interest Puzzle.

Undoubtedly the short interest is and has been the puzzling element in the market for some time. The popular impression has been that it was extended, but that it was particularly vulnerable. Nevertheless, opinions coincided in the last week that it was an elemental factor in the betterment. But if the theory that the short interest was vulnerable and easily frightened, which also obtained, was true, it would be difficult to explain how a ten or fifteen point rally in the market was possible or how it could be so long drawn out. Consequently, merely taking the obvious premises, there are those who have reached the conclusion that something more than the technical factor of a short interest inspired the betterment. It is the privilege of every trader to speculate as to causes, and it is this speculation that inspires much of the trading. Just at the moment, however, the broker would prefer that the trader got his premises right and his profits also, inasmuch as that would make for a continuance of his speculative courage.

Aldrich Bill Amendments.

Interest in the Aldrich bill was intensified yesterday by the amendments reported in Washington dispatches as having been agreed upon by the Finance Committee of the Senate. It is doubtful if those who are desirous that the bill, if it must be enacted, should contain some conservative provisions, were at all annoyed by the announcement that railroad bonds were to be excluded as possible security for the emergency notes provided for in the bill. Those who are opposed to the bill are opposed primarily on the theory that the contemplated act lacks conservatism, disregards fundamentals, and, while ambitious in scope, does not give any assurance of solving the problem which inspired the bill in the first place. There was not much difference of opinion with regard to the inclusion of an amendment to the effect that the present clause relative to the retirement of $9,000,000 a month of circulation be retained. Many bankers said that one of the good features of the original bill was the elimination of any limit on the retirement of circulation, and it was pointed out that redundancy of circulation was just as undesirable as stringency. The point made against the $9,000,000 a month is that in times of emergency all possible circulation is issued, and in times of monetary ease only a limited amount can be retired. Wall Street has taken more or less of a perfunctory interest in the bill, anyway, but it is hoping that the amendments will improve rather than hurt the original.

Queries on Queer Stocks.

"It is a difficult matter to estimate the interest of the public in a market like the present," said an old-time broker yesterday, "but you can get some idea, first from the trading, second from the gossip of your own customers, and third from the queries which you get from what you might call the rank outsiders. So far as the trading is concerned, there has been too much of the professional element in it to make it look as if the public were really interested. On the other hand, customers in the office express themselves as more than hopeful that a bull market can be established, but the funny thing about the queries that we receive is that, while some of them relate to standard stocks, there is more in the way of information sought concerning what I might call 'junk' than anything else. I do not refer particularly to the assortment of stocks with more or less, generally less, character on the board, but rather to stuff that makes you wish for a good reference library on obsolete securities."

Senate's Bank Investigation.

Brokers are interested in the Tillman resolution relative to the investigation of the New York banks, but as a rule they express the opinion that the net result of the investigation would not add very much to the sum total of the general knowledge on the subject. Some bankers express the opinion that Congress seemed to have the idea that the public had no notion whatever of bank methods, bank loans, and the extension and use of bank credit. The old bugaboo of over-certification, which has caused so many patriotic as well as demagogic statesmen so much trouble, will be explained to the satisfaction of the committee, and the banks and the brokers would welcome without doubt a brand-new system that could do the same work while improving, legalizing, and, as one broker put it, moralizing the method. There was no trace of uneasiness anywhere, and members of the Exchange who are following closely all legislative developments, whether friendly or inimical to the Exchange, express the opinion that nothing could be better for the financial district than a thorough illumination of its methods, provided always that the illumination, if the result be what they expect, is open to the public.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee continued quiet yesterday, sales being reported of only 13,000 bags. The tone of the market was steady, and the close was net unchanged to 5 points higher.

The opening was unchanged to 5 points higher. Sales by no means equal warehouse deliveries. Foreign news was without special feature, and Brazilian receipts continued on about the recent scale.

Spot coffee was quiet but steady, on the basis of 6⅛c for Rio No. 7.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

CORN PRODUCTS DIVIDEND.

Two Per Cent. on the Preferred Declared, to be Paid Later.

An unexpected outlay, amounting to $500,000, made necessary by the new pure food laws, together with reduction of business in the latter part of last year, resulted yesterday in a reduction from 7 to 5 per cent. per year in the dividend on the preferred stock of the Corn Products Refining Company.

It has been the custom of the Directors to declare regular quarterly dividends of 1 per cent. and an extra yearly dividend of 3 per cent. In their final dividend for the fiscal year, which was declared yesterday, however, the Directors included an extra dividend of only 1 per cent., making the dividend for the year 5 per cent. This statement was issued:

When this company acquired the capital stock of the Corn Products Company, certain of the works of the latter's subsidiary companies were found to be in a deplorable condition. The policy was immediately adopted of devoting a large portion of the profits of those companies to the restoration of their plants, to compete with the most modern works. It was believed that this could be done with reasonable promptness and without suspending any portion of the preferred stock dividend, and the appropriations for 1907 were made with that in view.

It has turned out, however, that through the reduction of business in the latter part of the year and the unexpected outly rendered necessary by new food laws, (which latter item alone amounted to upward of $500,000,) the board feels constrained to ask forbearance of the preferred stockholders for the present, to the extent of allowing a 2 per cent. dividend applicable to this year to be made payable later.

The statement concludes by saying it is believed that the ultimate interests of the stockholders are best subserved by firm adherence to the conservative policy adopted.

STEEL TRADE MEN TO MEET.

To-morrow's Gathering Likely to Result in a Maintenance of Prices.

A meeting of a number of steel trade representatives will be held in this city to-morrow to discuss present conditions and possibly to take up the question whether prices in certain lines should be reduced to stimulate consumption.

In trade circles yesterday it was doubtful if any price changes would be agreed upon.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, March 17.—Money was in moderate supply and good demand on the market to-day. Discounts were firmer on less certainty regarding a reduction in the Bank of England's rate of discount.

On the Stock Exchange trading ruled irregular almost all day. There was an easy tendency in the gilt-edged section on account of the continued comparative dearness of money, but consols improved sharply in the afternoon. Foreigners and Kaffirs recovered later in the day on better Paris support, and copper shares finished above the worst.

American securities opened at about parity and ruled irregular until noon, the reaction in Wall Street causing local as well as Continental selling. The tendency improved later, but the weak New York opening turned the market downward and caused a dull close. Steel and Union Pacific were the most active issues during the session.

Bar silver quiet, 25½d per ounce.

Money, 3¼@½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅛ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 2⅞ per cent.

PARIS, March 17.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened weaker, but later became firm.

Three per cent. rentes, 97 francs 20 centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 17½ centimes for checks.

BERLIN, March 17.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was dull, and prices were weaker on the advices from New York.

Board to Consider the Financial Plan Contemplated by the Management.

The Illinois Central Directors are to meet to-day for their first regular meeting in New York following the election at which E. H. Harriman's candidates were successful over those of Stuyvesant Fish, who was dropped from the board.

The board will give consideration to the financial plan which the management has in contemplation.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

Copper prices were firm but unchanged on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday, but in London both spot and futures were off £1 to £58 5s for the former and £58 12s 6d for the latter.

The weakness of tin in the London market, where spot declined £1 5s to £138 10s and futures £1 to £136 5s, affected the price locally, the latter falling ¼c to 30.25. Lead was up 5 points in New York, but unchanged in London at £13 1s. Spelter was also unchanged in that market, at £21 7s 6d, while iron warrants were quoted there at 49s 9d for standard foundry and 51s for Middlesboro.

Closing quotations on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Monday:

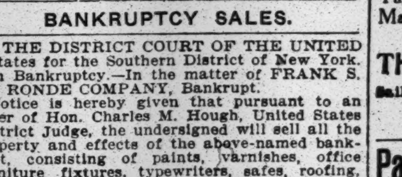
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHern District of New York.—In the matter of SIMON, RAGOVIN & CO., Bankrupts.

Pursuant to an order of the above-named court and bearing date the 26th day of February, 1908, I, the undersigned receiver, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Sales Rooms, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 26th day of March, 1908, at 12 o'clock M. on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said order to be sold, bounded and described as follows: All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land with the building and improvements thereon, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the northwesterly corner of Tinton Avenue and 150th Street, and running thence northerly along the westerly line of Tinton Avenue, as now established, fifty (50) feet; thence westerly and parallel with 150th Street, about ninety-four and 78-100 (94.78) feet; thence southerly parallel or nearly so with Tinton Avenue, fifty (50) feet to the northerly side of 150th Street, and thence easterly along the said northerly side of 150th Street, ninety-four and 63-100 (94.63) feet to the point or place of beginning. Be the said several dimensions more or less.

CHARLES F. BISHOP,
Receiver in Bankruptcy,
67 Wall St., Manhattan, New York City.

LEONARD BRONNER, Esq., Attorney for Receiver, 309 Broadway, Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The said premises will be sold subject to mortgages and taxes amounting in the aggregate approximately to the sum of seventy-four thousand three hundred and seventy-five ($74,375) dollars and interest amounting approximately to $1,825.00. The receiver reserves the right to withdraw the said property from sale unless it shall bring at least seventy-five (75%) per cent. of the appraised value. Any information concerning the aforesaid property may be obtained from the receiver or the auctioneer.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of FRANK S. DE RONDE COMPANY, Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to an order of Hon. Charles M. Hough, United States District Judge, the undersigned will sell all the property and effects of the above-named bankrupt, consisting of paints, varnishes, office furniture, fixtures, typewriters, safes, roofing, polishes, resin sized paper, waterproof lining paper, insulating paper, granulated cork, export furniture, watches, coffee, and similar merchandise, now contained in the premises 80 Pearl Street, 59-61 Pearl Street, and 24-26 Stone Street, all in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, at private sale, as follows:

Sealed bids may be submitted to John L. Wilkie, Esq., Receiver, at his office, 2 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before the 18th day of March, 1908, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time and place said bids will be opened by the receiver. All bidders will be required to deposit a certified check or cash for ten per cent. of their respective bids. The receiver reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Bids at the private sale will be received for the entire property and effects or any lot or lots of same. A list of the property may be seen at the office of the Receiver, and the property may be inspected at the premises, 80 Pearl Street, 24-26 Stone Street, and 59-61 Pearl Street, all in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on any day between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock in the forenoon and 2 and 4 in the afternoon.

Notice is hereby given to all creditors to attend at the time and place above stated to express their approval or disapproval of the acceptance of any bid received.

If all bids are rejected by the receiver, or any of said property is not disposed of at private sale, the property unsold will be sold at public auction at 80 Pearl Street, 59-61 Pearl Street, and 24-26 Stone Street, all in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, by Charles Shongood, United States Auctioneer for the Southern District of New York, on the 24th day of March, 1908. The sale at 80 Pearl Street will take place at 10:30 A. M. of that day, and at 59-61 Pearl Street and 24-26 Stone Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, will take place immediately thereafter.

MOURNING HOST AT BONNER'S FUNERAL

Impressive Services for the Dead Fire Commissioner Precede Burial in Calvary.

MANY CITY HEADS ATTEND

Firemen and Police Escort Body to Last Resting Place—Mayor, Bishop Potter, and Others Attend.

The funeral of Fire Commissioner Hugh Bonner was held yesterday morning from his home, 636 West End Avenue, whence the body was taken to the Roman Catholic Church of the Holy Name, Ninety-sixth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, where services were held. Hundreds of persons called at the home of the late Commissioner to pay their respects, and throngs crowded the avenue before the house.

The room in which the body lay was almost completely filled with flowers, Mayor McClellan, Charles F. Murphy, John F. Ahearn, William A. Larney, Deputy Commissioner Whitney, and the heads of other city departments being among those who sent floral offerings. Every fire battalion as well as other departments of the Fire Department also sent flowers.

At 10:30 o'clock the body was removed from the house. The police band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee" while the detail of firemen, carrying the draped colors and followed by the pallbearers, filed from the house. Behind them came the coffin, covered with carnations and roses. The procession passed through Ninetieth Street to Broadway, and thence to the church. There the band again played while the body was carried into the church.

The church was filled with a great crowd, and many persons who demanded admission were kept back by the police. Among those within the church were Bishop Henry C. Potter, Isidor Straus, Inspector George Titus, Col. Thurston, ex-Inspector Alexander Williams, ex-Fire Commissioners Frank K. Sturges, Nicholas Hayes, Francis Lantry, and John H. O'Brien; Deputy Fire Commissioners Patrick Whitney and Charles C. Wise, and Secretary of the Department William A. Larney.

Father John J. Kean, pastor of the church, assisted by Father McGrowan, a fire chaplain, and Father Joseph I. Norris, celebrated a requiem mass. Father Edward M. Rafter was master of ceremonies, assisted by Fire Chaplain St. Elmo Smith. Father Kean, a personal friend of the late Commissioner, preached the eulogy. Concluding, he asserted:

"He was a credit to his family, to his race, to his creed, to his city and country, and to humanity."

At the conclusion of the ritual the body was carried from the church, the cortège reformed, and the procession moved along Broadway to Seventy-second Street, where it formed into two lines, through which the hearse and carriages passed on the way to Calvary Cemetery.

The procession was headed by Inspector Schmittberger and fifteen mounted policemen. Next came the police band playing a dirge, and behind them the battalions of firemen led by Fire Chief Croker. The battalion commanders were Deputy Chiefs Thomas Lally, William Duane, and John Binns.

Deputy Chiefs James F. Murray, James J. McCarthey and Joseph B. Martin; Chiefs of Battalions Thomas F. Barrett and Thomas F. Dougherty, and Foremen Daniel Lawlor, Hamilton F. Perley, and Michael McNamara were the pall-bearers. They were in full uniform, with bands of crêpe on their arms.

A brigade of veteran firemen, exempt organizations, and former volunteers added their numbers to the procession.

BLOCKS ELEVATED CHANGE.

Utilities Board Angered by Lawyers' Activity Against New Station.

A hearing was held yesterday by the Public Service Commission on whether or not the Interborough Rapid Transit Company should be made to build a new station on the elevated line at Ninety-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue. It developed at the hearing that a firm of lawyers was partly responsible for the delay in getting the consents.

Henry Krugman of 148 West Ninety-ninth Street, a property owner, swore that he had been trying to get consents and had obtained a majority of those necessary. He would have been able to get others, he said, but found that certain of the property owners had been approached by a young man, who said he represented a Park Row law firm, and who advised those he saw to withhold their consents, as "there was money in it." The witness swore that he had been told of one case in which the young man said there would be $3,000 for one property owner if he withheld his consent.

Commissioner Eustis was much incensed over the matter. He said he could not well subpoena the law firm, but that he would subpoena the young man if his name could be ascertained.

President E. P. Bryan of the Interborough said to the commission that the company had nothing to do with the young man's activities. He opposed the building of the station, however, on the ground of expense and hard times. The hearing was adjourned for two weeks.

FLORA WHISTON BAILED.

Bond of $5,000 for Girl Who Changed Testimony Against Hitchcock.

Flora Whiston, the 18-year-old girl, whose retraction on the stand of testimony injurious to Raymond Hitchcock caused his acquittal on the first of the indictments against him and her arrest for perjury, was released on bail a few minutes after midnight yesterday morning. A $5,000 bond offered by W. H. Stuchburry of 151 East 140th Street was accepted by Magistrate Barlow Monday night in a box in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Bingham Wants Vanderbilt Case Tried

The District Attorney received a letter yesterday from Police Commissioner Bingham saying that he did not think that Magistrate Kernochan had given fair treatment to Policeman Martin when on March 8 he dismissed the charges of automobile speeding against W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and David W. Bishop of 341 Madison Avenue. Commissioner Bingham asks that the case be tried again in Special Sessions.

TOOTHPULLING SHOW WITH LIVING MODELS

Lively Exhibit by Dental Experts at Madison Square Garden Concert Hall.

Four Volunteer Patients Get Molars Pulled Gratis and Incidentally Amuse the Crowd.

There have been horse shows, automobile shows, motorboat shows, fashion shows, electrical shows, poultry shows, and dog shows, but yesterday there was in the concert hall of Madison Square Garden a tooth show. It was a lively exhibit by the dental manufacturers, but even more fascinating than tons of "store" teeth and the latest things in batteries, tooth washes, and dentist's chairs was the free exhibition of toothpulling with living models. A new anaesthetic was used, and under the glare of a powerful calcium light four patients sat more or less nervously while the courteous Dr. Knowlan extracted and demonstrated.

It spoke well for the excellence of the tooth average of the city that only four applicants responded during the afternoon to the general invitation to "step up and have your teeth pulled gratis." These four cases were disposed of before an audience which taxed the space of the room. There were many dentists present who watched with scientific interest the contortions of the patients. Others, however, came for the fun of the thing, and were treated to a diverting séance.

Dr. George W. Clapp was the lecturer, and Dr. Knowlan the demonstrator. Dr. Clapp discoursed at great length with the aid of a stereopticon, and told how bicuspids lent themselves to bridge work, and how molars should be treated according to the dental system which he represented. His slides all showed patients grinning with glee, and one young woman who began in the pictures as a toothless unfortunate ended the series with a display of pearly teeth that "made the lady's articulation perfect," according to Dr. Clapp.

After the stereopticon Dr. Clapp introduced Dr. Knowlan, who came forward with a red rubber bag and a glass tube containing the anaesthetic. The formula was also announced. It was 60 per cent. chloride of ethyl, 35 per cent. chloride of methyl, and 5 per cent. bromide of ethyl.

The first patient was a man who ascended the operating throne with an air of dignified resignation. Dr. Knowlan clapped the cone over his mouth and there was a gurgle. The rubber bag began to distend with the patient's inhalations, and finally he began waving his arms and the doctor desisted. Again the cone was placed over his mouth, and this time he remained quiet and the tooth was quickly extracted. He revived while the audience cheered and shouted, "We're with you, old man!"

The patient glanced at his tooth sheepishly, smiled in a feeble way, and left the hall.

The next applicant was a middle-aged woman, who had evidently been celebrating the holiday. She came in chatting volubly, and said her tooth "hurted somethin' awful."

She took a seat in the operating chair after a few appropriate remarks, such as, "Nice doctor, don't hurt me," then promptly fell asleep. No narcotic was necessary. After an apology to the audience this patient was dislodged and told to come some other time. In high dudgeon she departed.

The next patient was a pretty young woman, accompanied by her own dentist. He said that the girl had not been able to endure "laughing gas" or any of the usual anaesthetics. The girl was dressed in black and wore a Cleo de Merode headdress. She bowed to the audience, very much like a drawing room singer, and arranged herself in the chair with due regard to the folds of her skirt.

She fought the vapor, wriggled and threw her arms about the doctor. Her antics were enthusiastically applauded. But the tooth was not extracted, and she was discharged by the lecturer as an "interesting scientific case."

The next patient was quiet, and although her tooth was quickly removed she was not voted an "interesting case."

The exhibits were well patronized, and the show was a prime success. All sorts of dental appliances were displayed, and the number of false teeth on show was simply astonishing.

The show closes Friday night.
